Speech of

Shri Manmohan Singh
Minister of Finance

29th February, 1992

PART A

Sir,

I rise to present the budget for 1992-93.

2. The fiscal year now drawing to a close has been a difficult one by any standards. It has been a year of crisis and of crisis management. It has also been a year of great economic challenges and bold new initiatives.

3. Honourable Members would recall that when the new Government assumed office eight months ago, we inherited an economy on the verge of collapse. Inflation was accelerating rapidly. The balance of payments was in serious trouble. The foreign exchange reserves were barely enough for two weeks of imports. Foreign commercial banks had stopped lending to India. Non-Resident Indians were withdrawing their deposits. Shortages of foreign exchange had forced a massive import squeeze, which had halted the rapid industrial growth of earlier years and had produced negative growth rates from May 1991 onwards.

4. This is the grim legacy we inherited.

5. Our first and immediate challenge was to arrest the slide and restore India's credibility both domestically and in the eyes of the world. To achieve this objective we had to take immediate measures to avert a default in international payments and also take steps to restore macro-economic balance in the economy in the short run, with a view to controlling inflation and reducing the balance of payments deficit to a manageable level. Our medium term objective was to place the economy back on the path of high and sustainable growth.

6. The new Government took several initiatives in pursuit of these objectives. We took emergency measures to prevent a default in external payments, which would have been highly disruptive. The previous Government had already decided to use a part of the gold held by the Reserve Bank of India to mobilise temporary liquidity abroad. We did not consider it prudent to reverse this decision. But we promised to redeem the gold at the earliest opportunity and we have kept our word. We began the process of restoring macro-economic balance by seeking to reduce the fiscal deficit which had grown very large in the previous year. We also embarked on a medium term programme of structural reform, including new initiatives in trade policy and industrial policy aimed at improving the efficiency, productivity and international competitiveness of Indian industry. Our longer term objective is to evolve a pattern of production which is labour intensive and generates larger employment opportunities in productive higher income jobs, and reduces the disparities in income and wealth between rural and urban areas.

7. Production was bound to suffer in a year of crisis and this has happened in 1991-92. Agricultural production was below target in the kharif season, but prospects for the rabi crop look good. Industrial production suffered because of severe import compression and tight credit conditions. However, the infrastructure sectors, which are the foundation on which future industrial growth depends, have done well. Overall, I expect GDP growth in 1991-92 to be around 2.5%. I expect a distinct improvement in 1992-93, and a return to high growth in 1993-94. However, this revival can be achieved only if we persevere unflinchingly with the process of stabilisation and economic reform begun in the current year.

8. Stabilisation and structural adjustment are never painless or quick, especially when we are dealing with imbalances and structural rigidities which have built up over several years. It will take sustained effort, over at least three years, to bring the economy back to a path of rapid and sustainable growth. A firm commitment to austerity, the pursuit of excellence and the promotion of efficiency and productivity for the benefit of the common people has to be an integral part of this effort. Given our limited resources, our people cannot afford to copy the soulless consumerism and the wasteful life styles of the affluent countries of the West. Conspicuous consumption has to be actively discouraged. The virtues of thrift have to be emphasised. The owners of wealth, as Gandhiji used to say, must learn to regard themselves as trustees of society. We cannot postpone structural reform and adjustment, but we must ensure that the burden of adjustment on the poorer and weaker sections of our society is ameliorated to the maximum possible extent. We are travelling through difficult and uncharted terrain, where no action is without attendant risks, and success will not always be immediate. We need patience, perseverance and national cohesion if we are to succeed.

9. It has been alleged by some people that the reform programme has been dictated by the IMF and the World Bank. We are founder members of these two institutions and it is our right to borrow from them when we need assistance in support of our programmes. As lenders, they are required to satisfy themselves about our capacity to repay loans and this is where conditionality comes into the picture. All borrowing countries hold discussions with these institutions on the viability of the programmes for which assistance is sought. We have also held such discussions. The extent of conditionality depends on the amount and the type of assistance sought. However, I wish to state categorically that the conditions we have accepted reflect no more than the implementation of the reform programme as outlined in my letters of intent sent to the IMF and the World Bank, and are wholly consistent with our national interests. The bulk of the reform programme is based on the election manifesto of our Party. There is no question of the Government ever compromising our national interests, not to speak of our sovereignty.

10. Although the full fruit of our policies will take time to materialise, I am happy to report to the House that we have made substantial progress even in this short space of eight months. We have achieved our most immediate objective of restoring India's credibility and pulling the economy back from the slide into financial chaos. Our foreign exchange reserves have been rebuilt to about Rs.11,000 crores. Non-Resident Indians are no longer withdrawing their deposits. We have successfully concluded arrangements with multi-lateral financing institutions such as the IMF, the World Bank and the Asian Development Bank to obtain quick disbursing funds to support the balance of payments in the current year.

11. Inflation remains a difficult problem, and one to which we attach the highest priority, because inflation hurts the poor and the fixed income earner most of all. Inflation was accelerating in June 1991, when our Government came to power, and the annual rate of inflation reached a peak of 16.7% in August 1991. Since then, the rate of inflation has come down to about 12%, but I am painfully conscious that this is still far too high. We are determined to bring inflation under control. This is why the Budget for 1991-92 focussed on the need for fiscal discipline. I am confident that as we persevere with fiscal discipline in 1992-93, and this we must do if we want to bring prices under control, the rate of inflation will come down substantially in the coming fiscal year.

12. Our ability to fight inflation has been considerably enhanced by the improvement in our foreign exchange reserves. This has enabled us to relax the restrictions imposed last year on imports, thus ensuring near normal availability of essential imports in the months ahead. This will help production and ease inflationary pressure. The comfortable reserves position has also given the Government greater flexibility to finance additional imports of essential items to deal with shortages and break inflationary expectations.

13. The Government will remain fully vigilant on the prices front and will use the Public Distribution System to counter inflation and in particular to protect the poorer sections of the population from high prices and shortages. The Prime Minister announced on 1st January this year the launching of the revamped Public Distribution System in about 1700 of the most backward blocks of the country. We are determined to ensure that foodgrains and essential commodities reach the poor and the under-privileged in adequate quantities and at affordable prices.

14. Next to inflation, our major problem in the short term is the management of the balance of payments. We have averted collapse and gained some flexibility, but a sustained improvement in our external payments position requires much more. Our export earnings have suffered badly this year, mainly because of the disruption of trade with the former Soviet Union, and also because of recessionary conditions in world markets. As a result, we have not been able to finance our normal import requirements.

15. There are some who argue that all we need to do to solve our balance of payments problem is to compress our imports. I would like to point out that import compression has already been carried to the extreme and any further compression can only be at the cost of both growth and employment. Imports of non-essential consumer goods should certainly continue to be discouraged. However, we must recognise that the only lasting solution to our balance of payments problem lies not in compressing imports but in a rapid expansion of exports. A growing economy needs a growing volume of imports of fuel, and other industrial inputs and also of capital goods embodying modern technology. This is not to deny the importance of self-reliance, but self-reliance in today's world of integrated global markets cannot be achieved merely by reducing import dependence and insulating the economy from the world. Following that path will only lead to more import controls and promote inefficiency and corruption. It will perpetuate an environment in which Indian entrepreneurs will not have the flexibility they need to compete with other developing countries in world markets. The resulting inability to export will actually make us more, rather than less, dependent on the outside world. Our vision of a self-reliant economy should be of an economy which can meet all its import requirements through exports, without undue dependence on artificial external props such as foreign aid. I suggest to this august House that this is precisely the vision of self-reliance as bequeathed to us by Jawaharlal Nehru as elaborated in the Third Five Year Plan, and translated to the realities of today's world.

16. While introducing the new trade policy last year, Government had indicated that it would be our objective to move towards convertibility of the rupee on the current account. The achievement of convertibility is a sign of economic strength and true self reliance. We are now ready to take the next important step in this direction by introducing a new system of partial convertibility. The new system is designed to provide a powerful boost to our exports as well as to efficient import substitution. It will further reduce the scope for bureaucratic controls which contribute to both inefficiency and corruption. It will also greatly reduce the incentive for illegal transactions in foreign exchange. Under the new system all foreign exchange remittances, whether earned through exports of goods or services, or remittances, will be converted into rupees in the following manner: 40% of the foreign exchange remitted will be converted at the official exchange rate while the remaining 60% will be converted at a market determined rate. The foreign exchange surrendered at official exchange rates will be available to meet the foreign exchange requirements of essential imports such as petroleum and oil products, fertilisers, defence and life saving drugs. All other imports of raw materials, components and also capital goods will be made freely importable on open General Licence but the foreign exchange for these imports will have to be obtained from the market. There will be a specified "negative list" of raw materials, components and capital goods which will continue to be importable only against licences. There will be no change in the import policy for consumer goods which will remain restricted as at present. Foreign exchange required for other payments on private account including travel, debt service payments, dividends, royalties and other remittances will also have to be obtained at the market rate.

17. The new system will replace the system of Eximscrips. There will be no need to issue Eximscrips for each export transaction as the new system will operate through the banks. Instead of a premium on Eximscrips, exporters will have the benefit of the premium on 60% of their earnings in the foreign exchange market. What is more, the incentive for earning foreign exchange will now be available to remittances from our workers abroad. There is no reason why our workers, who earn foreign exchange by the sweat of their hard labour abroad, should be denied incentives presently given to exporters of goods and professional services. I salute our workers from Kerala and other states working abroad. What I have announced today is a small token of our appreciation of their magnificient contribution to India's foreign exchange earnings.

18. With these changes we will have achieved a major simplification of trade policy, eliminating licensing and the associated bureaucratic delays and inefficiencies over a wide range of items. We will also have introduced a self-balancing system to manage a large part of the balance of payments. The total volume of imports will be automaticaly regulated by the available volume of foreign exchange. Scarcity of foreign exchange will be reflected in a premium which will accrue to exporters and to those making remittances thus providing a built in incentive to increase this flow. The details of the new exchange system are being notified by the Reserve Bank of India. The changes in trade policy are being notified separately by the Commerce Ministry.

19. One of the reasons why foreign exchange is diverted to illegal channels is the illegal import of gold. It is time we took a bold step to recognise the realities of the situation and legalise the import of gold. Government proposes to allow returning Indians and NRIs to import 5kg of gold per passenger with a modest import duty provided the gold as well as the import duty is financed from foreign exchange earned abroad.

20. Many Honourable Members of this House have suggested that the Government should introduce a Gold Bond, which would help to mobilise the idle gold resources of ordinary citizens to supplement official reserves. I had indicated in Parliament that this should be considered only when the balance of payments situation improves, and adequate confidence has been built in the capacity of the Government to manage the economy. This has now been achieved. Our reserves are large and do not need supplementing, but I see no reason why patriotic citizens should be denied the opportunity to contribute their mite to the development of India's economy. I propose to introduce a scheme under which citizens can obtain a Gold Bond in return for gold. The bond would be for a period of five to seven years and would be liquidated by return of gold, or equivalent value, at the option of the holder. It would enjoy a small interest, which will not attract income-tax. The bonds will also be free of wealth tax and gift tax. As an added incentive, holders of such bonds will not be asked any questions about the source of the gold holding. The Reserve Bank of India is preparing a detailed proposal along these lines.

21. One of the initiatives of the new Industrial Policy is a new approach towards foreign investment, which can play a vital role in upgrading our technology levels, integrating our industry into the global economy, and bringing in non-debt resources. The Government proposes to actively encourage foreign investment in critical infrastructure sectors where capacities are inadequate and needs for investment are large. A policy to encourage private investment, including foreign investment, in the Power sector has already been announced. Another area which is critical for our future development, and for management of the balance of payments, is the hydro-carbon sector. Government has already announced that joint ventures will be permitted in both exploration and development, including development of existing fields. The Government will welcome proposals for private investment, including foreign investment, in production, refining and marketing of oil and gas, with a view to maximising the growth potential of this crucial area.

22. Concern is sometimes expressed that the policy of welcoming foreign investment will hurt Indian industry and may jeopardise our sovereignty. These fears are misplaced. We must not remain permanent captives of a fear of the East India Company, as if nothing has changed in the past 300 years! India as a nation is capable of dealing with foreign investors on its own terms. Indian industry has also come of age, and is now ready to enter a phase where it can both compete with foreign investment, and also cooperate with it. This is the trend all over the world and we cannot afford to be left out. The House can rest assured that we have enough policy instruments at our disposal to ensure that enterprises with foreign equity function in accordance with our national priorities.

23. The new approach to industrial policy calls for a review of regulations such as the Foreign Exchange Regulation Act, which introduced a great deal of detailed administrative control over companies where the foreign equity exceeded 40% and also on non-resident Indians. The Reserve Bank of India has recently liberalised the procedure by granting general exemption from several of these controls applicable to Indian companies with foreign equity and to non-resident Indians returning to India. There are other restrictions which prevent Indian companies and Indian residents from entering into various types of commercial relations with companies abroad without prior approval. These provisions are out of line with the needs of today's economy, where Indian businesses will have to deal extensively with their counterparts abroad, requiring expeditious decision making. The Government proposes to introduce comprehensive amendments to the Foreign Exchange Regulation Act to bring it in line with the requirements of the new policy.

24. In my Budget speech last year I had referred to the importance of financial sector reform and had announced the establishment of a Committee on the Financial System. The Narasimham Committee has submitted its report which has been tabled in Parliament. While commending the progress made by the banking system in several directions, the Committee has drawn attention to serious problems posed by the deterioration in the financial health of the system because of low profitability, poor portfolio quality and inadequate provisioning for bad debts. The Committee has made comprehensive recommendations for reform covering all aspects of banking, including the introduction of better capital adequacy norms, better provisioning for bad debts, rationalisation of the provisions for directed lending and the associated interest rate structure. The thrust of the Committee's recommendations is to move to a more efficient and competitive banking system including a larger role for the private sector. Many of the recommendations can be implemented very quickly. Others need further consideration. The Government proposes to implement the recommendations of the Committee in a phased manner.

25. As a first step in implementing the recommendations of the Narasimham Committee, the Government has decided to begin a phased reduction in the Statutory Liquidity Ratio (SLR) which at present locks up large quantities of bank funds in relatively low yielding Government securities. Accordingly, the SLR on incremental domestic liabilities of the commercial banks is being reduced from 38.5% to 30% with effect from 1992-93. This reduction is in line with the proposed reduction in the fiscal deficit, which will reduce the Central Government's need to borrow from commercial banks. It will release funds for banks to expand credit to agriculture and industry. The market borrowing of the States will not be affected. Steps are also being taken to develop an active market for Government securities which will make Government less dependent on statutory borrowing from the banks in future.

26. In view of the decline that has already taken place in the rate of inflation, it is possible to provide some relief in the interest rates charged by the Banks on commercial advances. Honourable Members will be pleased to know that the Reserve Bank of India is separately notifying a reduction in the floor level of interest rates on commercial advances by one percentage point.

27. Financial sector reform also includes reform of the capital markets, which will increasingly play a vital role in mobilising and allocating resources from the public. Several initiatives announced in my Budget speech last year have since been implemented. The Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI), has now been established on a statutory basis. As we gain experience, additional powers will be given to SEBI to strengthen its capability. The Government has also issued guidelines which will govern the operation of new private sector mutual funds. Government has also decided to give permission to companies with a good track record to issue convertible debentures or equity to investors abroad and to extend to these issues the same tax benefits as are available for Offshore Mutual Funds. This will enable domestic companies to tap the large pool of equity funds available in world capital markets. We will also consider ways of allowing reputable foreign investors, such as pension funds, to invest in our capital markets, with suitable mechanisms to ensure that this does not threaten loss of management control.

28. The role of the Controller of Capital Issues in the Finance Ministry needs to be reviewed, especially in the context of the emerging industrial and financial scenario. The practice of Government control over capital issues, as well as over pricing of issues, has lost its relevance in the changed circumstances of today. It is therefore proposed to do away with Government control over capital issues including premium fixation. Companies will be allowed to approach the market directly provided the issues are in conformity with published guidelines relating to disclosure and other matters related to investor protection. Government proposes to bring necessary legislation to implement this decision.

29. In presenting the Budget for 1991-92 I had announced the Government's intention to establish a National Renewal Fund with the objective of ensuring that the cost of technological change and modernisation does not fall too heavily on the workers. This Fund was intended to provide a social safety net which would protect the workers from the adverse consequences of technological transformation. The Government has now established the Fund. The Fund will provide assistance to cover the cost of retraining and redeployment of labour arising as a result of modernisation and restructuring, and also provide compensation to labour affected by restructuring of an industrial unit. Government also proposes to approach multilateral financial institutions to meet part of the requirement for the National Renewal Fund. It is estimated that about Rs.1000 crores would be available from the International Development Association to be used for social safety net schemes under the Fund including special schemes for unorganised sector workers. In this context we would work out a scheme to upgrade the technology of handicrafts which employ a very large number of people in the decentralised sector. Honourable Members may rest assured that the Government is firmly resolved to protect the interests of labour while dealing with the problems of industrial sickness and structural reforms.

30. Agriculture is the foundation of our national prosperity and no strategy of economic development can succeed in our country if it does not ensure rapid growth of production and employment in agriculture. Nor can we hope to provide sufficient jobs for our growing rural labour force unless we can transform the economy of our rural areas. This calls for a multi-pronged strategy involving effective implementation of land reforms, large investments in irrigation and drainage, improvement in water management systems, control of land degradation, strengthening of the credit system and improvements in agricultural extension and research. Much of this effort has to be made by the State Governments since Agriculture is a State subject, and it is our hope that State Governments will give these issues the highest priority. The Centre on its part is firmly committed to continued funding and revamping of the various poverty alleviation schemes, which are a major element in our development strategy.

31. Special attention needs to be paid to supporting innovative ideas for generating income and employment in rural areas through support to various types of agri-business. As an experimental measure, Government proposes to set up a Small Farmers' Agri-Business Consortium as an autonomous corporate entity funded by the Reserve Bank of India, NABARD and IDBI. The Consortium will include representation from various Development Boards dealing with individual crops and Public Sector Corporations dealing with agriculture and agro-industries, private sector companies, banks, scientific organisations and farmers' associations. The Consortium will function on the principles of economic efficiency, environmental soundness and social equity and will organise 12 major projects in 1992-93 in different parts of the country, based on a mix of enterprises with active participation by State Governments and farm families. The programme will be expanded as we gain experience. We must begin a new chapter in our agricultural history where farm enterprises yield not only more food, but more productive jobs and higher income in rural areas.

32. I now turn to the Revised Estimates for 1991-92. Our major macro-economic objective in 1991-92 was to reduce the fiscal deficit in order to restore macro-economic balance in the economy. I am happy to inform the House that we have succeeded in this objective.

33. The Budget Estimates for 1991-92 provided for a total expenditure of Rs.113,422 crores. Unlike in the past, when Revised Estimates of expenditure showed substantial increases over Budget Estimates, this year they are marginally lower by Rs.320 crores. On the revenue side there has been a large shortfall of Rs. 3760 crores in customs revenue owing to the severe import compression during most of the year, but this has been partially offset by higher realisation from excise duties and income tax so that the shortfall in gross tax revenues is Rs.1869 crores. The, non-tax revenues and capital receipts are also significantly higher. As a result total receipts are estimated at Rs.106,070 crores which is higher than the Budget Estimates of Rs.105,703 crores.

34. The Budget deficit in the Revised Estimates for 1991-92 is Rs.7032 crores which is lower than the Budget Estimate of Rs.7719 crores, and much lower than in 1990-91, when the budget deficit reached Rs.11,347 crores. The fiscal deficit, which takes into account all borrowing, is Rs.37,792 crores in the Revised Estimates. This is almost identical to the figure of Rs.37,727 crores in the Budget Estimates, and is much lower than Rs. 44,650 crores in 1990-91. With this, we have successfully reduced fiscal deficit from about 8.4% of GDP in 1990-91 to around 6.5% in 1991-92.

35. The reduction in the deficit was made possible by enforcement of strict discipline on the expenditure side. Certain additional expenditure provisions became necessary after the Budget was presented. The most notable of these was the additional requirement for fertiliser subsidy, consequent on the decision to restrict the price increase from 40% proposed initially to only 30%, and also the fact that the rupee cost of imported fertilisers was higher than assumed in the Budget Estimates. As a result, the provision for fertiliser subsidy has been increased from Rs.4000 crores in the Budget Estimates to Rs.4800 crores in the Revised Estimates. Even this amount does not fully cover the subsidy claims for 1991-92 and some amount will spill over into the next year as is normal commerical practice. A separate provision of Rs.405 crores has been included in the Revised Estimates for the scheme for supplying fertilisers to small farmers at the pre-revised prices.

36. I have also had to increase the Budget provision for food subsidy by Rs.250 crores on account of the delay in increasing issue prices. An extra amount of Rs.550 crores has also been provided for the export subsidy. This subsidy was abolished on 3rd July 1991, but the claims in the pipeline appear to be much more than was originally anticipated. These demands for additional expenditure have however been offset by savings located within the sanctioned Budgets of various Ministries.

37. The difficult resource position in 1991-92 had its impact on Plan expenditure. Overall resource constraints forced the Government to restrict Budget support for the Central Plan and the Revised Estimates for this item are 7% less than Budget Estimates. Despite the marginal reduction, efforts were made to ensure that projects of high priority are not affected, and the reduction has been achieved mainly by regulating the release of funds to match the actual progress of schemes on the ground. However, Central Assistance for State and UT Plans was stepped up by Rs. 651 crores, mainly on account of larger rupee requirements of externally aided projects.

38. The House will be happy to note that even though the Central Government's own expenditure in the Revised Estimates is below the Budget Estimates, the total transfer to the States by way of share of taxes, and Central Plan assistance is higher than the Budget Estimates by Rs. 1683 crores. This more than offsets the shortfall in small savings loans of Rs.1365 crores. We have not allowed our fiscal difficulties to come in the way of meeting our obligations to the States in any way.

39. I now turn to the Budget Estimates for 1992-93. The Eighth Five Year Plan commences from 1st April 1992 and aims at the objective of achieving near full employment in a period of ten years. The investment requirements of every sector are large, and it is important that Plan allocations should enable implementing agencies to make a good start, especially in the infrastructure sectors. However we have had to work within the limits imposed by the continuing need to restore macro-economic balance, which is essential if we are to contain inflation and manage the balance of payments. This calls for a further reduction in the fiscal deficit in 1992-93. Larger Plan expenditure can be accommodated within a smaller fiscal deficit if, apart from increasing tax and non-tax revenues, Government's non-Plan expenditure can be contained. I must admit that this has been a daunting task.

40. Interest charges are the largest single item of non-Plan expenditure and account for Rs. 32,000 crores in the Budget Estimates for 1992-93. This represents an increase of Rs. 4750 crores over the Revised Estimates for 1991-92, which is larger than the increase in total non-Plan expenditure of Rs. 4405 crores. This means that in 1992-93 all other items of non-Plan expenditure taken together are actually lower than in the current year. Honourable Members will appreciate that interest charges are a committed expenditure, reflecting the cumulative effect of past deficits. This item can be controlled only by reducing the reliance on borrowed funds, and I intend to do this by reducing the fiscal deficit for 1992-93. However, the benefit of this action will be felt only by Finance Ministers presenting the Budget in future. I venture to think that my successors as Finance Minister will be able to sleep far more peacefully than has been my lot thus far.

41. For the Defence Services I am providing Rs. 17,500 crores, an increase of 7% over the provision of Rs. 16,350 crores in the current year. Combined with some economies and tight expenditure control, I am confident that this allocation will enable our armed forces to fulfil their responsibilities in ensuring the security and defence of the nation.

42. In the election Manifesto of our Party, we had committed ourselves to find an innovative solution to the long standing demand of Defence pensioners for "One Rank One Pension". An Empowered Committee, under the chairmanship of Raksha Mantri and comprising ex-servicemen and Members of Parliament representing the major political parties has looked into the issue and its recommendations have been accepted by the Government. Accordingly, Government has sanctioned adhoc increase in the pension rates applicable to Defence personnel. This decision effective from 1.1.92 will benefit over six lakh Armed Forces pensioners of all ranks, of whom over two lakhs are Jawans, some of whom retired after 1.1.86. Government has also ordered grant of ex-gratia Family Pension to the families of deceased Reservists not in receipt of Family Pension. These benefits will entail an expenditure of over Rs. 120 crores per annum at current rates of dearness relief.

43. Subsidies are another important component in non-Plan expenditure. Last year, Food, Fertiliser and Export subsidies were the three major subsidies and their rapid growth has been one of the main factors behind the unchecked growth of non-Plan expenditure. We made an important change this year by abolishing export subsidies. However, some subsidy payments still remain in the pipeline, and I am providing Rs. 480 crores on this account.

44. Food subsidy is a part of our system of food security for the poorer and weaker sections of our population and is a basic element in our social policy. I am providing an allocation of Rs. 2500 crores on this account which should be sufficient for the normal requirements of the system. The revamped Public Distribution System being implemented in 1700 backward blocks will require an additional allocation of Rs. 250 crores on account of the additional subsidy and also the cost of constructing a large number of godowns with a capacity of 3 lakh tonnes. The allocation for these items will be augmented in the course of the year to meet the requirements fully.

45. This brings me to fertiliser subsidy which has grown into the largest single subsidy in our system. There is no doubt that fertiliser is an essential ingredient for agricultural production, and agricultural development is vital not only for economic growth in general, but also to ensure rising levels of income and employment in rural areas. In 1980-81, the fertiliser subsidy was 12% of the total allocation in the Central and State Plans taken together for Agriculture, Rural Development, Special Area Programmes and Irrigation and Flood Control. It increased to 33% in 1991-92. A Parliamentary Committee is currently looking into the whole issue of fertiliser pricing and subsidy including alternatives for restructuring the subsidy. I propose to wait for the report of this Committee and take a view, on this matter later in the year. Taking all factors into account, I am making a provision of Rs. 5000 crores for fertiliser subsidy in 1992-93.

46. Other items of non-Plan expenditure have been tightly constrained in the allocations provided to keep the fiscal deficit within manageable levels. I have requested my colleagues in all Ministries to review the expenditure control system in their Ministries to ensure that every possible step is taken to enforce economy so that the provisions being made in the Budget Estimates are not exceeded. As in the last two years, in the Budget Estimates for 1992-93 also no separate provision is being made for the additional dearness allowance instalments that may become payable in that year. All Ministries will be expected to absorb the additional expenditure on this account within the approved Budget provisions.

47. With these provisions, the total allocation for non-Plan expenditure stands at Rs. 84,475 crores, higher by Rs. 4,405 crores compared to the Revised Estimates for 1991-92. But then, as I mentioned earlier, the increase in interest expenditure alone is Rs.4,750 crores. Honourable Members would appreciate that the large requirements for interest and subsidies make it difficult to reduce non-Plan expenditure further and this limits the extent to which the budget can support Plan expenditure. Nevertheless, I have tried to provide adequately for all the critical areas of Plan expenditure.

48. Central assistance for the Plans of States and Union Territories is being stepped up from Rs. 14,710 crores in Budget Estimates 1991-92 to Rs. 16,111 crores in 1992-93. This increase of Rs. 1401 crores, coupled with an increase of Rs. 2237 crores in the share of taxes, even at the existing levels of taxation, should enable the States to substantially increase the allocations for the various Plan programmes.

49. The total Central Sector Plan outlay for 1992-93 has been fixed at Rs. 48,407 crores. This is based on budgetary support for the Plan of Rs. 18,501 crores, and a contribution of Rs. 29,906 crores from internal and extra-budgetary resources. of the various undertakings/ enterprises. The internal and extra-budgetary resources show a sharp increase of 25% over the current year's level and this is critical to achieve the substantial increase in the Plan outlays of the various infrastructure sectors. Thus the outlay for the Railways stands increased from Rs. 5325 crores in the current year's Budget Estimates to Rs. 5700 crores in the next year's Plan; Shipping from Rs. 617 crores to Rs. 1222 crores; Civil Aviation from Rs. 433 crores to Rs. 1036 crores; Telecommunications from Rs. 3203 crores to Rs. 4500 crores and Fertiliser industry from Rs. 411 crores to Rs. 1234 crores. The outlay for Power has been fixed at Rs. 6411 crores, and for Petroleum at Rs. 6054 crores.

50. The allocation for Rural Development Programmes in the Budget is Rs. 2610 crores, which is somewhat lower than the Budget Estimates of 1991-92 though it is higher than the Revised Estimates. This however presents only part of the total effort we are making in support of the weaker sections in our rural areas. The Government is deeply conscious of its special responsibility to protect the poorer sections of our society, especially in rural areas from the burdens that would otherwise be forced upon them as the economy goes through the process of macro-economic stabilisation and economic restructuring. It is therefore proposed to earmark an additional allocation of Rs. 500 crores from the corpus of the National Renewal Fund for employment generation schemes to supplement the normal employment generation through the Jawahar Rozgar Yojana, particularly in those areas where the pressure for such employment is seen to be more than in earlier years. The additional allocation of foodgrains, through the Public Distribution System in the 1700 most backward blocks at a subsidised rate is another important step for protecting these vulnerable sections of society from the pressure on prices. Taking the proposed additional allocations on these accounts together with the Plan provision in the Budget, the total allocation to rural development would show a substantial increase over the current year.

51. The Plan outlay for the Family Welfare programme has been stepped up from Rs. 749 crores in the current year to Rs. 1000 crores next year reflecting the Government's firm commitment to tackle the population problem. The outlay for the programmes of the Ministry of Welfare has also been increased from Rs. 479 crores to Rs. 530 crores reflecting fully Government's commitment to protection of the weaker sections of society.

52. Despite severe resource constraints, most of the other sectors which are largely dependent on budgetary support for their Plan outlays have been provided at least the same order of budget support as in the current year. I would have liked to provide more but we also have to live within the constraint of available resources. I would particularly like to point out that we must give up the practice of judging the quality of our Plan effort by the increase in the outlays provided for in the Budget. Our resources are scarce and there is a vast unexploited potential for improving the productivity of available resource use. There has to be much tighter scrutiny of various claims on resources and much greater emphasis on how to get more out of available resources. We cannot simply spend our way into prosperity.

53. Gross tax receipts at existing rates of taxation are estimated next year at Rs. 75,541 crores compared to Rs. 67,300 crores in the current year's Revised Estimates. The States' share of taxes is placed at Rs. 18,492 crores showing an increase of Rs. 1293 crores over the current year's Revised Estimates. Non-tax revenues next year show an increase of Rs. 2689 crores over the current year's Revised Estimates. This includes Rs. 416 crores of deferred dividends from the Railways. Next year's estimates assume an increase of Rs. 423 crores from dividends and profits of public sector enterprises. Unlike in the past, it is proposed to ensure that these enterprises transfer as dividend or surplus profits, a reasonable part of their post tax profits instead of determining the dividend payable merely on the basis of capital investment. The Reserve Bank of India will also be transferring a larger share of its profits.

54. Under Capital Receipts, I have taken credit for market borrowing of Rs. 5000 crores. This is significantly lower than the amount of Rs. 7500 crores in the Budget Estimates for the current year and reflects our objective of reducing the fiscal deficit and consequently the recourse to borrowed funds. External assistance including grants, but net of repayments, is estimated at Rs. 5374 crores.

55. The disinvestment in public sector equity undertaken in the current year has been successfully completed. There is scope for continuing this process in 1992-93 with a view to raising non-inflationary resources for development. I am accordingly taking credit for a receipt of Rs. 2500 crores from further disinvestment of equity holding in public sector enterprises. In addition to this amount, Government will consider a further sale of equity of Rs. 1000 crores to provide resources to the National Renewal Fund in 1992-93, which can be used for various schemes of assistance to workers in the unorganised sector, including women workers, who may be adversely affected by the process of economic restructuring. These resources will also be used to fund the special employment creating schemes in backward areas which I have mentioned earlier.

56. Thus, at existing rates of taxation, total receipts are placed at Rs. 114, 215 crores and total expenditure at Rs. 119,087 crores. This leaves a gap of Rs. 4872 crores.

Budget 1992-93

Speech of

Shri Manmohan Singh
Minister of Finance

29th February, 1992

PART B

57. While presenting the budget last year, I drew attention to the need for a comprehensive reform of both the direct and indirect tax system and had explained that lack of time had made it difficult to do as much as I would have liked in this regard. Subsequently, the Government set up a Tax Reforms Committee under the Chairmanship of Dr. Raja J. Chelliah. The Committee has since submitted its Interim Report. The Report distills the wisdom of some of our most distinguished experts on the complex subject of reform of both direct and indirect taxes and I have drawn heavily upon it in framing my Budget proposals. The summary of recommendations contained in the Report is separately being placed in Parliament to enable fuller appreciation of the analysis of the Committee and the rationale for its recommendations.

58. There is a consensus among fiscal experts, based on experience gained all over the world, that a moderately progressive tax structure combined with strong enforcement is the best way of encouraging honesty and voluntary tax compliance. The Chelliah Committee has endorsed this view and has recommended that our direct tax system would be more effective if the income tax regime had lower rates of taxation, with a narrower spread between the entry rate and the maximum marginal rate, and a minimum of tax incentives. I agree with this assessment and I propose to restructure the personal income tax in the following manner. I propose to enhance the exemption limit for income tax levy from Rs.22,000 at present to Rs.28,000. This will provide substantial relief to the taxpayers in the lower income group and I am sure it will be welcomed by the Honourable Members, many of whom had urged such an adjustment even last year. I hope this will convince them that I am an attentive and sensitive listener to what goes on in this august House. I further propose that there will only be three tax rate slabs, with the entry rate of 20 per cent. applicable upto Rs. 50,000, a middle slab of 30 per cent. upto Rs.1,00,000 and a maximum rate of 40 per cent. above Rs.1 lakh. A corresponding revision is also being made in the case of specified Hindu undivided families. Because of the severe resource constraints, I am compelled to retain the surcharge at 12 per cent. for one more year, but this will be payable only by those whose income exceeds rupees one lakh.

59. With the reduction in tax rates, a number of tax exemptions, which conferred large benefits on higher income tax payers are no longer justified. I, therefore, propose to abolish the deductions under sections 80L, 80CCA and 80CCB of the Income-tax Act. The computation of income from house property is also being rationalised in respect of certain deductions presently being allowed. The provision under section 88, which provides for tax rebate in respect of specified savings such as Life Insurance, Provident funds etc. will however continue, as these are normally availed of by fixed salary earners. In fact, I propose to widen its scope by including within its purview contributions to Pension Funds set up by the National Housing Bank and by Mutual Funds. I am also providing that those who wish to continue contributing to the savings schemes which until now qualified for deduction under section 80CCA and 80CCB, can get tax rebate under Section 88 of the Income-tax Act.

60. It is said that the child is the father of man, but some of our taxpayers have converted children into tax shelters for their fathers. The tax law provides for clubbing of income from gifts given by parents but this does not apply to other income, including income from other gifted assets, and the practice of cross gifting is widely used to evade clubbing. The Chelliah Committee has recommended that in order to plug this loophole, which accounts for a substantial leakage of revenue, the income of a minor child should be clubbed with that of the parent. There is merit in this suggestion and I propose to accept it. Recognising however the existence of a number of child prodigies, especially child artistes in our country, I propose to exclude their professional income, as also any wage income of minors, from the purview of such clubbing. The practice of clubbing the income of minor children with that of the parent for tax purposes is in vogue in a number of countries.

61. The revenue loss on account of the restructuring of income-tax rates as tradionally estimated will be Rs.1500 crores. However, this will be offset by the proposed abridgement in the concessions and tax exemptions and the change in the tax treatment of minor's income. If, as I expect, lower tax rates will lead to better tax compliance, there will be a net revenue gain even though it is not possible to quantify it. If tax-payers cooperate with me and revenue earnings go up signficantly, I propose to reward the tax-payers with a further cut in income tax rates. The ball is now in their court.

62. In a country with a population of over 800 million, hardly 7 million persons pay income and corporate tax. It is therefore necessary to attract new taxpayers into the tax net. With this end in view, I propose to introduce a presumptive tax system in respect of shop keepers and other retail traders with an annual turnover below Rs. 5 lakhs. In order to enable them to avoid the difficulty of maintaining detailed account books, filing a complicated tax return and going through the normal assessment procedure, a simplified scheme has been worked out under which the taxpayer will give only brief particulars of his turnover and pay just Rs.1400 as tax for that year. This should enable potential taxpayers in this category to overcome their psychological hesitation of getting into the tax system. The scheme is being introduced on a purely optional basis and is intended only for those who may have taxable income and wish to avail of this simplified procedure. With the increase in the exemption limit to Rs. 28,000, those with a turnover of less than Rs. 2.5 lakhs to Rs.3 lakhs may well find that they do not have to pay this presumptive tax.

63. The present tax treatment of long term capital gains has been criticised on the ground that the deduction allowed in computing taxable gain is not related to the period of time for which the asset has been held. It does not take into account the inflation that may have occured over time. The Chelliah Committee has suggested a system of indexation to take care of the problem and I propose to accept its recommendation. Taxable capital gains will be computed by allowing the cost of the asset to be adjusted for general inflation before deducting from the sale proceeds. The adjustment factor for each year will be notified by the Central Government. The long term capital gains thus computed will be taxed at 20 per cent. in the case of individuals and HUFs, 40 per cent. in the case of companies, firms, associations of persons and bodies of individuals, and 30 per cent. in the case of others. The new system will favour those whose capital gains accrue over a longer period, while those making capital gains over a shorter period will pay a higher tax. This is as it should be. The cut off date for valuation is also being shifted from 1st April, 1974 to 1st April, 1981. With these changes, I propose to withdraw the standard deduction in computing taxable capital gains and also the exemptions under section 54E for capital gains invested in specified assets and section 53 in respect of capital gains arising from sale of residential house.

64.1 While I am simplifying the income-tax structure, I should extend some concessions directly to certain categories of taxpayers who deserve sympathetic consideration from the Government.

64.2 Many individuals have to maintain handicapped dependants which often imposes a heavy burden upon them and this is a burden which we should lighten as much as we can. I therefore propose to increase the deduction available to such persons from Rs.6,000 at present to Rs.12,000 per year. Further, the scope of this tax concession is being made available to all taxpayers irrespective of their income.

64.3 Women who take up employment deserve special consideration and encouragement. I, therefore, propose to increase the standard deduction from Rs.12,000 to Rs.15,000 in the case of working women having total income upto seventy five thousand rupees. I hope this will convince Honourable lady members of this House about my commitment to the cause of social and economic uplift of Indian women. The only quid pro quo I expect from them is to defend the budget regardless of their party affiliations.

64.4 Taking note of the financial difficulties often encountered by persons in old age and as a token of my regard for such senior citizens, I propose to give a tax rebate of 10 per cent. on the net tax payable by persons who have completed 65 years of age and whose gross total income is below Rs.50,000.

64.5 Having regard to the fluctuating nature of income earned by authors, playwrights, artists, musicians, actors and sportsmen and in recognition of their contribution to the enrichment of the cultural life of the nation, the tax rebate for them in respect of specified savings under section 88 of the Income-tax Act will be increased from 20 per cent. to 25 per cent.

64.6 The victims of the Bhopal Gas Disaster are to get compensation on the basis of the Supreme Court judgement. Having regard to the human dimensions of the tragedy, I propose to exempt, in all cases, the compensation received by such recipients from income tax liability.

64.7 I have received several representations for widening the scope of exempting medical expenses for both salaried and self-employed persons. I propose to substantially liberalise the provisions relating to hospitalisation and medical insurance. Tax benefits to salaried persons will no longer be limited to treatment in a few government recognised hospitals only. Similarly, for self-employed persons, the deduction available for medical insurance is being enhanced from Rs. 3,000 to Rs. 6,000.

64.8 Exemption from income-tax is now available to the employees of the public sector on payments made under the Voluntary Retirement Schemes. I propose to extend the benefit of the exemption, subject to certain guidelines, to the employees in the private sector as well.

65. There has been a long standing criticism that by subjecting the income of both partnership firms as well as the partners to taxation, we are engaging in double taxation. The Chelliah Committee has also stressed that double taxation in this regard should be avoided. I agree that we should avoid double taxation and I propose, as a measure of relief, to treat the firm as a separate tax entity and do away with the taxation of the same income in the hands of partners. I propose to allow deduction towards interest and salary payments made to partners from the income of the firm and then tax the balance income in the hands of the firm at a flat rate of 40 per cent.. The proportion of deduction allowed decreases with the income level of the firm and is so designed that the total tax incidence on small firms and professional firms will be reduced. The partners will not be taxed on their share in the income of the firm though they will be liable to pay tax on salary and interest income. This method will result in enormous simplification from the point of view of taxpayers as well as tax administration as the proposed scheme will do away with complexities, associated with the procedure relating to registration of firms, rectification of partners' assessments when firms' assessments are revised, etc.

66. Last year, I introduced provisions relating to tax deduction at source in respect of interest on term deposits with banks and commission payments. There has, however, been considerable criticism from taxpayers about the implementation of these provisions. I have also received representations from a number of Members of Parliament seeking withdrawal of these provisions. The system of tax deduction at source is a useful tool and one of the well recognised methods of enforcing tax compliance in many countries. However, a harassed Finance Minister has to be sensitive to the opinions of Honourable members of Parliament even when they differ from his own convictions. Therefore, I propose to withdraw these two provisions.

67. The Wealth-tax Act, 1957 has far too many exemptions making its administration enormously complicated. The valuation of certain assets such as shares also presents problems, since very high market values reflecting speculative activity can lead to a heavy burden on shareholders who are long term investors. There is also no distinction at present between productive and non-productive assets. The Chelliah Committee has suggested that, in order to encourage the taxpayers to invest in productive assets such as shares, securities, bonds, bank deposits, etc. and also to promote investments through Mutual Funds, these financial assets should be exempted from wealth tax. Wealth tax should be levied on individuals, Hindu undivided families and all companies only in respect of non-productive assets such as residential houses including farm houses and urban land, jewellery, bullion, motor cars, planes, boats and yachts which are not used for commercial purposes. The Committee has further suggested that such tax should be at the rate of one per cent., with a basic exemption of Rs.15 lakhs. I propose to accept this recommendation and I hope this change will encourage investments in productive assets and discourage investment in ostentatious non-productive wealth.

68. Earlier in my speech I have referred to the importance which the Government attaches to the capital market and the special role of mutual funds including private sector mutual funds. In order to treat all mutual funds alike in tax matters, I propose to exempt from income tax mutual funds in both public sector and private sector recognised by the Securities and Exchange Board of India. I had also referred to the scheme permitting Indian Companies to issue convertible bonds and equity to investors abroad. I propose to tax the income and capital gains from these issues at a concessional rate of 10 per cent., as is applicable to Offshore mutual funds. It is hoped that these measures will give a new thrust to the capital market in the country.

69. Last year, I had extended expenditure tax to cover air-conditioned restaurants in order to mop up additional resources. I have received several representations that this provision falls heavily on innumerable restaurants and small establishments which are patronised mainly by the middle class. It has been suggested that airconditioning in restaurants, unlike in homes, is no longer a luxury item of the rich. The largest number of such complaints have come from Bombay. Having lived in Bombay for two and a half years, I have special regard for the citizens of this great city. This has been reinforced by their voting behaviour in the recent elections to the Municipal Corporation. I, therefore, feel a special obligation to respond. I propose to withdraw this levy as far as the restaurants are concerned. However, I have made certain changes in the scope of the Expenditure-tax Act relating to hotel receipts. I propose to enhance the qualifying limit for liability relating to room charges of the hotel from the present Rs.400 per day to Rs.1200 per day. In view of the exchange rate adjustments undertaken recently, there is no longer any need for exempting expenditure made in foreign exchange from the tax. I am, accordingly, withdrawing this exemption.

70 .With a view to providing support to the cooperative sector, I propose to exempt all cooperative societies including urban cooperative societies engaged in the business of banking from the purview of Interest-tax Act.

71. I recognise the need for a reform of the corporate tax system. This is also an area where rates of taxation need to be lowered and I would like to give advance notice of my intention to begin lowering them as soon as possible. However, as the detailed recommendations of the Chelliah Committee on corporate taxation are yet to be received, I propose to defer major restructuring in this area until after I have received its recommendations. Accordingly, for the present there will be no change in the rate structure as well as the surcharge. In this budget, I propose to make just two changes. Ordinarily, depreciation and investment allowance carried forward from earlier years is set off against the current income. In line with the rationalisation of depreciation allowance brought about last year, I propose that in respect of assessment year 1992-93, the quantum of set off for carried forward depreciation and investment allowance in the case of companies, where such amount exceeds Rs.1,00,000, shall be limited to two-third of such amount and the remaining one-third will be allowed to be adjusted in the assessment year 1993-94. Further, having regard to the widespread criticism that the Income-tax Act has artificial ceilings in regard to certain business expenses, I am liberalising some of the items on the basis of the recommendation of the Chelliah Committee.

72. Having regard to the complexities in tax laws, I have been receiving representations that the Government should give Advance Rulings whenever a taxpayer has doubts about the tax liability in respect of intended transactions. This practice obtains in a number of countries. There are certain practical difficulties in implementing such a suggestion. However, in the interest of avoiding needless litigation and promoting better taxpayer relations, a scheme for giving Advance Rulings in respect of transactions involving non-residents, is being worked out and will be put into operation soon. The scope of this can be extended subsequently on the basis of experience gained. The Government is also planning to set up the National Court of Direct Taxes in order to ensure that litigation in direct tax matters is settled expeditiously. Along with this, the Government would also like to bring forward, as soon as possible, a Bill on Direct Taxes Code, integrating therein all the three direct taxes so as to make the law easily understandable and tax administration simple.

73. I do not propose to take up the time of the House with other minor changes in the Direct Tax Laws.

74. My proposals on direct taxes are estimated to yield a net revenue gain of Rs. 795 crores. Of this amount, Rs. 435 crores will accrue to the States.

75. I now turn to the proposals relating to indirect taxes.

76. A long standing complaint of our industry, and of experts in trade policy is that our customs tariff rates are too high and increasingly out of line with the trends in our competitor countries, all of whom have reduced tariffs to very moderate levels. My colleague the Honourable Commerce

Minister has repeatedly told me that we cannot expect to compete with these countries in world markets if we persist with high tariff rates which have the effect of creating a high cost industrial structure. This is in line with the directions I had indicated in my budget speech last year. The Chelliah Committee, which was asked to look into all aspects of customs duties, has recommended reduction in the general level of tariffs, a reduction in the dispersion of the tariff rates and a rationalisation of the system with abolition of numerous end-use exemptions and concessions. The Committee has also rightly suggested that the process of reform should be gradual, so as to moderate the impact of the adjustment, both in terms of possible revenue loss and the pace at which domestic industry is exposed to competition. I propose to act on these recommendations by making a substantial start in this budget on reforming the customs tariff structure.

77. Last year I had begun the process of reducing import duties by lowering the ad valorem rates of basic plus auxiliary duties of customs to a maximum of 150%. I now propose to lower the peak tariff level further by reducing the basic plus auxiliary rates of import duties (inclusive of specific duties) to a maximum of 110% with the exception of passenger baggage and alcoholic beverages. The loss of revenue on account of this proposal as traditionally estimated is Rs. 1700 crores, though I feel it could be much lower in practice.

78. My next proposal relates to the duty on capital goods. The general duty on capital goods, including project imports, is currently at 80% which is below the peak rate of 110%. However, there is a good case for giving priority to reducing the duty on capital goods because high duty on capital goods constitutes a permanent increase in the cost of production for the life of the unit. In order to encourage new investment in export oriented industries, we should move to a lower duty rate on capital goods at an accelerated rate. I, therefore, propose to reduce the duty rate on project imports and general machinery from 80% to 60%. In the case of capital goods including project imports for electronics industry, I propose to reduce the import duty from 60% to 50%. In relation to capital goods for projects of coal mining and crude petroleum refining, I propose a deeper reduction in the import duty prescribing a uniform rate of 30%. In the case of power projects, the present concessional duty rate of 30% or 40% is being rationalised to a uniform rate of 30%. I also propose to reduce the import duty on other capital goods currently attracting duty above 80% by 10 percentage points. The existing concession in the duty rates available to the components of specified machinery enabling those items to be imported at rates below the rate applicable to the machinery is proposed to be continued. These changes will not adversely affect the competitive position of the Indian capital goods industry especially in view of the exchange rate adjustment effected last year. These proposals involve a loss of revenue of about Rs.840 crores.

79. In view of the reduction of tariff peaks, I have also taken the opportunity to remove some of the end-use notifications for concessional duty imports. In this process of rationalisation, some duties may go up marginally. However, in view of the overall reduction of duty rates, industry should be able to absorb such marginal increases.

80. In my last budget I had proposed certain rationalisation of the rates of auxiliary duty of customs. I propose to further rationalise the auxiliary duty structure by reducing the number of duty slabs to four. The loss of revenue on this account is estimated at Rs. 125 crores.

81. Agriculture is the bedrock on which our economic development depends and the vital inputs for this sector have always been accorded a preferential tax treatment. In line with this principle, I propose to reduce the duty rate on 15 specified pesticides from 110% at present to 75%, by adding them to the list of pesticides eligible for this concession. I also propose to reduce the import duty on two pesticide intermediates from the present level of 120% to 65%. So also I propose to exempt three specified pesticide intermediates completely from excise duty. These proposals involve a revenue loss of about Rs.8 crores.

82. Successful agricultural development calls for injection of new seeds which can increase productivity and imported seeds and planting material can help in this process. I, therefore, propose to fully exempt from import duty, oil seeds, seeds of vegetables, flowers and ornamental plants; tubers and bulbs of flowers; cuttings or saplings of flower plants; and seeds of fruit-plants and pulses, for the purpose of sowing and planting. In order to ensure efficient transplanting of seedlings, I also propose to reduce the import duty on rice transplanters from 80% to 40%.

83. The petro-chemical industry suffers from high duty rates on certain basic feedstocks which are the building blocks of the industry. There is a case for duty reduction and rationalisation in this area. I, therefore, propose to reduce the import duty on propylene from 120% to 80%, on butadiene from 55% to 40% and on benzene from 40% to 25%. I also propose a uniform import duty of 40% for ethyl benzene and styrene which are essential inputs for the manufacture of polystyrene. Similarly, I propose to reduce import duty on certain specified feedstocks which find use in the manufacture of polyethylenes from 120% to 40%. The loss of revenue on account of the proposals would be around Rs.26 crores.

84. As a measure of relief to the asbestos cement industry which serves the housing, water supply and irrigation sectors, I propose to reduce the import duty on asbestos fibre from 90% to 70%. The proposal involves a loss of revenue of Rs.18 crores.

85. Films in our country have become an important vehicle of national integration. I have therefore to worry about the economic health of this important industry. In order to give relief to the film industry, which is facing increasing competition from cable TV and video, I propose to reduce the import duty on unexposed colour negatives of cinematograph film by 20 percentage points from the existing level. The loss of revenue involved in the proposal is Rs.8 crores.

86. I propose to reduce the import duty on specified items of machinery required for the manufacture of fly ash and phosphogypsum bricks and building components.

87. Last year as a relief to the newspaper industry I had exempted standard newsprint fully from customs duty. I feel my support base in the Press could do with some strengthening. I now propose to fully exempt glazed newsprint which is presently attracting import duty of Rs.550 per metric ton from payment of duty. The proposal involves a revenue loss of about Rs. 3 crores.

88. I have already mentioned that import of gold by Indians including persons of Indian origin as part of their baggage will now be allowed. Every such passenger will be allowed to bring upto five kilograms of gold and the import duty on such gold will be Rs.450 per 10 grams, which works out to about 15% in ad valorem terms. This duty will be payable in convertible foreign exchange. I am confident that this step will be welcomed by all, except those engaged in the hitherto profitable business of smuggling this metal into the country.

89. The restructuring of customs duty being attempted in this Budget is the beginning of a process in which our customs duties are gradually reduced, over a three to four year period, to levels comparable with those in other developing countries. I would like to reassure Honourable Members that they need have no fear that the process of reducing duties will lead to the deindustrialisation of India. On the contrary, the reduction is necessary to give the Indian industry an environment in which it can increase its competitiveness through absorption of technology and greater integration with the world economy. This is essential if we are to achieve true self reliance. We shall take effective promotional measures to build up the competitive strength of Indian industry. The proposed restructuring of customs duty, together with the other changes in customs duty results in a net loss of Rs. 2023.35 crores. The loss is estimated in the conventional way and it is possible that it may be overestimated if we allow for a substantial improvement in the balance of payments, permitting a larger volume of imports and, therefore, a higher level of customs revenue.

90. In the field of excise duties, I have been guided by the objectives of rationalising the excise duty structure, providing reliefs where necessary and, of course, raising additional resources to offset the revenue loss from restructuring of customs tariffs.

91. While presenting the budget for 1991-92, I had referred to my intention to rationalise and simplify the procedurés, rules and regulations pertaining to indirect taxes so that the delays in the system are eliminated and the interface between the tax collector and the tax payer is reduced to the minimum. I propose to make an advance in this direction by abolishing licensing controls on production and manufacture under the Central Excises and Salt Act, 1944. The assessees would simply be required to register themselves with the central excise authorities. At present assessees are required to get their central excise licences renewed every five years. Registration will be valid as long as the assessee continues the manufacturing activity. I am proposing suitable amendments in the law to this end.

92. Honourable Members would be aware that a Settlement Commission was established in 1976 under the Income-tax Act, 1961. I propose to set up a Settlement Commission, on similar lines, for dealing with customs and central excise disputes between the Department and the assessee. I trust this will help in speedy settlement of tax disputes.

93. Honourable Members may also recall that a law was enacted in 1986 for the establishment of an appellate tribunal for the adjudication of disputes relating to the determination of the rates of duties of customs and central excise and to the valuation in pursuance of Article 323-B of the Constitution. Due to unavoidable reasons, the tribunal could not be established. I propose to introduce legislation to suitably amend the Customs and Central Excise Revenues Appellate Tribunal Act, 1986 and set up the tribunal.

94. The housing sector is important, both socially and for employment generation and as such deserves special treatment. I propose to fully exempt from excise duty bricks and tiles having a minimum content of 25% of red mud, which is a waste product of aluminium industry. I also propose to fully exempt light weight concrete building blocks from excise duty. Further I propose to reduce the excise duty on pre-fabricated buildings from 15% to 5%. I also propose to fully exempt doors and windows made of plastic, iron and steel which incidentally would conserve our dwindling forest cover. Further, I propose to exempt completely panel doors which are currently attracting 30% excise duty. The proposals involve a revenue loss of about Rs. 4 crores.

95. The glass container industry has been going through a lean period. I propose to reduce excise duty on glass containers from 40% to 30%. The excise duty on glass containers manufactured by semi-automatic process and mouth blown process will also be reduced from the existing levels of 30% and 15% to 20% and 10%, respectively. The proposals involve a revenue loss of Rs. 30 crores.

96. At present there is a wide dispersion of duty rates among various sectors of the textile industry. My primary aim is to simplify and rationalise the tariff structure and to reduce the duty differential between the various textile fibres and yarns.

97. I propose to rationalise and restructure the excise duty on cotton yarn and cellulosic spun yarn. On cotton yarn, I propose to reduce the multiplicity of rates by having only five duty slabs. Excise duty on cellulosic spun yarn is also being similarly rationalised by having three slabs.

98. I also propose to raise the basic excise duty on viscose fibre from Rs. 10.50 to Rs 12 per kg., on viscose filament yarn from Rs. 12 to Rs 15 per kg., and on acrylic fibre from Rs. 9.24 to Rs 12 per kg. The duty rates on polyester blended yarns are also being rationalised.

99. Rags and synthetic waste are both raw materials for the shoddy woollen industry. I propose to equate the import duty incidence on both at 110%.

100. With a view to raising the revenue from additional excise duty the proceeds of which go to the States, I propose to increase the duty on processed cotton fabrics by restructuring the duty slabs.

101. Several units in the nylon and polyester filament yarn industry are passing through difficult times. As a measure of relief, I propose to reduce the excise duty on nylon filament yarn from Rs. 63 to Rs 55 per kg and also to reduce the import duty on caprolactum from 80% to 50%. I also propose to reduce the excise duty on polyester filament yarn from Rs.70 to Rs.62 per kg.

102. To promote use of jute by the handloom sector, I propose to fully exempt jute yarn in hanks from excise duty. Similarly, jute products manufactured in rural areas by registered co-operative societies, women's co-operatives, etc. are also proposed to be fully exempted from excise duty.

103. As a measure of relief to the silk industry, I propose to reduce the import duty on raw silk from 55% to 30%.

104. The package of proposals relating to the textile industry involve a revenue reduction of about Rs. 25 crores.

105. I would now take up the proposals for rationalisation and additional revenue mobilisation.

106. At present excise duty is levied on ad valorem basis on some commodities and at specific rates on others. Over the years, for administrative reasons, ad valorem duties have been steadily replaced by specific rates or ad valorem-cum-specific rates. Ad valorem duties are preferable to specific duties as they ensure buoyancy in revenue on account of increase in prices, and the Chelliah Committee has recommended switching over to ad valorem rates for a number of commodities. It has also recommended that where specific rates are retained, the same should be revised every year taking into account the price inflation. I propose to make a modest beginning by switching over to the ad valorem mode of levy where feasible.

107. In respect of major non-ferrous metals, namely, copper, lead and zinc and products thereof, I propose to fix a uniform ad valorem levy of 10% in the place of existing specific rates of duty. As regards iron and steel, the excise duty on primary and semi-finished forms thereof is generally charged at specific rates of duty. For administrative reasons, I propose to retain the specific rates of excise duty on items like ingots and certain rolled products like bars, rods, etc., other than of stainless steel. In respect of these products, I propose to raise the existing rates, which are presently between Rs. 300 and Rs. 1800 per metric ton to rates between Rs. 400 and Rs. 2000 per metric ton. However, in respect of iron forgings and other steel products, I propose to prescribe a uniform excise duty of 10%. The proposals involve a revenue gain of about Rs.400 crores.

108. In my budget speech last year, I mentioned that every Finance Minister has to do his bit to curb smoking which is injurious to health. This injury to health is continuing and I would be failing in my duty if I did not make one more attempt to use the fiscal instrument in this worthy cause. While I do not propose to increase the duty on non-filter cigarettes of less than 60 mm in length, the duties on all other cigarettes are being raised by Rs.30 to Rs.100 per thousand depending on the length. The gain in revenue from the proposals is of the order of Rs.325 crores.

109. I propose to increase the excise duty on certain plastic resins, namely, polystyrene, low density polyethylene, high density polyethylene and polypropylene from 30% to 40%. The revenue gain from the proposal is Rs. 165 crores.

110. Watches attract a very low rate of duty of 5% which is out of line with the general duty structure. I propose to raise the rate to 10%. The revenue gain from the proposal is estimated to be Rs. 12 crores.

111. I propose to increase the excise duty on cement from Rs. 215 to

Rs. 290 per metric ton. The excise duty on cement produced in mini cement plants will also go up from Rs. 90 to Rs. 165 per metric ton, thus maintaining the existing duty differential of Rs. 125 per metric ton in favour of mini cement plants. However, I propose to reduce the duty on white cement from 40% to 35% to bring the incidence closer to that on ordinary cement. The estimated revenue gain from these proposals is Rs. 376 crores.

112. I propose to raise the excise duty on paints from the existing levels of 15% and 30% to 20% and 35% respectively. The revenue gain on account of the proposal is estimated to be Rs. 35 crores.

113. I propose to increase the excise duty on organic surface active agents from 25% to 30%. The proposal would yield an additional revenue of Rs. 50 crores.

114. At present two-wheelers such as motorcycles and scooters attract excise duty in slabs of 10%, 15%, 20%, 25% and 30% depending on the engine capacity. I propose to rationalise the duty structure by levying a uniform duty of 15% on all two-wheelers of engine capacity upto 75 cc and 25% on all others whose engine capacity exceeds 75 cc. I also propose to increase the excise duty on light commercial vehicles from 10% to 15%. The proposals involve a revenue gain of Rs. 80 crores.

115. I propose to increase the excise duty on cocoa and cocoa based preparations from 15% to 25%. The proposal involves a revenue gain of Rs. 24 crores.

116. I propose to increase the excise duty on wires and cables by five percentage points from the present levels. The additional revenue from the proposal is expected to be of the order of Rs. 60 crores.

117. I also propose to revise upwards the existing specific rates of excise duty on tyres, tubes and flaps. However, I propose to reduce the duty on moped tyres from Rs. 30 to Rs.25 per tyre. The proposals involve a revenue gain of Rs. 40 crores.

118. Special excise duty is being levied at present at the rate of 10% of the basic excise duty; certain essential items such as tea, coffee, sugar, matches, kerosene and vanaspati are fully exempted. In addition, high speed diesel oil and two wheelers attract special excise duty at 5%. I now propose to raise the special excise duty on products which are presently attracting a 10% rate of duty to 15%. However, this increase will not be applicable to petroleum products. I also propose to exempt from this increase certain consumer durables like motor cars and consumer electronics such as television sets, as these industries are passing through a difficult phase. This proposal involves a revenue gain of Rs.1025 crores.

119. The changes in trade policy introduced last year have eliminated the differential incentives for export at higher stages of manufacture. While a uniform pattern of incentive is generally to be preferred, there is a case for introducing some disincentives for exports of certain primary products where the same product can be easily exported in value added form. I propose to impose an export duty of 10% on exports of certain types of finished leather and on unpolished granite in order to encourage exporters to shift to leather products and polished granite. I am also imposing an export duty of 5% on iron ore. The proposals are expected to yield an additional revenue of Rs.142 crores.

120. I have also proposed certain amendments in the Finance Bill seeking to effect changes in the excise and customs tariff. These amendments are generally enabling provisions and have no revenue significance. Besides, there are proposals for amendment of some of the existing notifications. In order to save the time of the House, I do not propose to recount them.

121. The proposals with regard to changes in excise duty outlined above are likely to yield additional revenue of Rs. 2515.70 crores. The concessions and reliefs announced aggregate to Rs. 304.80 crores. Out of the net additional sharable revenue from excise duties of Rs. 2210.90 crores, the Centre's share would be Rs. 1146.53 crores and the States' share Rs. 1064.37 crores.

122. The net impact of my proposals on customs and excise duties taken together amount to an additional mobilisation of only Rs. 187.55 crores on indirect taxes. Since the loss in customs duties falls entirely on the Centre whereas the gain in excise revenue is shared with the States the impact on the Centre's revenue is a loss of Rs. 876.82 crores while the States will gain as much as Rs. 1064.37 crores.

123. Copies of notifications giving effect to the changes in customs and excise duties effective from the 1st March, 1992, will be laid on the Table of the House in due course.

124. Taking direct and indirect taxes together the changes I have proposed are expected to result in a net revenue loss of Rs.517 crores to the Centre while the States will gain Rs.1500 crores. Consequently the estimated year end budget deficit of the Centre for 1992-93 will be Rs.5389 crores and the fiscal deficit for that year will be Rs.34408 crores.

125. Our nation will remain eternally grateful to Jawaharlal Nehru for his vision and insistence that the social and economic transformation of India had to take place in the framework of an open society, committed to parliamentary democracy and the rule of law. India's development is of tremendous significance for the future of the developing world. To realise our development potential, we have to unshackle the human spirit of creativity, idealism, adventure and enterprise that our people possess in abundant measure. We have to harness all our latent resources for a second industrial revolution and a second agricultural revolution. Our economy, polity and society have to be extraordinarily resilient and alert if we are to take full advantage of the opportunities and to minimise the risks associated with the increasing globalisation of economic processes. We have to accept the need for reform if we are to avoid an increasing marginalisation of India in the evolving world economy. The economic policy changes brought about by our Government in the last eight months are inspired by this vision. Our party is an inheritor of great traditions of national service. True to this heritage, we commit ourselves to providing a firm and purposeful sense of direction to the reform process so that this ancient land of India regains its glory and rightful place in the comity of nations. This budget represents a contribution to the successful implementation of this great national enterprise, of building an India free from the fear of war, want and exploitation, an India worthy of the dreams of the founding fathers of our republic. We shall pay any price, bear any burden, make any sacrifice to realise those dreams. India is on the move again. We shall make the future happen.

126. Sir, I commend the Budget to this august House.

बजट का सार BUDGET AT A GLANCE

व्याख्यात्मक टिप्पणी Explanatory Note

इस पुस्तिका में बजट के अनुमानों को स्थूल समूहों में बांट कर दिखाया जाता है, ताकि बजट को आसानी से समझा जा सके। इस प्रयोजन के लिए प्राप्तियों और व्यय की कतिपय मदों का पुनः समूहीकरण किया गया है। उदाहरण के लिए वाणिज्यिक विभागों के व्यय को, उसमें से उनकी प्राप्तियां घटाकर दिखाया गया है, ताकि लेनदेनों की मात्रा में होने वाली वृद्धि से दोनों खातों के आंकड़ों के परिमाण में वृद्धि न हो पाए। इसी प्रकार, राज्यों को दिए गए ऐसे अल्पावधिक ऋणों और अग्रिमों को, जिनको उसी वर्ष के दौरान वसूल कर लिया गया हो, निवल मात्रा में प्रदर्शित किया गया है। कतिपय ऐसे लेनदेनों को, जिनके कारण नगद रकम की निकासी नहीं होती लेकिन जिनके बारे में समतुल्य प्राप्तियां हो जाती हैं जैसे कि अन्तर्राष्ट्रीय मुद्रा कोष को दिए जाने वाले अंशदान को सम्मिलित नहीं किया गया है, ताकि व्यय की वास्तविक मदों को ही प्रमुखता मिले।

इस पुस्तिका में, राजस्व घाटे और समग्र बजटीय घाटे के साथ-साथ राजकोषीय घाटे को भी दर्शाया गया है। राजस्व घाटे में, राजस्व प्राप्तियों की तुलना में राजस्व व्यय की अधिकता का उल्लेख किया गया है। बजटीय घाटे में कुल प्राप्तियों (राजस्व और पूंजी दोनों ही) की तुलना में कुल व्यय (राजस्व और पूंजी दोनों ही) की अधिकता को दर्शाया गया है। इस अंतर का वित्तपोषण 91 दिवसीय राजकोषीय हुंडियों को जारी करके रिजर्व बैंक से उधार लेकर और नकद बाकी शेष की निकासी करके किया जाता है। राजकोषीय घाटा राजस्व प्राप्तियों और कुछ पूंजीगत प्राप्तियों, जो कि उधार नहीं है और अंततः सरकार को प्राप्त होती है, तथा कुल व्यय, जिसमें से वापसी अदायगियों को घटा कर ऋणों को शामिल किया गया है, के बीच का अंतर है। यह सरकार की सभी स्रोत से कुल उधार संबंधी आवश्यकताओं को दर्शाता है।

The Budget estimates are presented in this document in broad aggregates to facilitate easy understanding. For this purpose certain items of receipts and expenditures have been regrouped. For example, the expenditures of commercial departments have been taken net of their receipts so that increase in the volume of transactions does not inflate the figures on both sides. Similarly, short term loans and advances given to the States and recovered during the same year have been netted. Certain transactions which do not involve cash outgo and are matched by receipts e.g. subscription to International Monetary Fund, have been excluded so that focus is on real items of expenditure.

The document shows, apart from the revenue deficit and overall budgetary deficit, the fiscal deficit also. Revenue deficit refers to the excess of revenue expenditure over revenue receipts. Budgetary deficit refers to the excess of total expenditure (both revenue and capital) over total receipts (both revenue and capital). This gap is financed by borrowing from the Reserve Bank through the issue of 91-day Treasury Bills and draw down of cash balance. Fiscal deficit is the difference between the revenue receipts plus certain capital receipts which are not borrowings and accrue finally to the Government and the total expenditure including loans, net of repayments. This indicates the total borrowing requirements of Government from all sources.

Performance and Prospects

The year 1991-92 has been an exceptionally difficult year for the economy with the deepening of the crisis which began in 1990-91. The balance of payments problems, which emerged in 1990-91, had reached crisis proportions by June 1991. A severe import squeeze, introduced in the course of 1990-91 in response to the shortage of foreign exchange, disrupted industrial production, which began to decline early in the year 1991-92. Inflation, which had begun to accelerate in 1990-91, reached a peak level of 16.7 per cent in August 1991. Growth of real GDP decelerated sharply and is likely to be no more than 2.5 per cent this year.

The new Government which assumed office in June 1991 took a series of corrective measures to bring the situation under control. These included short-term measures aimed at crisis management as well as longer-term measures of structural reform, aimed at improving efficiency and productivity and putting the economy back on the path of sustainable growth with equity and social justice.

I GROWTH PERFORMANCE

The growth of the economy slowed down substantially in 1991-92, partly because of a slowdown in agriculture and partly because of a deceleration in industrial growth. The kharif foodgrain crop in 1991 is estimated to be lower than in the previous year, though some of the loss may be made up in the rabi season. Aggregate agricultural production for the year may not show a decline as the fall in foodgrains production is likely to be offset by a rise in the output of cash crops. For instance, the prospects of the sugarcane crop are excellent, and this year's mustard crop is reported to be good. Nevertheless, agricultural output this year is at best likely to be maintained at last year's level, or show very small growth.

Industrial growth, which had been buoyant in earlier years, had already slowed down considerably in the second half of 1990-91 before turning into a decline by the beginning of 1991-92. The index of industrial production in April-June 1991 was 2.3 per cent lower than a year earlier. The next quarter showed a modest growth of 0.5 per cent, but the following two months again showed a decline of 1 per cent. The decline in the period April-November was 0.9 per cent.

All major industries except beverages, tobacco and cement recorded a lower growth rate in April-September 1991 than in the same period a year earlier. Three categories of industries, viz. capital goods, consumer durables and export-oriented industries were particularly affected. Capital goods industries suffered primarily from a decline in Government investment. The consumer durables sector was adversely affected by high costs of imported inputs following the exchange rate adjustment in July 1991 and the non-availability of imports owing to the import squeeze. Export-oriented industries were faced with recessionary conditions in the industrial economies and a dramatic collapse of demand in the markets of the erstwhile Soviet Union.

The performance of the infrastructure sector, however, was much better than that of manufacturing industries in general. The output of coal in April-December 1991 was 10.9 per cent higher than in the previous year; that of electricity was 9 per cent higher. Performance in the petroleum sector was relatively poor, with crude oil production down by 7.1 per cent and refinery throughput by 2.1 per cent. However, overall energy production was 5-6 per cent higher in 1991-92. Railways' revenue-earning freight traffic was 7.5 per cent higher in April-December 1991. This respectable performance of infrastructure industries suggests that the industrial recession, which has certainly been sharp, need not be prolonged. The underlying supply factors affecting industrial production are performing well and could sustain a quick industrial revival in 1992-93.

Amongst services, financial services are likely to do well, as also transport services. The prospects of construction in the current year are also good judging from trends in cement offtake. These indicators suggest a fairly robust growth in the output of services of perhaps 5-6 per cent. With these estimates of sectoral growth rates, the gross domestic product may show modest growth of about 2 per cent or a little higher in 1991-92.

This sluggish performance, coming after several years of rapid growth, is to be viewed in the context of exceptionally difficult conditions in two respects : a grave external payments crisis and a high rate of inflation. Both reached their peak in the middle of 1991. Foreign currency assets had declined to Rs.2383 crore (US $1.1 billion) at the end of June 1991, which was barely enough to finance two weeks of imports. The annual rate of inflation, which began to accelerate in 1990, reached a peak of 16.7 per cent in the fourth week of August 1991.

The new Government moved rapidly to implement a programme of macro-economic stabilization to restore viability to the balance of payments and to bring inflation under control. It also undertook a far reaching programme of structural reform, which included bold initiatives in trade and industrial policy aimed at improving the efficiency of the economy and increasing its international competitiveness. This restructuring was essential to ensure longer-term viability in the balance of payments and to restore the conditions for rapid growth.

The measures have had some success. There has been a marked improvement in foreign exchange reserves, with reserves reaching Rs.11410 crore ($4.4 billion) in the third week of February 1992. The rate of inflation has also declined from the peak level of 16.7 per cent reached in August 1991 to 11.8 per cent in February 1992. However, neither the balance of payments crisis nor the problem of inflation has been overcome. A lasting solution to these problems calls for sustained corrective action which must continue to receive top priority in 1992-93. The objective of policy in the coming year must be to consolidate the gains made thus far and to bring these problems firmly under control, while simultaneously raising the rate of growth, and restoring the Government's capacity to pursue the basic social goals of generating employment, removing poverty and promoting equity.

II THE PAYMENTS CRISIS

The first signs of the current payments crisis became evident in the second half of 1990-91 when the Gulf War led to a sharp increase in oil prices. Foreign exchange reserves began to decline from September 1990. They declined from a level of Rs.5480 crore ($3.11 billion) at the end of August 1990 to Rs.1666 crore ($896 million) on 16 January 1991. During this period the Government took recourse to the IMF by drawing Rs. 1177 crore (US$660 million) from the reserve tranche during July- September 1990. Again in January 1991 the Government made a drawing of Rs. 1884 crore ($1.025 billion) under the compensatory and contingency financing facility (CCFF) and a drawing of Rs. 1450 crore ($789 million) under a first credit tranche arrangement (FCT). When applying for a FCT drawing, the Government had indicated that it would be applying for an upper credit tranche (UCT) later in the year after presentation of the Budget. The purchases from the International Monetary Fund in January 1991 amounted to Rs.3334 crore ($1.814 billion). Nevertheless, the decline in reserves continued unabated (Figure 1).

was a sharp rise in the imports of oil and refined products (POL) (Figure 2). From an average of Rs.499 crore ($287 million) per month in June-August 1990, POL imports rose sharply to Rs.1221 crore ($671 million) per month in the following six months. There was a sharp rise in world oil prices on the annexation of Kuwait, and spot purchases made to prevent the emergence of shortages in the domestic market were very costly. The rise in the cost of POL imports more than accounted for the rise in the trade deficit from an average of Rs.619 crore (($356 million) per month in June-August 1990 to Rs.1229 crore ($677 million) per month in the following six months (Figure 3). The effect of the rise in oil prices was aggravated by the events that followed. Indian workers employed in Kuwait had to be airlifted back to India, and their remittances ceased to flow in. Further, the consequent UN trade embargo on Iraq led to the cessation of exports to Iraq and Kuwait. The loss of exports to West Asia is estimated to have been about Rs.500 crore ($280 million).

The payments crisis of 1990-91 was not, however, due simply to a deterioration in the trade account; it was accompanied by other adverse developments on the capital account reflecting the loss of confidence in the Government's ability to manage the situation. Short-term credits began to dry up; this imposed a severe strain on the balance of payments position. In 1989-90, canalizing agencies had increased their recourse to short-term external credit by about $ 2 billion. Such increase had to be restricted to a level of $ 645 million in 1990-91. Short-term credits by way of bankers' acceptance lines and six-month credits were available at 0.25 per cent above LIBOR (the standard reference interest rate in international commercial borrowings) until November 1990. Thereafter the cost went up to 0.65 per cent above in March 1991; it rose to 1.25 per cent above by May that year. By June the overall cost of credit was far higher. More recently, margins over LIBOR have settled at 2 per cent above.

The volume of commercial borrowings abroad with maturity over a year (and going up to 12 years) approved in the past three years is shown in Table 2. Such medium-term loans are intended to be used by financial institutions and public sector enterprises to finance capital goods imports. They impart flexibility to the funding pattern, and facilitate cash management. They were also relatively cheap as long as India's credit rating was good. External commercial borrowings approved by the Government amounted to Rs.5479 crore in 1989-90. This came down to Rs.3414 crore in 1990-91. In the first half of 1991-92 the volume of commercial borrowings approved was only Rs.1559 crore (Table 2). The fall was entirely in bank loans and in the bonds placed abroad. These were replaced to some extent by export credits, which usually are guaranteed by the official export credit guarantee institutions of exporting countries.

The drying up of commercial loans in 1990-91 was accompanied by a net outflow of NRI deposits which began in October 1990 and continued in 1991 (Figure 4). NRI deposits, although ostensibly in the nature of time deposits for different periods, are in fact withdrawable on demand if the depositor is prepared to lose some interest. They are thus in effect a form of short-term debt. The outflow from NRI deposits was very substantial. In April-June 1991 it was $952 million. It continued at the monthly average rate of $120 million in July-September and then declined to $83 million in October-December. It was reversed only in January 1992.

The rapid loss of reserves had prompted the Government to take a number of counter-measures in the second half of 1990-91. In October 1990, Reserve Bank of India imposed a cash margin of 50 per cent on imports other than those of capital goods. Capital goods imports were allowed only against foreign sources of credit. In December 1990, the Government imposed a surcharge of 25 per cent on the prices of petroleum products except domestic gas. It also raised auxiliary customs duties. The cash margin imposed by Reserve Bank was raised to 133.3 per cent in March 1991 and 200 per cent in April 1991. In May, Reserve Bank of India imposed a 25 per cent surcharge on interest on bank credit for imports. These stringent measures had the expected effect of forcing a considerable degree of import compression. Non-oil imports in October-December 1990 were 16.8 per cent higher in dollar terms than a year earlier. In the next quarter, non-oil imports were 4.1 per cent below the level in the corresponding period of the previous year . In April-June 1991, they were 23.1 per cent lower in dollar terms.

The Crisis in 1991-92

By June 1991, it had become clear that import compression was proving counter-productive as an instrument for management of the balance of payments. The drastic effect of import compression is illustrated by comparing the import figures for April-September 1990-91 with those for 1991-92 (Table 3). Merchandise imports (in terms of US dollars) fell 17.5 per cent between April-September 1990 and April-September 1991. Essential imports consisting of oil and refined products, foodgrains, edible oils, fertilisers and non-ferrous metals fell 7.5 per cent. Capital goods imports fell 17.2 per cent. Mainly export-related imports fell 14.8 per cent. Of the rest, bulk imports - steel, coal, ores, paper and pulses - fell 25.4 per cent, mostly because of deliberate policy, and the rest fell 32.8 per cent. The proportion of these residual goods in total imports had fallen to 13.5 per cent by April-September 1991; there was not much room left for their compression. Hence further import reduction would have had to fall on essential inputs into industry and transport, petroleum products and fertilizers. As Table 4 shows, the adverse effect of import compression was already being felt in terms of a decline in the index of industrial production during 1991-92. Further compression would have entailed an even sharper fall in industrial production, disruption of transport and a fall in exports as imports of inputs for them were reduced. Import compression had reached a stage when it threatened widespread loss of production and employment, and verged on economic chaos.

By the beginning of 1991-92 it had become clear that the payments crisis was no longer primarily due to the trade deficit, which had come down from Rs.1412 crore ($781 million) per month in October-December 1990 to Rs.710 crore ($382 million) per month in January-March 1991 and further to Rs.361 crore ($172 million) per month in April-June 1991. The outflow of Foreign Currency Non-Resident (FCNR) deposits, however, had accelerated from $59 million a month in October-December 1990 to $76 million in January-March 1991 and $310 million in April-June 1991. There was also evidence that expectations of default, and therefore of devaluation, were creating longer leads in the payments for imports and lags in the realisation of export proceeds which had the effect of exacerbating the foreign exchange shortage.

By June 1991, the balance of payments crisis had become owerwhelmingly a crisis of confidence - of confidence in the Government's ability to manage the balance of payments. The loss of confidence had itself undermined the Government's capability to deal with the crisis by closing off all recourse to external credit. A default on payments, for the first time in our history had become a serious possibility in June 1991.

A default is essentially a failure to repay debts, but its ramifications are never confined to debt. All trade requires credit, even if it is for a short period - at least for the period between the shipment of goods and their receipt. A default in payments inevitably leads to a breakdown in credit availability and in normal payments arrangements. Suppliers become reluctant to sell goods and services and insist on advance payments through banks of their own country. Typically, this leads to severe trade disruption which in turn forces severe and prolonged import compression, and results in shortages, industrial dislocation, severe unemployment and inevitably, in very high inflation.

Policy Response

The new Government which assumed office in June 1991 had to act swiftly to deal with the situation and bring the economy back from the brink of default. It became necessary to take emergency action to prevent a default in payments. The Government leased 20 tonnes of gold out of its stock to the State Bank India to enable it to sell the gold abroad with an option to repurchase it at the end of six months. This export took place in May 1991. In addition, the Government allowed Reserve Bank of India to ship 47 tonnes of gold to the Bank of England in July. This helped to raise about $ 600 million. The exchange rate of the Rupee was also adjusted in July 1991 to bring it to a credible level which could be defended.

It was evident that the economy needed substantial reforms if the crisis was to be fully overcome. The new Government moved urgently to implement a programme of macro-economic stabilization through fiscal correction. Moreover, to impart inherent competitive strength to the industrial economy, a programme of structural reforms of trade, industrial and public sector policies was also initiated. The objective is to evolve an industrial and trade policy framework which would promote efficiency, reduce the bias in favour of excessive capital-intensity and encourage an employment-oriented pattern of industrialization. The four major policy initiatives taken by the Government to fundamentally address the balance of payments problem and the structural rigidities are discussed below.

Fiscal Correction

A key element in the stabilization effort was the effort to restore fiscal discipline. Both the balance of payments problems which were building up over the past few years and the persistent inflationary pressure were the result of large budgetary fiscal deficits which characterized the economy year after year. The budget deficit reached Rs. 10,992 crore in 1989-90, and Rs.10,772 crore in the Revised Estimates in 1990-91. A reversal of the trend of fiscal expansionism was essential to restore macro-economic balance in the economy.

The signal was given in the Budget for 1991-92 which was presented on 24 July. The Budget projected a sharp decline in the budget deficit to Rs.7719 crore in 1991-92. Similarly, the fiscal deficit, which represents the overall resource gap of the Government, was projected to decline from Rs.43,331 crore in 1990-91 to Rs.37,772 crore in 1991-92. These improvements in fiscal performance were made possible by the decision to abolish export subsidies, to increase fertilizer prices, as well as the steps taken to keep non-plan expenditures (including defence expenditure) in check.

Trade Policy Reforms

New initiatives were taken in trade policy to create an environment which would provide a stimulus to export while at the same time reducing the degree of regulation and licensing control on foreign trade. The exchange rate adjustment of 18 per cent in the value of the rupee was designed to provide a substantial stimulus to exports.

This change was accompanied by several other changes in trade policy. The more important trade policy reforms introduced in 1991-92 are as follows:

(i) A large part of administered licensing of imports was replaced by import entitlements linked to export earnings. These import entitlements, renamed Eximscrips, are freely tradeable and attract a premium in the market. For most exports a uniform rate of 30 per cent of Eximscrips was made applicable, though some exports were entitled to higher rates.

(ii) Eximscrips could be used to import any item in the limited permissible list, the non-sensitive canalized list, all OGL items for actual users and non-OGL capital goods which were not in the restricted list.

(iii) The Advance Licensing system for exports was simplified so as to improve exporters' access to imported inputs at duty-free rates.

(iv) Permission to import capital goods was given without clearance from the indigenous availability angle provided this import was fully covered by foreign equity or was up to 25 per cent of the value of plant and machinery, subject to a maximum of Rs.2 crore.

(v) Export and Trading Houses and Star Trading Houses were permitted a larger range of imports. 51 per cent foreign equity is also now allowed in Trading Houses.

(vi) The scope of canalization for both exports and imports was narrowed.

(vii) Actual user requirements for the import of capital goods, raw materials and components under OGL was removed; and (viii) Established exporters are now permitted to maintain foreign currency accounts and to raise external credits to finance their trade transactions.

The effect of these reforms was to reduce the degree of licensing in import trade, to broaden, to enhance and harmonize export incentives and to introduce a self-balancing mechanism where imports would be automatically regulated by the availability of Eximscrips through export earnings.

Industrial Policy Reforms

In order to consolidate the gains already achieved during the 1980s, and to provide greater competitive stimulus to the domestic industry, a series of reforms were introduced in Industrial Policy. The new industrial policy of 24 July 1991 sought substantially to deregulate industry so as to promote the growth of a more efficient and competitive industrial economy. Industrial policy reforms announced in July 1991 should be seen as being complementary to those undertaken in trade and fiscal policies and in the management of the exchange rate and the financial sector. The central elements of these reforms were as follows :

(i) Industrial licensing was abolished for all projects except in 18 industries where strategic or environmental concerns are paramount or where industries produce goods with exceptionally high import content. With this, 80 per cent of industry has been taken out of the licensing framework.

(ii) The MRTP Act was amended to eliminate the need for prior approval by large companies for capacity expansion or diversification. This will enable Indian firms to become large enough to compete effectively in global markets.

(iii) The requirement of phased manufacturing programmes was discontinued for all new projects.

(iv) Areas reserved for the public sector were narrowed down, and greater participation by private sector was permitted in core and basic industries. In the place of the 17 areas earlier reserved for investment by the public sector, only 8 such areas are now reserved. These eight are mainly those involving strategic and security concerns.

(v) Government clearance for the location of projects was dispensed with except in the case of 23 cities with a population of more than one million.

(vi) Small-scale enterprises were given the option to offer up to 24 per cent of their share-holding to large-scale and other industrial undertakings. This will provide them with greater access to capital and technology.

(vii) Loan agreements of the financial institutions with privately managed firms were earlier required to provide for the right of the financial institutions to convert the loans into equity. In August 1991, the institutions were permitted not to insist on this provision in future loans unless they felt it necessary for commercial reasons. In December 1991, the institutions were permitted to delete the provision from past loans also subject to a revision of the interest rate where appropriate.

(viii) A National Renewal Fund has been set up with a corpus of Rs. 200 crore to ensure that the costs of technological change and modernization of industry would not be borne by workers. It will be used to provide a safety net to workers in sick and non-viable enterprises, and to finance their retraining and redeployment.

Along with a reform of industrial policies, steps were also taken to facilitate the inflow of direct foreign investment. These non-debt-creating inflows will reduce reliance on fixed-interest debt and also bring in new technology, marketing expertise and modern managerial practices. The following measures were taken in this context :

(i) The limit of foreign equity holdings was raised from 40 to 51 per cent in a wide range of priority industries. However, foreign exchange outflow on account of dividends on additional equity will be balanced by export earnings. Such foreign equity participation now has automatic approval and is cleared by Reserve Bank of India.

(ii) The procedures for investment in non-priority industries have been streamlined. The Foreign Investment Promotion Board has been established to negotiate with large international firms and to expedite the clearances required. The FIPB also considers individual cases involving foreign equity participation over 51 per cent.

(iii) Technology imports for priority industries are automatically approved for royalty payments up to 5 per cent of domestic sales and 8 per cent of export sales or for lumpsum payments of Rs.1 crore.

Deregulation will reduce the role of Government regulatory agencies. They will be reorganized and their staff redeployed. For the economy as a whole, delays in project implementation will be greatly reduced. Increased competition will lead to enhanced pressure on enterprises to reduce their costs and to improve quality.

The full outcome of the industrial policy changes will materialize after some time; but the early results are already visible. The response to the new industrial policy has been very encouraging. The number of investment approvals given in 1991 has risen to 5538 from 3335 in 1990. The figure for 1991 includes 3095 Industrial Entrepreneurs' Memoranda filed under the new policy, which would have earlier required letters of intent or industrial licences. 3897 investment proposals were cleared between the announcement of the new policy on 24 July 1991 and 31 January 1992. During the same period, 505 foreign technology import agreements were also approved. The effects of this increased domestic investment activity in terms of higher capacity and output will emerge after a lag when these investment plans fructify.

Changes brought about in policies towards direct foreign investment have also evoked a strong positive response from foreign companies. In 1991, a total of 244 cases of foreign equity participation with a proposed equity investment of $504 million was approved. In the previous three years, 1988, 1989 and 1990 the total inflow of private foreign equity was $95 million, $120 million and $50 million respectively. The increase in domestic investment activity and inflow of foreign capital will strengthen our industrial capabilities and contribute to exports.

Public Sector Reforms

The public sector was originally conceived as holding the commanding heights of the economy and leading technological advance. It was also intended to generate investible surpluses and become an engine for self-reliant growth. The public sector has contributed significantly to the diversification of India's industrial structure. But its contribution in terms of generating internal resources for further expansion has fallen short of expectations, and its inability to do so has now become a major constraint on economic growth.

The performance of the public sector deteriorated sharply in 1990-91 when the net profit (after tax) of all non-departmental central public sector enterprises declined to Rs. 2368 crore from the level of Rs. 3789 crore reached in 1989-90. The poor performance has continued in 1991-92. It is imperative that the public sector attains the objectives originally set for it. This will require a sustained improvement in productivity and profitability. The budgetary support to public sector enterprises will need to be scaled down and they will be expected to maintain financial discipline in their operation. The sector should be exposed to competitive pressures wherever possible. Some of the enterprises can be restructured so as to improve their capital base and access to the market.

To enable the public sector to work efficiently, the public sector units have to be given the greatest autonomy in their operations. A system of full responsibility and complete accountability will have to be enforced on public sector managements. In 1991-92 the Government undertook a limited disinvestment of a part of public sector equity to the public through public financial institutions and mutual funds in order to raise non-inflationary finance for development. The disinvestment will also bring in greater public accountability and help to create a new culture in their working which would improve efficiency. The objective of public sector policy is to improve the operational efficiency of these units and return them to their original goals. Recognizing that sickness is a serious problem in many public sector units, the government amended the Sick Industrial Companies Act to bring public sector undertakings also within its purview. This makes sick public sector units subject to the same discipline as private sector units including reference to the BIFR for identification of a viable restructuring package or closure as the case may be.

Balance of Payments Financing

The measures of fiscal correction and structural reform described above were expected to bring about an improvement in the balance of payments in the medium term. However, for the immediate future substantial financing of balance of payments was unavoidable if import compression was to be relaxed. Accordingly, the Government attempted to mobilize support for the balance of payments from multilateral financial institutions -- the International Monetary Fund, the World Bank and the Asian Development Bank -- as well as from bilateral donors.

As pressure on the reserves mounted, the Government availed itself of the facilities available from International Monetary Fund. In July-September 1990 it withdrew the reserve tranche (RT) of SDR 490 million (Table 5). In December 1990 it applied for the first credit tranche (FCT) of SDR 552 million, and negotiated drawals under the contingency compensatory finance facility (CCFF) which totalled SDR 1.352 billion between January and September 1991. In addition, the Government has drawn a total of SDR 270 million under the upper credit tranche standby arrangement and a further SDR 461 million is due to be disbursed in April 1992. A Structural Adjustment Loan of $500 million has been negotiated with the World Bank, of which $300 million has been drawn. Additional fast disbursing assistance was tied up with the Asian Development Bank and with some of the bilateral donors.

Another important initiative taken by the Government to meet the urgent need for balance of payments financing was the announcement of two schemes designed to encourage the inflow of capital funds from abroad. The India Development Bond Scheme and the Immunity Scheme for repatriation of funds held abroad were introduced in October 1991. The schemes have proved to be highly successful. India Development Bonds mobilised $1.605 billion, and the Immunity Scheme, $793 million.

The Outcome

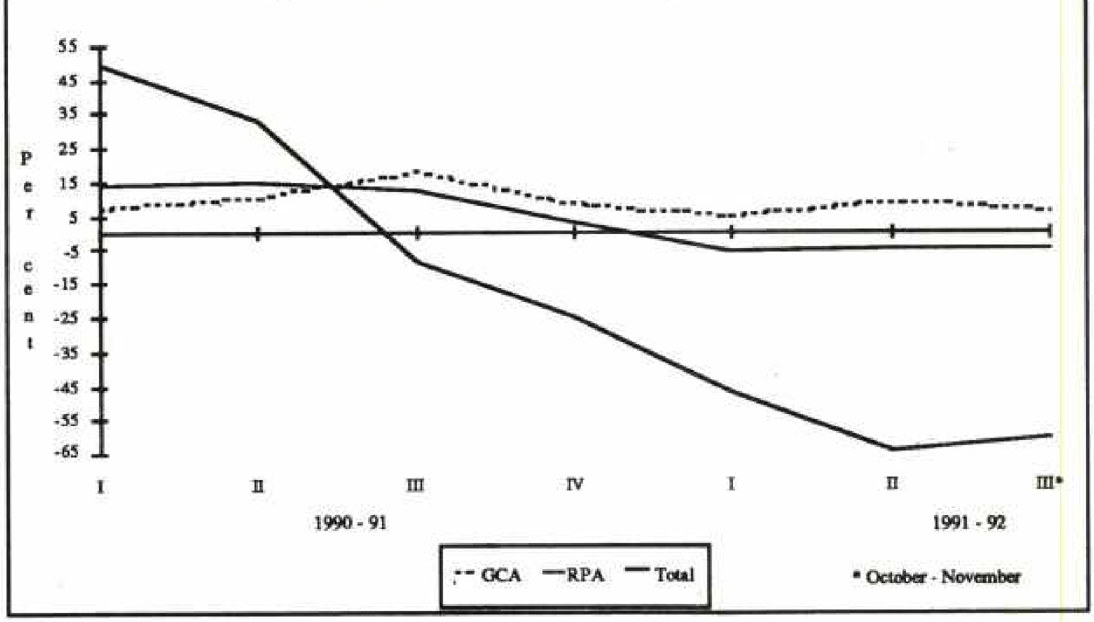
The early results of the crisis management effort in 1991-92 have been encouraging: foreign currency assets, which had declined to $1.1 billion at their lowest point in June 1991, had risen to about $4.4 billion by 19 February 1992. In addition to the buildup of foreign exchange reserves, the Government was able to bring back the gold pledged to the Bank of England and the Bank of Japan in July. The value of this gold was approximately $600 million. $1.605 billion was received on India Development Bonds, which is held by the State Bank of India. Thus there was an increase in external assets of about $4.6

billion, against which must be placed an increase in foreign liabilities of about $3.2 billion. (These figures are preliminary and are given only to indicate orders of magnitude.)

The buildup of reserves in the course of 1991-92 was necessary to restore confidence in the system, but it also meant that the additional resources mobilized from the multilateral financial institutions and the IDB and Immunity Schemes were primarily used for building up reserves and not to liberalize imports, which remained severely constrained in 1991-92 as is evident from Table 4. With the buildup of reserves, a gradual relaxation of import restrictions was introduced in the second half of 1991-92, specially in December 1991 and January 1992. The restrictions on imports of raw materials and components imposed by Reserve Bank of India have now been removed, and on imports of capital goods substantially relaxed.

A lasting solution to our payments problem can only be found in a substantial improvement in the country's export performance. Exports performed extremely well in the four-year period from 1986-87 to 1989-90 when they grew at an average rate of 19 per cent per year in dollar terms. The momentum was lost in 1990-91 when export growth decelerated to 9 per cent. Conditions worsened further in 1991-92 as the full effect of import compression began to be felt in the industrial sector (Figure 5). The disruption in our Rupee trade with the erstwhile Soviet Union has also hurt exports. Exports to Rupee Payment area have declined by more than 50 per cent. The full positive effects of trade policy reforms have yet to emerge. Exporting firms are still adjusting to the changed regime. The lag in performance of exports consequent upon policy changes is understandable. Some of the positive effects of the trade policy changes would perhaps be reflected in the performance during the last quarter of 1991-92, the data for which are not yet available. But, the full impact on export expansion, of trade reforms already undertaken will be visible only during 1992-93. It is essential to restore to India's exports the momentum that was evident only two years ago.

Fig. 5 YEAR-TO-YEAR CHANGES IN QUARTERLY EXPORTS



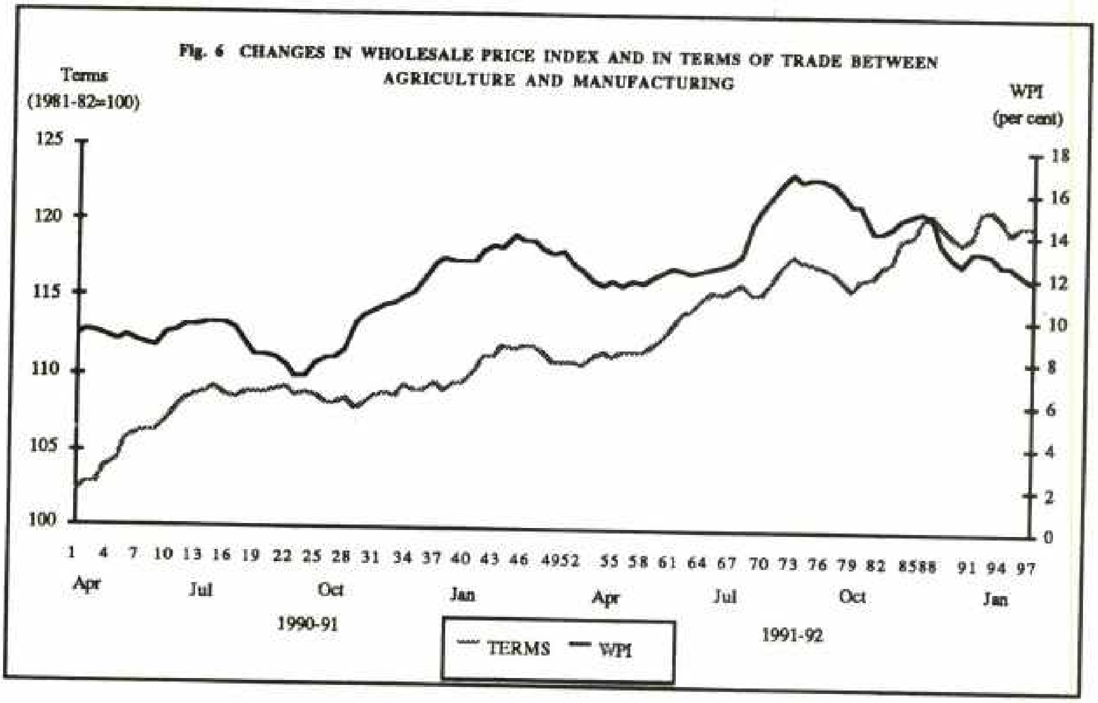
Four types of adjustments are called for a broad-based, rapid and sustained growth of exports in the next four years.

(a) Reduction in domestic excess demand: The balance of payments deficit represents the excess of domestic demand for goods and services over domestic supply. In order to correct it domestic demand will have to be restrained and supply increased. Since the macro-economic imbalance is also the basic cause of inflation, this is dealt with more fully in the next section. It will be necessary to restrain the degree of excess spending by the Government to correct the balance of payments. At the same time it will be necessary to ensure that any reduction in aggregate demand is brought about without hurting production and that it is shared equitably by different sections of the population.

(b) Enhanced Competitiveness: By mid-1991 domestic prices had become seriously misaligned with international prices. This required two changes: a change in the exchange rate of the Rupee, and a reduction in the relative prices of those products which were costly vis-a-vis competing goods abroad. The first step was taken by means of a downward adjustment of about 18 per cent in the external value of the Rupee on 1 and 3 July 1991. The second step would require a phasing down of import restrictions and a reduction in the high levels of protection which characterize Indian industries. Progress in this regard is at present constrained by the grave balance of payments position as well as by the importance of import duties as a source of government revenue; however, it will be necessary to bring down trade restrictions as payments and fiscal conditions permit.

(c) Deregulation: One of the obstacles to exports lies in the cumbersome administrative procedures involved, arising from controls over imports (and on inputs required for exports) and exports, exchange control and also customs procedures. The Eximscrip scheme was designed partly to reduce the rigours of import control. Trade and customs classifications of goods were harmonized in October 1991, and new, simplified documentation of import control and customs was introduced. Simultaneously with the devaluation of the Rupee, Cash Compensatory Support for exports was withdrawn, thereby eliminating the work involved in its administration. Simplification of trade-related procedures must continue; the aim should be to make international trade as easy as domestic trade in respect of procedures.

(d) Capability for self-improvement: World markets are more competitive than some hitherto sheltered domestic markets. If our agricultural and industrial products are to compete internationally, their producers will have to improve their own competitive position continuously through technological and managerial improvements and adapt themselves rapidly to changes in international market conditions. This capacity for unceasing adaptation and innovation would need to be developed.



III INFLATION

The current inflationary spiral began in October 1990. In August and September 1990, the annual rate of inflation, as measured by the wholesale price index on a point-to-point basis, was only about 7 per cent. From October onwards it rose rapidly to reach 13.7 per cent in February 1991. After a brief slowing down in April and May, this process of accelerating inflation continued until August 1991, peaking in the fourth week of that month at 16.7 per cent. Since then the rate of inflation has declined; by the end of January it had gone down to 11.8 per cent (Figure 6).

The causes of the current round of inflation need to be understood clearly if we are to control it effectively. A number of demand-pull and cost-push factors have been mentioned as potential causes. On examination, excess demand is found to be the more important cause. This is indicated by the pattern of price changes, with primary commodities, particularly agricultural goods, leading the inflationary surge. Manufactured goods prices have not even kept pace with average inflation, and have lagged well behind the rise in agricultural prices. The inter-sectoral terms of trade for agriculture improved by 15 per cent vis-a-vis industry between April 1991 and January 1992.

Along with demand-pull factors which are more important, supply factors have also played their role in the current inflationary process. Supply factors determine the pattern of relative price changes, as overall excess demand puts greatest pressure on prices in sectors which have low elasticity of supply or which face supply constraints. At the start of the current inflationary phase, the prices of fuels and lubricants as well of primary goods jumped sharply. The rise in the former was triggered by the supply disruption and the increase in oil prices resulting from the Gulf War. The rise in agricultural prices, on the other hand, was fuelled by a rather poor kharif crop of 1990 which followed on the heels of a poor rabi crop earlier in the same year. As a consequence, relative prices of both primary commodities and fuel and lubricants rose.

Imports could not be used to increase supplies and dampen prices because of the severe balance of payments problems being faced during this year. The resulting relative scarcity of primary goods also generated inflationary expectations which spread to all sectors of the economy and encouraged inventory accumulation. The sharp increase in procurement prices for foodgrains over the last two years and some cash crops has also contributed to inflationary pressures.

The excess demand pressures in the economy were primarily generated by expansionary fiscal policies of Central and State Governments in previous years. The investment expenditure of Central and State Government combined has considerably exceeded their savings. Although Government investment as percentage of GDP declined, the decline in Government savings was even faster. Not only has the Government sector borrowed from domestic savings pool to finance investment in recent years, Government consumption expenditure has also come to be financed out of borrowings. Gross savings of the Central Government have been persistently negative; in 1990-91 these amounted to 1.9 per cent of GDP (Figure 6). The excess demand of the Government, represented by its excess of investment over saving, has been met from three sources : domestic borrowing, foreign borrowing and borrowing from Reserve Bank of India. As Figure 7 shows, Government borrowings in the domestic capital markets have financed only about 70 per cent of Government-financed capital formation and excess consumption in recent years. The rest came from borrowings from Reserve Bank of India and borrowings abroad. A large part of Government commercial borrowings in the domestic market are from the banking system, which lends to the Government through the operation of the the Statutory Liquidity Ratio (SLR). Over the years, the statutory liquidity ratio has risen to 38.5 per cent. The return on Government securities issued to meet the SLR requirements is low. Further increase in the SLR is not possible because it erodes the banks' ability to finance productive investment in the economy. There is a strong case for lowering it. If it is brought down, however, the access of the Government to private savings through the banking system will decline.

In an open economy, the excess of expenditure over domestic borrowing would spill over into a balance of payments deficit. India's balance of payments position is so constrained that such a relief is not always available. Foreign borrowings are no longer freely available to finance such expenditures or to moderate price increases through imports.

Figure 6 also brings out the connection between domestic and foreign savings which are alternative sources for financing domestic investment. If the recourse to foreign borrowings is to be reduced, either domestic investment must be reduced with undesirable consequences, or domestic savings must be raised. There is thus an unavoidable connection between improving the balance of payments and improving the domestic savings-investment balance. As the leading excess investor and consumer as well as borrower from abroad, the Government bears the prime responsibility in both respects: it needs to bring down its dissavings.

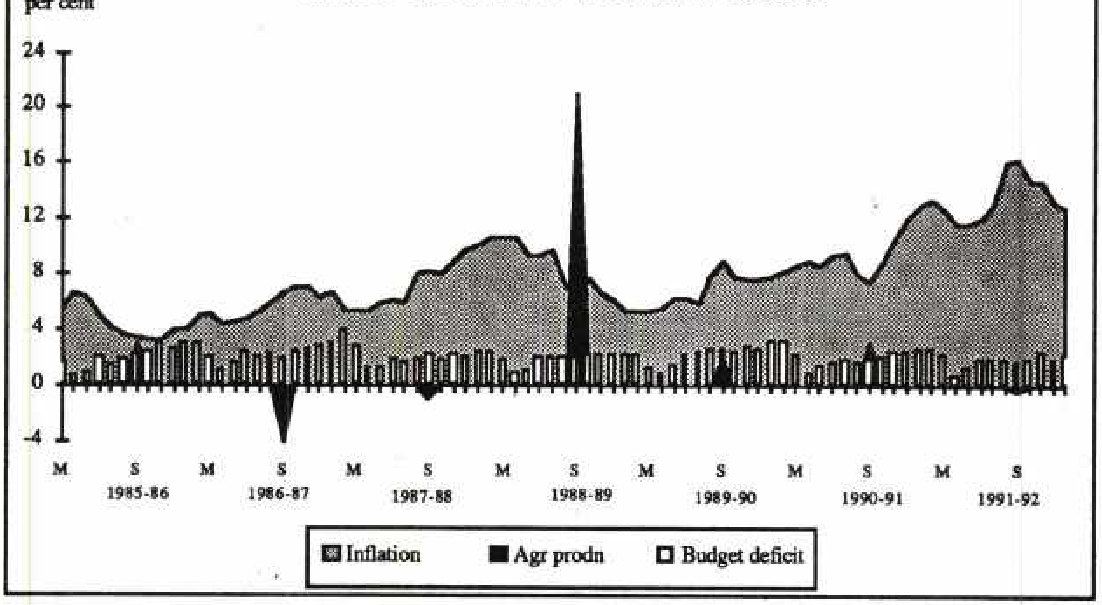

Fig. 8 INFLATION, CHANGES IN AGRICULTURAL OUTPUT, AND RATIO OF BUDGET DEFICIT TO GDP, 1985-86 TO 1991-92

Apart from commercial borrowings and external borrowings, the third source of financing for the Government is borrowings from Reserve Bank of India. This is directly connected to the expansion of money supply and consequently to inflation. The monetized deficit (that is, the part of the fiscal deficit that leads to an increase in money supply) rose from 1.6 per cent of GDP in 1988-89 to 3.1 per cent in 1989-90 and 2.8 per cent in 1990-91. Even within the year, the monetized deficit of the Central Government shows a fair degree of correspondence with the rate of inflation (Figure 8). Apart from the immediate net increase in expenditure, monetization of the deficit builds up a liquidity overhang which fuels a general increase in demand in succeeding years. The Budget for 1991-92 was designed to bring down the monetized deficit to 1.3 per cent of GDP from 2.8 per cent in 1990-91. The effect of fiscal correction is likely to be felt only by the last quarter. Its impact has, however, been offset to some extent by the buildup of foreign exchange reserves after July 1991, which have replenished money supply (M3).

Thus the Government needs to reduce its reliance on all the three present sources of funds: compulsory borrowings through the banking system, the monetized deficit, and foreign savings.

In order to reduce the fiscal deficit, the Government has had to permit an increase in some administered prices of basic goods and services. These price rises have been due for some time. They could not be avoided any longer if fiscal deficits had to be reduced. Losses of public sector enterprises which result from not permitting an increase in administered prices are financed from the general Budget. They lead to budgetary deficits and to an increase in borrowings from Reserve Bank of India. Admittedly, a rise in administered prices does raise costs in the user sectors. However, if fiscal and monetary policies effectively control aggregate demand, the increased costs cannot generate an inflationary spiral. By contrast, an increase in the budget deficit would intensity generalized inflationary pressures in the economy.

Inflation has an adverse effect on the standards of living of the poorer sections, especially those whose incomes are not indexed to price increases. The Government is conscious of the need to mitigate these adverse effects as far as possible. Thus, the public distribution system has been further expanded to cover 1700 far-flung and disadvantaged blocks. In addition to regular PDS supplies, 1.5 million tonnes of foodgrains have been off-loaded in open market sales between November 1991 and January 1992 through the Food Corporation of India (FCI). Imports of edible oils have been stepped up in recent months. The Government will do all at its command to break the inflationary expectations and prevent speculators and hoarders from making unjustified profits.

Other measures which have to be taken for lowering the rate of inflation in the economy are :

(i) Reducing subsidies and external support to produotion enterprises so as to make them more responsive to price and demand changes. In some cases today the enterprises are more concerned about the fiscal concessions and subsidies which they are receiving than with earning profits from sales. This should change.

(ii) Ensuring that buffer stock operations for foodgrains and intervention in agricultural markets are counter-cyclical. Thus in years of relatively poor harvest, the FCI should procure a lower percentage of market arrivals and off load larger stocks in the market. In good years the procurement can be higher and be used to build up stocks.

(iii) Encouraging savings to remain high not only as a proportion of GDP but in relation to demand for investment funds in the economy.

(iv) Keeping entry barriers low in the industrial sector and improving industry's access to imported inputs at low tariffs.

(v) Improving technological and managerial capabilities with a view to shortening the response time of enterprises to price and demand changes, both in the domestic and international markets.

(vi) Improving operational efficiency and expanding capacity in infrastructural industries. This would require an overhaul of the inherited organizational structures in these sectors and greater use of markets in determining their operations.

With the above measures, it will be possible to make the economy more inflation-proof and more dynamic.

IV GROWTH AND EQUITY

The crisis of last summer has been brought under control. This does not mean that the problems have been overcome: the balance of payments will continue to be critical in the coming year, and there is some way to go before we can say that inflation has been contained. But both problems have been made more manageable; the Government can now give a credible assurance that if we continue in the policy directions worked out in recent months, a considerably better economic performance is within reach, and with it, better living and working conditions for the people.

After a long period of relatively slow and stable growth of 3.5 per cent a year, the Indian economy achieved a marked acceleration in the growth rate to 5.5 per cent in the 1980s. The acceleration was accompanied by several indications of improved performance. Capital-output ratios showed some decline. There was a distinct fall in the proportion of the poor in total population. The decline in India's share in world markets was halted. However, if the average standard of living is to be significantly improved, and more and qualitatively better employment is to be generated, the growth rate needs to be significantly stepped up.

Our past performance leads to a certain conservatism in assessing our prospects. But much more rapid growth is possible, as our neighbouring countries further east have demonstrated. Our people are as talented, and our resource base is at least as good. There is every reason to aspire towards a substantial improvement in our growth rate. The living standards of the poorest can only be raised if labour surpluses disappear and workers get the choice of moving into more productive occupations. Once growth exceeds the level at which new employment is simply accommodating the growing labour force, and labour begins to move to occupations with higher productivity, growth also begins to reduce poverty and improve income distribution. The process must, however, continue to be reinforced by special programmes aimed at providing direct support for income generation and employment among the poor and weaker sections of our society.

The availability of foreign exchange has again emerged as a dominant constraint on the growth of the economy. The analysis of the balance of payments crisis above led to the conclusion that the only long-term solution to the crisis lay in a rise in exports. The resources provided by the international institutions and friendly countries are in essence transitional. Foreign direct investment will play a role in improving the standards of technology and management. In comparison to domestic investment, however, the contribution of foreign investment is bound to remain minor. The balance of payments problem would have to be resolved largely with our own resources and ingenuity. This illustrates the general proposition that there is no alternative to self-reliance.

The analysis of inflation concluded that whilst a policy of demand restraint was unavoidable to control inflation in the short run, a more effective and durable way of stabilizing prices in the long run was to improve the supply response to price changes. This required the promotion of savings on the one hand, and the development of improved organizational structures in agriculture and industry on the other. These would make the producers more adaptable and innovative.

The current inflation has also highlighted the crucial role of agriculture in our economy. Inadequate growth of agricultural output has led not only to general inflation, but also to a relatively faster rise in agricultural than in industrial prices. With deteriorating terms of trade, relative profitability in the industrial sector has tended to decline. There has ensued an industrial recession in which industrial investment has slowed down. There will also be concomitant depressive effects on industrial profits and wages. Rapid industrial growth requires an acceleration in agricultural output.

On the basis of this analysis, seven major areas of policy reform emerge: fiscal policy, trade policy, industrial policy, financial policy, agricultural policy, poverty alleviation policy and human resource policy. The reforms have just begun, but the broad outlines of a programme can even now be defined.

(a) Fiscal policy: The immediate aim of fiscal policy must be to improve the fiscal balance in order to eliminate the inflationary pressure emanating from the budget deficit. The other objectives of fiscal policy reform would be to stop further accumulation of public debt; to reduce the level of subsidies in the economy and eliminate open-ended cross-subsidization; to direct Government expenditure towards providing essential public services of a high quality, and finally to restore the Government's capacity to make strategic investments in infrastructure and human resources, guide the economy and look after the weak and the less privileged.

(b) Trade policy: Decades of growth under a balance of payments constraint and high protection levels have resulted in a dualistic production structure. Some sectors are globally competitive whilst others are inefficient and have high costs. By and large, agricultural goods are produced at costs which are comparable to international prices or below, whereas steel, metals and chemicals are produced at costs considerably above the international level. High costs in a few parts of the system make the entire economy uncompetitive. To counteract selective uncompetitiveness we developed a system of selective export subsidies and selective access for exporters to imported inputs. But these selective privileges expanded and became increasingly expensive in terms of budgetary and foreign exchange costs. The benefits from increased exports in relation to them became increasingly dubious. Hence a systemic change became necessary. It began in July 1991 with devaluation and the abolition of Cash Compensatory Support on the one hand, and the issue of Eximscrips and the abolition of certain types of import licences on the other. However, much remains to be done. Trade reforms must continue, and their end result must be a tariff system which, while providing reasonable protection to Indian industry, does not distort domestic relative prices. Import and exchange controls have to be drastically overhauled so as to enable Indian firms to plan their operations unfettered by bureaucratic interference. The final objective would be to achieve a degree of openness which would allow trade to balance domestic demand and supply and permit the full exploitation of the country's dynamic comparative advantage.

(c) Industrial policy: For decades, the most profitable activity in industry was import substitution. Blanket import substitution gave producers of new products a temporary monopoly which was eroded in some cases as more producers entered the market. However, monopoly positions in some industries and excessive entry in others prevented an adequate buildup of technological competence. It is necessary to adopt a concerted strategy to make Indian industry internationally competitive. Steady and continuous competitive pressures must be created by dismantling restraints on internal competition and by having a stable, moderately protective tariff structure. It was with this aim in view that industry was extensively delicensed in July 1991. Delicensing only removed an administrative obstacle to domestic competition.

Market structures will change only if new firms enter industries and chronically inefficient ones go out or are taken over. To achieve this, the attractiveness of different industries in terms of the rate of return on investment needs to be brought to the same level. The factors that discourage investment, including price and distribution controls, need to be dismantled. We also need to establish a credible safety net which would protect workers against the risks arising from firm failure, and make their compensation independent of the fortunes of the sick firms.

(d) Financial policy : The financial sector is at the centre of economic activity; its health affects the entire economy. Its performance was reviewed by the Narasimham Committee. The Committee's conclusions will be the starting point of financial reforms in the coming year. They will be directed towards improving the financial strength of the banks, and will cover directed credit, adequacy of reserves of banks and financial institutions, methods of prudential regulation and stock market reform. The variety of institutions in the financial sector has diversified in recent years; this diversity must be encouraged, and entry and exit should be eased. Similar diversification is in evidence in financial instruments, and deserves to be encouraged. Rates of return on various financial instruments and investments were centrally regulated till recently. This central control has begun to be relaxed, and should be further relaxed; ultimately, financial market prices and investment practices should be such as to direct funds efficiently and to harmonize the rates of return. Special arrangements will, however, continue to be necessary to ensure that funds flow to new, small or rural enterprises and investments of high social priority which may not be adequately served by the mainstream financial institutions.

(e) Agricultural policy : Our existing policy has elements which go back to the mid-sixties when the country was faced with a crisis of food availability in its urban centres. The country has achieved remarkable success in meeting the food needs of a growing population. The problems have, however, changed. Agriculture must supply growing requirements of food and raw materials using our limited resources of land and water. This calls for a continuous improvement in the technologies of production, storage and marketing. Special efforts have to be made to improve the productivity of dry-land agriculture. Systematic attention has to be paid to the control of land and water degradation. The various institutional and economic constraints on the fullest exploitation of the vast potential of agriculture in the Eastern region will have to be overcome. The agricultural credit system which has suffered greatly in the wake of the ill-thought loan waiver scheme of 1990 has to be revamped. Agricultural research and extension systems need to be modernized taking into account the challenges that lie ahead. Agriculture is the least protected sector of the economy; its access to world markets needs to be improved, and barriers to access need to be removed, so that it can make a more substantial contribution to exports. A credible system of food security must be maintained. The Government's capacity to invest in agricultural improvement and in rural development has been eroded with its worsening fiscal situation in recent years. It must be revived; at the same time, the capacity of agriculture to grow, to use resources efficiently, to innovate and diversify needs to be nurtured.

(f) Poverty alleviation policy: It is the task of the Government to ensure that the people's basic needs are met and distress prevented. This task becomes more important at times of economic stress and change; that is when there is the greatest need for extending a safety net to the weak and the poor. The Government is committed to expanding the scope and coverage of direct poverty reduction programmes. The Public Distribution System has been extended, and supplies of essential commodities through it have been increased. The task ahead is to target the poverty alleviation programmes towards the worst affected sections of the people, to make them more responsive to felt needs and to improve their efficiency.

(g) Human resource policy: The people must be helped to enhance their own capabilities. They should have considerably better access to education and training, and opportunities to use them in productive work. Renewed efforts are necessary to expand health care and to improve its quality. Social and economic uplift of women must be given special emphasis. Not only is the potential of the women capable of being more fully exploited, but their advancement is essential for moderating population growth.

V CONCLUSION

When a country is in such a grave crisis, it is tempting for the Government to stave off collapse, to take short cuts, to live through the present and let the future take care of itself. The economic policies of the Government have been designed to tackle the immediate crisis, but they emanate from a vision of a future, from the promise of a better life for our people. The crisis has involved hardship for the people. The Government has tried to ameliorate it, but not enough. The resources of the Government are limited, and more needs to be done to ensure that they are used efficiently and for the benefit of the most deserving. But the immediate options are limited. It is important to broaden them, and that is where the vision comes in.

The basis of this vision is self-reliance. It has been the foundation of our economic policy for over four decades. Even if anyone wished to abandon self-reliance, India is too large a country for the rest of the world to look after. There is thus no alternative to self-reliance.

This means that our achievements depend on our own efforts. Our standards of living depend on our productivity; the only fruits we can enjoy are the fruits of our labour. Our hard work, creativity, enterprise and intelligence - they will decide how well our children live. We must build a society that cares for the people today and builds for their tomorrows.

But self-reliance does not mean isolation. We live in a world of great variety - of people, resources, of knowledge and behaviour. It is there for us to cooperate with, trade with, learn from and contribute to. It is there for us to measure ourselves against. From it we must derive our standards of excellence - standards to equal and surpass. To it we must contribute care - care for the weak and the unfortunate.

The Government has tried to expand the economic space in which the people can exercise their initiative and ingenuity. It hopes to do more to expand their opportunities, to enhance their potential. But what shape the economy takes ultimately depends on what the people make of it. In that sense, the future is in their hands.

INTRODUCTION

This year's Economic Survey is divided into two parts. While Part 1 surveys the foremost macro-economic problems facing the country at the moment, Part II reviews developments in the various sectors of the economy during 1990-91 and 1991-92.

Part II consists of nine chapters including this introduction, Chapter 2 deals with sources and uses of public finances and Central Government's budgetary and fiscal developments during 1991-92. Chapter 3 examines the trends in money supply and bank credit and reviews monetary and credit policies. Chapter 4 analyses the trends in prices, factors generating inflation and the various anti-inflationary measures taken by the Government. Chapter 5 deals with foreign trade, external assistance, the balance of payments and the recent reforms in trade sector. Chapter 6 reviews industrial growth and the structural reforms initiated recently by the Government to impart dynamism and efficiency to the industrial and public sectors. Chapter 7 takes a look at agricultural output and inputs. Chapter 8 deals with performance of the basic infrastructure sectors and Chapter 9 with performance in social sectors.

PUBLIC FINANCES

The fiscal situation, which was under strain throughout the 1980s, reached a critical situation in 1990-91 with a sharp deterioration in the revenue deficit. Fiscal deficits generate pressures on inflation as well as on the balance of payments. The gross fiscal deficit of the Central Government, which measures the total resource gap, has been more than 8 per cent of GDP since 1985-86, as compared with 6 per cent at the beginning of 1980s and 4 per cent in the mid-1970s. Such fiscal deficits are unsustainable and would lead the country into a debt-trap. The unabated growth of non-plan expenditure and poor returns from investments made in the public sector have been the main contributory factors in the fiscal crisis.

A particularly disquieting feature of the Centre's finances has been growing deficits on revenue account. The ratio of the revenue deficit to GDP reached 3.5 per cent in 1990-91 (provisional actuals) as compared with 1.5 per cent in 1980-81. There has been a steady decline in the share of capital formation in Central Government expenditure. The gross savings of the Government, which turned negative for the first time in 1984-85, continued to remain so. The fiscal imbalance also manifested in a sharp increase in internal debt and resultant increase in interest payments.

The regular Budget for 1991-92 presented on July 24, 1991, initiated a major effort towards correcting the fiscal imbalance. It envisaged a reduction in the fiscal deficit by nearly two percentage points of GDP, from 8.4 per cent in 1990-91 (RE) to 6.5 per cent in 1991-92 (based on projections of GDP at that time; the latest GDP estimate yields 6.2 per cent). It aimed at containing Government expenditure and augmenting revenues; reversing the downward trend in the share of direct taxes in total tax revenues; curbing conspicuous consumption; encouraging indigenous industry and improving competitiveness of the industrial sector, particularly export-oriented industries. The important policy initiatives comprised reduction in fertiliser subsidy, abolition of Cash Compensatory Support for exports, abolition of subsidy on sugar, divestment of 20 per cent of Government equity in selected public sector undertakings to mutual funds, a 20 per cent increase in the prices of motor spirit and adjustment of tax rates to yield an additional net revenue of Rs. 2005 crore to the Centre. The provision of non-plan expenditure, excluding interest payments, in the current year represents a reduction of 4.5 per cent compared with the provisional actuals for 1990-91.

Aggregate resources of the Central Government, including internal and extra-budgetary resources of Central public enterprises, were to be about 11.3 per cent higher in 1991-92 (BE) than the revised estimates for 1990-91. Aggregate disbursements were 8 per cent higher than the revised estimates for 1990-91. The containment of disbursements through various measures was aimed at limiting the budgetary deficit to Rs. 7719 crore. Aggregate receipts of the Centre, States and Union Territories, including internal and extra-budgetary resources of their enterprises, were budgeted to increase by 11.7 per cent over 1990-91 (RE) while aggregate expenditure was estimated to increase by 10.4 per cent.

The Annual Plan for 1991-92 provided for a total outlay of Rs. 72,317 crore for the Centre, States and Union Territories, an increase of 17.6 per cent over the revised estimates for 1990-91. The allocation for the Central Plan was Rs. 42,969 crore.

The working of both the departmental and non-departmental commercial undertakings of States and Union Territories deteriorated in 1990-91.

Sustained corrective action on the part of the Centre and the State Governments over the next few years is required to correct the fiscal imbalance.

The fiscal situation, which had been under mounting pressure throughout 1980s, assumed crisis proportions by the beginning of the fiscal year 1991-92. The Gulf Crisis of 1990 exacerbated the already precarious fiscal situation. At a macro-economic level, fiscal deficits, besides contributing to inflationary pressures, have also been seriously spilling into balance of payments.

2.2 Throughout the eighties, all the important indicators of fiscal imbalance were on the rise. These are the conventional budgetary deficit, the revenue deficit, the monetised deficit and gross fiscal deficit. The conventional budgetary deficit is the difference between all receipts and expenditure, both revenue and capital. This difference is met by the net addition to the Treasury

Bills issued by the Central Government and draw-down of cash balances kept with the Reserve Bank of India. The revenue deficit denotes the difference between revenue receipts and revenue expenditure. The monetised deficit is the increase in net RBI credit to the Central Government, which is the sum total of the net increase in the holdings of Treasury Bills of the RBI and its contribution to the market borrowings of the Government. These three measures do not fully reflect the structural imbalances in the fiscal operations of the Government and the full resource gap. They capture only a small part of the gap which is mainly financed by the issue of 91-day Treasury Bills. A larger portion of the gap in resources financed by market borrowings, small savings, provident funds, external borrowings, etc. does not get reflected in the conventional measures of fiscal imbalance.

2.3 A more complete measure of macro-economic imbalance used internationally is the concept of gross fiscal deficit, which reckons the total resource gap in terms of excess of total Government expenditure over revenue receipts and grants. This concept fully reflects the indebtedness of the Government. The trends in various indicators of fiscal imbalance over the eighties are given in Table-2.1. The gross fiscal deficit of the Central Government has been more than 8 per cent of GDP since 1985–86, as compared with 6 per cent at the beginning of 1980s and 4 per cent in the mid-1970s.

NOTE : GDP at current market prices is estimated to grow at 15 per cent in 1991-92.

2.4 Such a fiscal situation has become unsustainable. Interest payments on accumulated debts constitute about 24 per cent of total expenditure of the Central Government. Unless firmly dealt with by checking expenditure and raising revenues, such a situation would result in the absorption of an increasing proportion of Government resources necessitating higher borrowings simply to service the past debts, thus pushing the Government into a debt-trap. The unabated growth of Government expenditure, particularly non-plan expenditure, has been the main reason for the country falling into the present fiscal crisis. A comparison of the Seventh Plan projections of selected fiscal indicators as annualised in the Long-Term Fiscal Policy (LTFP) document with the actuals, reveals that throughout the Seventh Plan period, the balance from current revenue (BCR) remained negative and even deteriorated to (—)1.2 percent of GDP in 1989-90, the terminal year of Seventh Plan, as compared with the projection of a positive BCR of 0.2 per cent of GDP. The comparison also reveals that the performance of direct taxes has been lower than the targets. In financing the Seventh Plan, the shares of domestic borrowings and budgetary deficit far exceeded the targets. Causatively, non-plan revenue expenditure, particularly on defence, interest payments and food and fertiliser subsidies rose sharply and exceeded the targets. The process of fiscal adjustment cannot be postponed any further. In the present scenario, there are no soft options and no time to lose.

2.5 While the situation was bad enough in the first quarter of 1991 itself, the delay in the presentation of the regular budget for 1991-92 delayed the introduction of major adjustment policies. The Interim Budget presented to Parliament in March, 1991 did aim at a substantial reduction in the fiscal deficit, but because of its iterim nature, it did not contain major policies to ensure realisation of the projected reduction. Almost four crucial months were thus lost before the Government could present the regular Budget to Parliament on July 24, 1991.

2.6 The regular Budget for 1991-92 took a bold step in the direction of correcting the fiscal imbalance. It envisaged a reduction in the fiscal deficit by nearly two percentage points of GDP, from 8.4 per cent in 1990-91 (RE) to 6.5 per cent in 1991-92 (based on the projections of GDP at that time). This involved a fiscal correction of nearly Rs. 12,000 crore. This magnitude of fiscal correction can be considered unprecedented inasmuch as only 8 months of the current fiscal year remained to accomplish the task. The Budget laid stress on fiscal adjustment being supported by essential reforms in economic policy and management. While it contained proposals for raising additional revenue, most of the reduction in fiscal deficit was sought to be achieved through reduction in non-plan expenditure. The important policy initiatives introduced in the Budget for correcting the fiscal imbalance are briefly listed below.

(i) Reduction in the fertiliser subsidy by increasing the average prices of fertilisers by 30 per cent (except for marginal and small farmers).

(ii) Abolition of Cash Compensatory Support for exports.

(iii) Abolition of subsidy on sugar distributed through the Public Distribution System by increasing the price by 85 paise per kg to Rs. 6.10 per kg.

(iv) Offering of upto 20 per cent of Government equity in selected public sector undertakings to mutual funds and investment institutions in the public sector. This is estimated to fetch the Government Rs. 2,500 crore.

(v) A 20 per cent increase in the prices of motor spirit, domestic LPG and aviation turbine fuel for domestic use.

(vi) Adjustment of tax rates to yield an additional net revenue of Rs. 2,005 crore to the Centre.

2.7 As a result of these adjustments, the provision for non-plan expenditure, excluding interest payments, in the current year represents a reduction of 4.9 per cent compared with the provisions in the revised estimates for 1990-91, and a reduction of almost 15 per cent in relation to what would have had to be provided, but for the specific correction.

2.8 As a part of the Government's policy to supplement fiscal adjustment by structural reforms in economic policy and management, the Government initiated steps after the presentation of the budget to prioritise the activities and schemes both on plan and non-plan side to identify those which could be eliminated or reduced in size. In September, 1991 the Government had also imposed a 5 per cent cut on the expenditure provisions contained in the sanctioned Budget estimates for 1991-92 of all Ministries/Departments. Only a few items of expenditure, such as, statutory grants to State Governments, block grants and loans for State Plan schemes, interest payments and pension payments were exempted from the expenditure cut.

2.9 The Finance Minister in his statement in Parliament on 16th December, 1991 had indicated that the fiscal correction would be continued further in 1992-93 and that the burden of achieving reduction in fiscal deficit would fall heavily on expenditure side.

Centre and States Combined

2.10 The combined budgetary transactions of the Centre and the State Governments in 1990-91 (RE) revealed no marked departure from the deteriorating fiscal imbalance that had become characteristic of the entire period of the eighties, particularly the late eighties. The combined budgetary deficit of the Centre and the States was considerably higher than that envisaged at the time of formulation of the respective budgets. The growing budgetary deficit is mainly attributable to a near stagnant current revenue-GDP ratio and a continuous increase in the expenditure-GDP ratio. The gap in these ratios which was 9 per cent of GDP in 1980-81, reached the level of nearly 13 per cent in 1990-91 (RE). This gap broadly conforms to the concept of gross fiscal deficit used internationally.

2.11 The near stagnant current revenue–GDP ratio is mainly the result of stagnant direct tax-GDP ratio. While direct tax-GDP ratio increased from 2.4 per cent in 1980-81 to 2.5 per cent in 1990-91(RE), indirect tax-GDP ratio registered an increase from 12.2 per cent to 14.3 per cent in the same period. The phenomenal growth in the expenditure of the Centre and the States was the offshoot of the manner in which the gap in resources was being financed. Over 75 per cent of the resource gap of Rs. 67,170 crore was financed by domestic borrowings, 7 per cent from external assistance and 18 per cent from deficit financing. In the late eighties, the dependence on deficit financing had increased dramatically.

2.12 Continued dependence on domestic borrowings to meet the major portion of the gap in resources had resulted in a significant increase in interest payments. Interest payments, as a percentage of total expenditure of the Centre and States, increased from 7.6 per cent in 1984-85 to nearly 14 per cent in 1990-91 (RE). The burden of interest payments comes out more clearly when seen in relation to non-developmental expenditure. As a proportion of non-developmental expenditure, interest payments amounted to over 35 per cent in 1990-91. This is the major factor which has led to an increase in the proportion of non-developmental expenditure in total expenditure to nearly 40 per cent in 1990-91 (RE). One disconcerting feature of the finances of the Centre and the States in 1990-91 (RE) is a marked increase of 20 per cent in non-developmental expenditure over 1989-90 as compared to only 9.6 per cent increase in developmental expenditure (Table 2.2).

Centre

2.13 The 1990-91 was a difficult year for the Centre. The Gulf crisis gave a major jolt to the already precarious financial position. In addition to imposing an additional burden on foreign exchange, the Government had to spend Rs. 300 crore on repatriating Indians stranded in Kuwait. The recommendations of the Ninth Finance Commission placed an additional burden in the form of providing debt relief to the States to the tune of Rs. 966 crore. Despite numerous additional resource mobilisation and economy measures initiated by the Government, 1990-91 represented a disquieting picture of shortfalls in revenue while expenditure continued to be incurred as budgeted. There was a shortfall of over Rs. 4,313 crore in current revenue, while expenditure exceeded the budget estimate by Rs. 5,728 crore. As a result, the deficit exceeded the budget estimate of Rs. 7,206 crore by Rs. 3,566 crore.

2.14 Another disquieting feature of the Centre's finances is the phenomenon of growing deficits on the revenue account. While revenue receipts grew on an average by 16.6 per cent per annum during 1980-81 to 1990-91 (RE), the growth in revenue expenditure was 17.1 per cent. The revenue deficit-GDP ratio reached 3.3 per cent in 1990-91 (RE) as compared with 1.5 per cent in 1980-81 (Table 2.3).

2.15 Prudent fiscal management demands that revenue receipts should not only meet revenue expenditure but also leave a surplus for meeting capital expenditure. Contrary to this, there has been diversion of high cost borrowings to meet the deficit on revenue account without any return flow to service the borrowings.

States and Union Territories

2.16 There was deterioration in the finances of the States and Union Territories with the budgetary deficit touching Rs. 1,076 crore in 1990-91 (RE) as compared with only Rs. 19 crore in 1989-90. There was an increase in current revenue as compared with the budget estimate, but this was entirely due to a substantial increase in the grants from the Centre. One disturbing feature of the State finances is the substantial deterioration in the internal generation of resources by State Public Undertakings. The internal generation of resources amounted to a negative Rs. 1,700 crore in 1990-91 (RE) as compared with a positive figure of Rs. 874 crore in 1989-90. While non-developmental expenditure increased by 24.5 per cent over 1989-90, developmental expenditure increased by 14.8 per cent.

Central Government Budgetary and Fiscal Developments 1991-92

2.17 The thrust of fiscal management in 1991-92 was to meet the challenges posed by the unparalleled fiscal crisis being faced by the country. The Budget, inter-alia, aimed at expenditure reduction and increase in Government income. Measures in the field of direct taxes were targeted at reversing the declining trend in the share of these taxes in total tax revenues and as a proportion of Gross Domestic Product. The objectives of changes in indirect tax regime were : reducing excessive reliance on customs duties for additional resource mobilisation; ensuring price stability for essential commodities and goods; curbing conspicuous consumption; encouraging indigenous industry and improving the competitiveness of the industrial sector particularly, the export-oriented industries. Accordingly, the overall impact of the proposals in 1991-92 Budget relating to excise and customs duties was revenue-negative for the Central Government. The Government announced the Voluntary Deposits (Immunities and Exemptions) Scheme to mobilise unaccounted money. To tackle the extraordinarily difficult situation in the balance of payments two schemes, viz., Remittances in Foreign Exchange (Immunities) Scheme 1991 and India Development Bonds Scheme 1991, were announced. The Budget also emphasised the need for rationalisation of the tax system including, reduction in the plethora of concessions, and also the need to bring the rates of income tax at various slabs of income to more appropriate levels.

Direct Taxes

2.18 In order to give tax evaders an opportunity, the Government announced a scheme under which any person could make a deposit with the National Housing Bank on or before the 30th November, 1991. To give effect to the scheme, necessary legislation was passed by Parliament. The Voluntary Deposits (Immunities and Exemptions) Act, 1991 provided that any person could make a deposit with the bank; the bank would credit 40 per cent of the amount of such deposit to a special fund for financing slum clearance and low cost housing for the poor and the depositor could utilise the rest of the deposit for any purpose specified by him. The amounts deposited would be provided complete immunity from enquiry and investigation. Subsequently, the operation of the scheme was extended to the end of January, 1991. In addition, suitable amendments were made to Section 273-A of the Income Tax Act to provide for those who had already availed of the facility of waiver of penalty and interest on the amount disclosed once in life time. To cut down delay in the disposal of applications by the Settlement Commission, the provision for objecting to the admission of applications was deleted. This will encourage persons to go to the Settlement Commission to declare undisclosed income and wealth. Further, to expedite the process, a time limit of 120 days was fixed within which the Commissioner of Income Tax has to furnish a report to the Settlement Commission.

2.19 To encourage investment in priority areas such as, low and middle income group housing, highways, roads and bridges, non-conventional energy, school buildings and supply of drinking water, suitable tax exemptions were announced in the Budget to assessees who reinvested their profits in these areas.

2.20 In recognition of the importance of education and social research and their role in development, the scope of tax concessions was expanded. Cent per cent deduction was allowed in respect of sums paid for research in these areas, whether related to business or not, to any university, college or other approved institution. To encourage publication of quality text books in various Indian languages, as also to encourage the publishing industry, the earlier provisions of allowing deduction of 20 per cent of profits from publication of books for a period of five years and a 25 per cent deduction from professional income of authors of text books were revived.

2.21 Off shore country funds are regarded as an important source of foreign institutional investment, particularly from non-resident Indians. To make them attractive, the rate of tax on dividend income received from such investment was reduced from 25 per cent to 10 per cent and tax on long-term capital gains to 10 per cent from the earlier effective rate of 45 per cent applicable to a majority of the cases.

2.22 Because of India's historical involvement with the struggle of the black majority in South Africa, donations made to AFRICA Fund were made eligible for 100 per cent deduction under the Income Tax Act. The deduction available under the Income Tax Act in income in respect of totally and partially blind or physically handicapped persons was raised from Rs. 15,000 to Rs. 20,000.

2.23 For promotion of housing activity, a high priority sector, the benefit of tax rebate under Section 88 of the Income Tax Act was extended to contractual schemes floated by public housing corporations along the lines of the Home Loan Account Scheme of the National Housing Bank. Further, the tax rebate will also be available in respect of instalments/repayments of loans towards cost of land and also in cases where the house was purchased or constructed before 1 April, 1987.

2.24 To increase the export potential, tax concessions available under Section 80 HHC were extended to software industry and also to processed minerals. The benefit of Section 80-O was also extended to non-corporate assessees on foreign exchange earned for export of professional services.

2.25 With a view to developing tourist infrastructure in hilly and remote areas, the Budget proposed to exempt from expenditure tax for a period of 10 years, expenditure incurred in new approved hotels set up in these areas. Further, these hotels were allowed a deduction of 50 per cent from their profit against the normal rate of 30 per cent.

2.26 To encourage the development of a healthy capital market, the basic deduction of Rs. 10,000 in respect of long-term capital gains was raised to Rs. 15,000. 5-2

2.27 As mentioned earlier, the share of direct taxes in the total tax revenue and as a proportion of GDP had witnessed a decline in recent years. Reversal of this trend is necessary for achieving a balance in our fiscal system besides restoring equity. With this end in view, a number of measures were announced in the Budget for 1991-92. The scheme of tax deduction at source was proposed to be extended to new areas, viz., payments made in the nature of commissions, interest paid by banks on time deposits and withdrawals from the National Savings Scheme. To avoid inconvenience to small depositors, tax deduction at source was limited to payments in excess of Rs.2,500 per annum. The existing provision for offsetting short-term capital losses was observed to have encouraged tax avoidance. It was therefore proposed that any loss on transfer of capital asset could be set off only against gains from transfer of another capital asset. The existing rules of valuation of assets aim at capturing the market value in case of assets held by an individual. On the other hand, the valuation of assets held by a group of individuals through an investment company, is based on book value. To remove this anomaly, the Budget provided the valuation of unquoted shares of an investment company and the determination of the break-up value of the share after revaluing the assets at their market value.

2.28 It has been observed that there has been a phenomenal growth in the output, value added and the profits of the corporate sector in recent years. In the normal course, it should have commensurately reflected in the tax-collection from the corporate sector. This has not happened and has been a matter of concern. The Budget provided for an increase of 5 percentage points in the tax rate both for the widely-held and closely-held companies. The distinction between trading companies and industrial companies for the purpose of corporate tax rate was also removed.

2.29 Despite relative labour abundance, the economy has shown a shift towards higher capital intensity. Fiscal incentives provided by the Government have indeed, helped in this capital bias. It is in this background that the Budget envisaged a reduction in the rates of depreciation for plant and machinery to 25 per cent from the existing 33.3 per cent and from 50 per cent to 40 per cent in the case of motor buses, motor taxies and other equipments. However, no change was proposed in the rate of 100 per cent depreciation for energy saving devices and renewable energy devices.

2.30 Tax exemption support which had been given to special institutions like the IDBI for their development was considered to be no longer necessary and was withdrawn. In order to mobilise additional resources, interest tax was also revived. To discourage conspicuous consumption the scope of the expenditure tax was extended to cover expenditure incurred on food and drinks in and from airconditioned restaurants.

Indirect Taxes

2.31 In recent years, there has been a growing reliance on indirect taxes for additional resource mobilisation. These measures are observed to escalate costs, fuel inflation and are sometimes regressive in impact. An attempt was made to break away from this trend in the 1991-92 Budget. The overall impact of the proposals relating to excise and customs duties was revenue-negative.

2.32 The need to rationalise and simplify the procedures, rules and regulations pertaining to indirect taxes, was recognised. It was, therefore, proposed to formulate concrete measures as a part of structural reforms in the tax system and an indication was given that a more broad-based effort may have to be evolved.

2.33 In the case of customs duties, major proposals related to (i) limiting the ad-valorem rates of customs duty (basic plus auxiliary) to a maximum of 150 per cent; (ii) rationalisation of auxiliary duties; (iii) reduction in duty rates on capital goods; and (iv) incentives for technology upgradation, export production, marine and leather industries.

2.34 To reduce extra-ordinarily high protection given to indigenous industries, the ad-valorem rate of basic plus auxiliary duties of customs were reduced to a maximum of 150 per cent, except on imported alcoholic beverages and passenger baggage.

2.35 As a measure to reverse the increases in auxiliary customs duties, with effect from 15 December, 1990 and to remove anomalies in the increases, a duty relief of 10 percentage points to almost every item which had earlier suffered from an increase of 20 percentage points was envisaged. Further, in case of items considered important from the points of view of environmental protection, export promotion and saving of foreign exchange, it was proposed to roll back these rates to the levels prevailing before 15th December, 1990. These include certain items of printing and the news paper industry, machinery for fuel injection equipment, waste paper, wood in the rough, jigat, ethylene etc.

2.36 In case of capital goods and components, import duty was reduced by 5 percentage points. For the promotion of technology, the list of items under the existing Technology Upgradation Scheme for import of capital equipment with fiscal relief was expanded.

2.37 For promotion of exports, excise duties on goods from 100 per cent export-oriented units, permitted to be sold in the domestic market was reduced to a level equivalent to half of import duty leviable on such goods subject, inter-alia, to the condition that the duty would not be less than the excise duty levied on similar items produced in the domestic tariff area.

2.38 To promote the growth of marine products, the list of specified industry machinery items, which were eligible for fiscal relief by way of customs duty concessions, was expanded by adding a few more items in the list. Specified yarns used for making fishnets were also fully exempted from excise duty. In order to encourage growth of the finished leather industry and also as a measure of export promotion, it was proposed to reduce basic and auxiliary duties of customs on polyurethane film and foil as well as polyols, isocyanates and leather preservatives (both TCMTB and PCMC). It was also proposed to extend the concessional customs duty, available to specified capital goods required by the leather industry to a few more items of such machinery. Customs duty on the import of raw materials for the manufacture of cubic zirconium was reduced in order to encourage its indigenous manufacture and employment. For promotion of tourism, it was proposed to reduce import duty on adventure sports equipment. In keeping with the exchange rate adjustments of the Rupee effected in early July, it was proposed to raise the baggage allowance including duty free limits for bonafide gifts. Standard newsprint was exempted from import duty and the monetary limit of duty free import of photographic goods by accredited cameramen of the Press was raised.

2.39 Major changes in respect of excise duties related to the promotion of agro-based industries, extension of MODVAT, curbing of conspicous consumption and tobacco and tobacco-based products and resource mobilisation. Some proposals were meant to provide a check on the increase in the prices of essential commodities.

2.40 A number of concessions in excise duty were proposed to promote agro-based industries and to control prices of agro-based industrial products. These include the exemption of a large number of agro-based products from central excise duty, relief to agro-based jute industry in the form of lower excise duty on products which contain a minimum of 35 per cent jute fibre, extension of excise duty concessions to a few more bulk pesticides and pesticide intermediaries, increase in 'money credit' in case of rice bran oil used in the manufacture of soap, and inclusion of more non-conventional oils and solvent extracted oils in the 'money credit' scheme.

2.41 Keeping in view the general demand for extension of MODVAT scheme, it was proposed to re-introduce the scheme in respect of aerated water and also to extend it to cover man-made fibres and filament yarn in respect of their inputs. It was also proposed to adjust duty rates on those fibres and yarns, whose duties were not raised in December, 1990, in order to retain collection from excise duties at the earlier level.

2.42 Keeping in view the objective that indirect taxes do not unduly contribute to the price rise of essential commodities, edible oils, electric bulbs, and energy efficient chullas were exempted from excise duties. The total exemption from excise duty earlier available to utensils made of aluminium, copper and stainless steel was extended to certain other household items e.g. tiffin boxes. Besides, excise duty was reduced on two wheelers of engine capacity exceeding 50 CC but not exceeding 75 CC. Khandsari sugar was excluded from the list of items, chargeable to additional excise duty. Excise duty on specified tableware produced by semi-automatic process and glassware by mouth blown process was also reduced.

2.43 In order to encourage the substitution of aluminium for wood in construction, aluminium doors, windows and their frames were fully exempted from excise duty. Various components containing more than 25 per cent of fly ash or phosphogypsum were fully exempted from excise duty. Excise duty on phosphogypsum was exempted to promote its use by farmers.

2.44 Duty rates on refrigerators, air-conditioners including compressors, motor cars, audio & video cassette tapes, picture tubes, colour television sets, VCRs and VCPs were raised to curb conspicuous consumption.

2.45 Excise duties on cigarette and biris were raised to curb smoking in view of adverse effect on health. Excise duty on pan massala was also raised. On health considerations, five specified anti-pileptic formulations were fully exempted from excise duty.

2.46 For revenue mobilisation, special excise duty was raised from 5 to 10 percent of the basic excise duty. Mass consumption items, like tea, coffee, sugar, kerosene, matches, vanaspati, diesel and two wheelers were exempted from this hike. Excise duty on polypropylene, monofilament and multifilament yarns was also raised. Additional excise duty on cotton fabrics containing 40 per cent or less of polyester was increased to the same rate as applicable to cotton fabrics containing more than 40 per cent of polyester. Excise duty on free sale sugar was raised as the duty on specific rate basis had remained unchanged over a long period. Excise duty on molasses was raised as it was found to be used largely by the alcohol industry.

2.47 While moving for the consideration of the Finance Bill, the Finance Minister proposed several amendments to direct and indirect budgetary tax proposals. A concession of Rs. 20 crore was proposed to the film industry by reducing customs duty on imported jumbo colour film. Duty reliefs were also provided to fruits, pulp-based beverages, soups, broths and powders of fruits and vegetables, soaps, drugs and pharmaceuticals, polyethylene terephthalate (PTA) chips users, and television and fuel injection equipment manufacturers. The revenue loss on accouut of these was estimated at about Rs. 30 crore.

Additional Resource Mobilisation

2.48 The additional resource mobilisation (ARM) measures undertaken in the 1991-92 Budget were estimated to yield Rs. 2,617 crore. A distinct feature of this year's additional resource mobilisation effort is the greater reliance on direct taxes, particularly corporation tax as compared with indirect taxes. In customs duties, there is a net loss of revenue on account of concessions announced in the Budget. Details are given in Table 2.4.

2.49 The Railway Budget for 1991-92 proposed increases in the rates of goods traffic, passenger fares, parcel and luggage rates. These proposals were estimated to yield an additional revenue of Rs. 584 crore to the Railways. The total additional revenue through revisions in tax rates and revisions in railway fares and freights was thus estimated at Rs. 3,201 crore in 1991-92.

Centre

2.50 As mentioned earlier, the fiscal situation had assumed a crisis proportion by the beginning of the fiscal year 1991-92. The Budget of the Central Government presented in July, 1991 initiated major correctives to put it on an even keel. The Budget envisaged a reduction in the fiscal deficit from 8.4 per cent of GDP in 1990-91 (RE) to 6.5 per cent of GDP in 1991-92. The budgetary deficit is sought to be reduced from 2.0 per cent of GDP in 1990-91 (RE) to 1.3 per cent of GDP. The policy initiatives taken by the Government towards this end have been enumerated in para 2.6.

2.51 Aggregate resources of the Central Government, including net receipts of Rs. 2,005 crore from additional resource mobilisation and Rs. 15,984 crore from internal and extra-budgetary resources of public sector were estimated at Rs. 1,31,402 crore, about 11.3 per cent higher than the revised estimates for 1990-91. Aggregate disbursements were estimated at Rs. 1,39,121 crore, 8 per cent higher than the revised estimates for 1990-91. The containment of disbursements through a series of policy measures is expected to result in a lower budgetary deficit of Rs. 7,719 crore. The overall gap in resources of the Centre and its public enterprises was estimated at Rs. 56,442 crore. While tax revenue was estimated to grow by 18.5 per cent, non-tax revenue was estimated to show a higher increase of 20.1 per cent as compared with 1990-91 revised estimates. The targeted increases in both tax and non-tax revenue are considerably higher than the increase of 15.6 per cent and 4.6 per cent, respectively, attained in 1990-91 (RE). A noteworthy feature of the Budget is the modest increase of 8.0 per cent in total expenditure as compared with 1990-91 (RE).

2.52 The Central Plan outlay for 1991-92 (BE) was stepped up by 12.9 per cent to Rs. 42,969 crore, over the outlay of Rs. 38,053 crore in 1990-91 (RE). The budgetary support for the Central Plan outlay had been reduced to 44.3 per cent from 46.2 per cent in 1990-91 (RE). Over the years, there had been a gradual reduction in the budgetary support. In 1985-86, the budgetary support to the Central Plan was 65.8 per cent. This is in keeping with the policy of the Government to bring accountability and self reliance in the working of public enterprises. In terms of sectoral allocation, the emphasis remains on the development of agriculture, energy, industry and other infrastructural facilities. The outlays on science, technology and environment and social services were stepped up significantly by 28.1 per cent and 37.1 per cent, respectively, over revised estimates for 1990-91.

Savings and Capital Formation

2.53 The Economic and Functional Classification of the Central Government's Budget reveals a steady decline in the proportion of expenditure on capital formation (Table 2.5). Gross capital formation of the Central Government which was over 40 per cent of the total expenditure in the first half of the 1980s started declining from 1986-87 onwards. This trend continues in 1991-92. It is mainly on account of an increase in the proportion of transfer payments, particularly interest payments. In contrast, the share of consumption expenditure remained fairly stable. A welcome feature of the trends in consumption expenditure is the marginal fall in the share of consumption expenditure in 1991-92 (BE) by 0.6 per cent, to 20.8 per cent. This may be attributed to the marginal fall in defence consumption expenditure, which accounts for bulk of this category of expenditure.

2.54 Details regarding capital formation and savings out of budgetary transactions of the Central Government are given in Table 2.6. Gross capital formation, which had shown an average increase of 18.8 per cent per annum during 1982-83 to 1985-86 started declining from 1986-87 and reached an all time low of 4.7 per cent in 1991-92 (BE). The gross savings of the Government, which turned negative for the first time in 1984-85, continue to remain so. However, an encouraging feature is the substantial reduction in gross dissavings by over Rs. 4000 crore in 1991-92 (BE). As a result of this, there is a break in the growing trend witnessed during the eighties in the gap between capital formation and savings of the Central Government. The gap is mostly financed by domestic capital receipts, followed by budgetary deficit and draft on foreign savings, in that order.

Central Government Liabilities

2.55 Against the backdrop of the massive fiscal adjustment undertaken by the Government, it would be relevant to briefly review Government's debt position. Table 2.7 summarises the position in regard to internal debt, external debt and total liabilities of the Central Government. Internal debt consists of market borrowings, treasury bills, special securities issued to the Reserve Bank and special bearer bonds. Other internal liabilities include small savings collections, provident funds, reserve funds and deposits.

*External debt figures represent borrowings by Central Government from external resources and are based upon historical rates of exchange.

NOTE : 1. Figures in decimals are percentages to respective GDPs.

2. GDP (at current prices) for 1991-92 is estimated to grow by 15.0 per cent.

2.56 Outstanding internal liabilities, as a whole, registered a sharp increase in the eighties, from 35.6 per cent of GDP in 1980-81 to 52.2 per cent in 1991-92 (BE). The bulk of this increase was on account of a sharp increase in other internal liabilities (small savings, provident funds etc.) vis-a-vis market borrowings. The share of this category in total internal liabilities increased from 36.3 per cent in 1980-81 to 46.7 per cent in 1991-92 (BE). As the internal liabilities carry higher interest rates, this has also contributed in growing interest liabilities.

2.57 The outstanding external liabilities (at historical exchange rates) as a ratio of GDP started declining in the late eighties. The estimated outstanding external liabilities at the end of 1991-92 stood at 5.8 per cent of GDP compared with 8.3 per cent in 1980-81. However, this trend becomes worrisome when the outstanding external liabilities are expressed in terms of year-end exchange rates. The ratio of external liability of Central Government at year end exchange rates to GDP, increased from 9.9 per cent at the end of 1980-81 to 12.9 per cent at the end of 1990-91.

2.58 An offshoot of the growth in internal and external liabilities is the mounting burden of interest payments. While gross interest payments as a ratio of total government expenditure more than doubled between 1980-81 and 1991-92 to 23.2 per cent, net interest payments increased by four times, to 13.9 per cent, during the same period. As a result of the fiscal correction measures introduced by the Government, the outstanding internal and external liabilities in 1991-92 as ratio of GDP have shown a maginal fall to 58.0 per cent from 58.8 per cent in the previous year. However, this has not helped in reducing the net interest liability on accumulated debt. In 1991-92, it increased by over 2 percentage points of total expenditure. It would, indeed, take a few years before the reduced level of borrowing has a perceptible impact on the growing interest burden of the Government. It is imperative that the Government should pursue the policy of fiscal correction more vigorously in the coming years.

2.59 At the beginning of 1980s, assets and liabilities of the Central Government stood at around 44 per cent of GDP each. Since then, there has been a growing divergence between the two—the liabilities overtaking the assets. This gap, which relects deficit on revenue account, is estimated to reach a level of Rs. 90,299 crore at the end of 1991-92 (BE).

Finances of States and Union Territories

2.60 The overall budgetary deficit of the States and Union Territories taken together was estimated at Rs. 3,227 crore, nearly double the amount of deficit of Rs. 1,076 crore in 1990-91 (RE). There was a significant shortfall in additional resource mobilisation by the States as their budget proposals on the whole, fell short, of the amount indicated at the time of formulation of the annual plan. Their budgeted additional resource mobilisation amounted to just about Rs. 300 crore. An encourgaging feature, however, is the increase of 77.4 per cent in non-tax revenue over 1990-91 (RE).

2.61 Current revenue of the States, including internal generation of resources by their enterprises were estimated to increase by 16.3 per cent, to Rs. 72,271 crore, while aggregate disbursements were to rise by 14.6 per cent, to Rs. 96,111 crore. The resultant resource gap was thus estimated at Rs. 23,840 crore, or 3.9 per cent of GDP. More than 47 per cent of the gap was to be financed by loans from the Centre, 17.6 per cent from market loans, 8.9 per cent from provident funds and the remaining from other capital receipts.

2.62 The composition of aggregate expenditure of States and Union Territories in 1991-92 indicates a disquieting picture of the budgeted non-developmental expenditure to increase by 19.6 per cent against a 12.3 per cent increase in developmental expenditure over 1990-91 (RE). The ratio of developmental to aggregate expenditure dropped gradually to 67 per cent in 1991-92, from 74 per cent in 1983-84.

Centre and State Governments—Combined

2.63 The overall budgetary deficit of the Centre, States and Union Territories in 1991-92 (BE) was placed at Rs. 10,946 crore, lower by 7.6 per cent compared with the 1990-91 revised estimates. Aggregate receipts including borrowings were budgeted to increase by 11.7 per cent over 1990-91 (RE), to Rs. 1,87,214 crore while aggregate expenditure was estimated to increase by 10.4 per cent to Rs. 1,98,160 crore. Developmental expenditure was projected to rise by about 8.1 per cent and non-developmental expenditure by a larger 13.9 per cent.

2.64 The current revenue was estimated to increase by 17.9 per cent over 1990-91 (RE) to Rs. 1,32,412 crore. The gap between current revenue and disbursement, which denotes the total gap in the resources of the States and the Centre was estimated at Rs. 65,748 crore or 10.8 per cent of GDP.

Annual Plan 1991-92

2.65 The Annual Plan for 1991-92 provided for a total outlay of Rs.72,317 crore for the Centre, States and Union Territo ries, which is 17.6 per cent higher than the outlay in 1990-91(RE). The allocation for the Central Plan was Rs. 42,969 crore compared with Rs.38,052 crore in 1990-91(RE). The allocation for the States and Union Territory plan at Rs. 29,348 crore works out to 40.6 per cent of the total outlay. Details are given in Table 2.8.

2.66 In the pattern of financing of the Annual Plan 1991-92, it was envisaged that domestic resources would finance 80.5 per cent of the outlay and that net inflow from abroad would contribute another 8.8 per cent. The remaining 10.7 per cent was estimated to be met through budgetary deficit. The contribution of the balance from current revenue at current rates of taxation was estimated to be a negative amount of Rs. 1412 crore but the contribution of public enterprises by way of generation of internal resources and through issue of bonds was estimated at Rs. 20,825 crore. The contribution from balance from current revenue being negative, a large proportion of domestic resources was estimated to come from borrowings. Details are given in Appendix Table 2.7.

Post Budget Developments

Supplementary Demands for Grants

2.67. A set of supplementary demands for grants was presented so far to Parliament in December, 1991. These were technical supplementary grants for Rs. 304.04 crore—Rs. 33.00 crore on plan side and Rs. 271.04 crore on non-plan side, matched by additional receipt or corresponding savings of the Departments concerned or by the lumpsum provision made in the grant of the Department of Expenditure for new programmes. Thus, the supplementary demands involved no cash outgo. The main itmes of expenditure on the plan side was establishment of a corporation for the welfare of backward classes (Rs. 25 crore) and that on the non-plan side was the fertiliser subsidy (Rs. 250 crore).

2.68 In addition to supplementary demands for grants, token grant of Rs.1 lakh each was proposed to be taken in respect of 9 demands, the expenditure of which would be met from savings within the concerned grant. Four advances, aggregating Rs. 9.06 crore, which were made out of the Contingency Fund earlier, were proposed to be recouped.

Revenue Collections

2.69 The Centre's collection from major taxes during the period April—December, 1991 has not compared favourably with the projected levels on prorata basis. Compared to last year, the percentage of collections from custom duties during the period is lower. Collections under excise duties upto December, 1991 are, as projected. At this point of time, however, it would be a little difficult to anticipate the likely level of collection under excise. In so far as personal income tax and corporation tax are concerned, the collections reported upto the end of December, 1991 are quite good. Special efforts are also made by the tax authorities at the field level to realise the arrears and also to expedite the collection of corporation tax. The collection levels under income and corporate taxes, therefore, are likely to be satisfactory in the remaining part of the year.

2.70 Collections from major taxes during April—December, 1990-91 and 1991-92 are given in the table below.

(Figures in brackets in Col. 6 indicate percentage of collection in 1990-91.)

Excise figures are exclusive of cesses not collected by Department of Revenue.

It may be seen that collections of corporation tax and income tax have increased by 77.12 per cent and 25.15 per cent, respectively. It is expected that collections under both the heads will exceed the budget estimates for the whole year. The collections from customs duties are lower than expected due to import compression measures.

2.71 As announced in the Budget speech of the Finance Minister, two separate Bills, one relating to the Remittances of Foreign Exchange and Investment in Foreign Exchange Bonds and the other concerning the Voluntary Deposits with the National Housing Bank, were presented and approved by Parliament. The broad details of the schemes are :

(a) The Remittances of Foreign Exchange and Investment in Foreign Exchange Bonds (Immunities and Exemptions) Schemes :

(iii) any remittance received under the scheme shall not form part of the assets of any assessee for the purpose of computing his net wealth in relation to any assessment year before the 1st day of April, 1992. (vi) the deposit shall not be taken into account and shall be inadmissible as evidence in any offence or the imposition of any penalty under any such law.

2.72 As a follow up of the Budget announcement that Government would set up a National Committee of eminent persons to identify areas and recommend specific projects for the promotion of socio-economic welfare and uplift of the public, a high level Committee consisting of eminent persons under the Chairmanship of Justice P. N. Bhagawati, former Chief Justice of India has been set up. The rules for approving associations and institutions and for recommending projects and schemes for tax exemption in respect of reinvestment of profits have been notified.

2.73 Further adjustments were brought about after the Budget in regard to indirect taxes in the light of various representations received, as well as from considerations of production, demand and balance of payments situation.

2.74 Imports of raw materials and components required for the manufacture of capital goods to be supplied to the fertilizer plants when these are construed as deemed exports in line with the Import & Export Policy (1990—93) of the Government of India, were exempted from the whole of customs duty subject to specific conditions. A total customs duty exemption was announced on specified goods, when imported for the purpose of development of software for export by software development units in the Software Technology Park Complex under the hundred per cent export oriented scheme and approved by the Interministerial Standing Committee on Mini-computer/Macro-computer based items and computer software.

2.75 Excise duty concessions were announced in regard to jumbo rolls for photo films as well as some plastic products. In the case of certain soft drinks full exemption from excise duty was allowed in line with exemptions provided to agro-based products, in the 1991-92 Budget.

2.76 The information, intelligence and enforcement measures were further intensified to improve tax collection and curb evasion. A sustained and multi- pronged drive was launched against suspected offenders. The drive for bringing the maximum number of new assessees into the tax net was continued. During April-December, 1991-92, 2,80,716 new assessees were brought into the tax net as against 3,03,644 new assessees brought into the tax net during the corresponding period of 1990-91. The total number of premises surveyed during April-December, 1991-92 was 5,28,291 as against 4,85,751 premises surveyed during the corresponding period of 1990-91.

2.77 The drive against smuggling activities was also intensified during the year and the efforts in this direction resulted in seizures of goods valued at Rs.513.94 crore in 39,376 cases between April to December, 1991 as against seizures of goods worth Rs.478.18 crore in 44,883 cases druring the corresponding period in 1990. 524 persons were detained under COFEPOSA during this period (April to December, 1991).

2.78 As a follow up to announcements made in Parliament while presenting the 1991-92 Budget, the Government constituted a High Level Committee of Experts to examine the structure of direct and indirect taxes and to make recommendations, inter-alia, for making the tax system more elastic, broad based and also to suggest measures required for simplifying the existing laws and regulations to facilitate better enforcement and compliance.

2.79 Similarly, in pursuance of the statement on trade policy made in the Lok Sabha on 13th August, 1991, a High Level Committee on Trade Policy Reforms was constituted to work out the modalities of achieving transition from licensing and quntitative restrictions keeping in view the Balance of Payment position and the need to rationalise and reduce tariffs progressively to provide Indian industry with an appropriate environment to develop international competitiveness.

Eighth Five Year Plan

2.80 The Eighth Five Year Plan, which was to commence from 1990-91, could not keep the schedule on account of political changes in the last two years. The policy of fiscal correction initiated by the Government and the momentous changes taking place in the world necessitated a reorientation in the planning process. The Eighth Five Year Plan is now being formulated in this background. The National Development Council (NDC) approved the objectives and the document on Thrusts and Macro-Economic Dimensions of the Eighth Plan at its meeting held on December 23 & 24, 1991. The Plan will commence from April 1, 1992.

2.81 The Plan will give priority to the following objectives :

(i) Generating adequate employment to achieve near full employment by the turn of the century;

(ii) Containing population growth through people's active cooperation and an effective scheme of incentives and disincentives;

(iii) Universalisation of elementary education and complete eradication of illiteracy among people in the age group 15 to 35 years;

(iv) Provision of safe drinking water and primary health care accessible to all villages and entire population and complete elimination of scavenging.

(v) Growth and diversification of agriculture to achieve self-sufficiency in food and generate surplus for exports; and

(vi) Strengthening of infrastructure (energy, transport, communication, irrigation) in order to support growth process on a sustainable basis.

2.82 The Eighth Plan will focus on these objectives keeping in view the need for (a) continued reliance on domestic resources for financing investment, (b) increasing technical capabilities for the development of science and technology, and (c) modernisation and competitive efficiency so that the Indian economy can keep pace with and take advantage of global developments.

2.83 Human resource development will be the main focus of the Eighth Plan. It is towards this ultimate goal that employment generation, population control, literacy, education, health, drinking water and provision of adequate food and basic infrastructure are considered as the priorities of the Plan. Provision of the basic elements which help development of human capital will remain the primary responsibility of the Government.

2.84 The Eighth Plan aims at an average growth of 5.6 percent per annum and Incremental Capital-output Ratio (ICOR) is assumed to remain more or less at the same level as in the Seventh Plan (4.1). For achieving the targeted growth, the average rate of domestic savings required during the Eighth Plan will be 21.6 per cent of GDP. The corresponding investment rate will be 23 per cent of GDP. A total investment of Rs. 7,92,000 crore at 1991-92 prices is envisaged for the Eighth Plan out of which the share of public sector investment will amount to Rs. 3,42,000 crore or 43.2 per cent of the total investment as compared with 45.7 per cent realised in the Seventh Plan. This allows a larger scope for the private sector than that given hitherto. Public Sector outlay is Rs. 4,00,000 crore inclusive of the current outlay component. The Plan envisages a perceptible change in the manner of financing practised so far, which was neither envisaged nor healthy for the economy. Draft on foreign savings is estimated at 1.4 per cent of GDP amounting to Rs. 49,000 crore. The public sector investment will be financed to the extent of 70 per cent from household savings, 20 per cent from own savings and 10 per cent from the rest of the world. Determined efforts are called for on the part of the Central and State Governments and their enterprises to make their respective contributions to savings, so that the projected public sector outlay of Rs. 4,00,000 crore is realised.

2.85 It is also considered necessary to reorient the process of planning so as to :

(a) weed out projects which are not economically sound;

(b) rationalise plan expenditure by a process of consolidation and coordination of schemes;

(c) generate net additional resources to the extent possible through non-inflationary measures, particularly in the sectors which claim higher outlays; and

(d) divert some funds from the sectors which have surpluses largely due to the Government policies (administered prices), to the needy sectors, which cannot raise resources out of their own activities.

Role of Public Sector

2.86 The public sector will continue to perform an important role in the coming years.

(i) The role envisaged for it would mainly be in areas where investment is of an infrastructural nature and where private participation is not forthcoming to an adequate extent within a reasonable time. Thus, the public sector will continue to play a dominant role in areas like energy, transport, communications and irrigation. However, if private initiative comes forward to participate in creating such infrastructure on reasonable terms, including full protection of people's interests, such initiatives would be encouraged.

(ii) The public sector would play a useful role in augmenting basic resources of the country like land, forest, water, ecology and science & technology. The public sector will have responsibility for meeting social needs and for regulation of long-term interests of the society like population control, health, education, etc.

(iii) In large parts of its operations where commodities or services are produced and distributed, the principle of market would be applied as basic operating guideline, unless it is necessary to protect the interests of the poorest in the society. This implies recovery of costs and efficiency in operations.

Performance of Departmental and Public Enterprises.

Railways

2.87 The year 1990-91 was a difficult year for the Railways. Numerous bandhs, extensive civil disturbances, power shortage in the eastern sector and a devastating cyclone on the east coast affected its performance. There was a shortfall of 7 million tonnes in the revenue earning freight traffic. The increase in prices of petroleum products in March, 1990, the Gulf surcharge in October, 1990 and the general increase in the cost of inputs exerted considerable pressure on the working expenses. Despite an improvement in gross traffic receipts from Rs. 10,739 crore in 1989-90 to Rs. 12,038 crore in 1990-91 (RE), the surplus generation in 1990-91 (RE) is lower than that achieved in 1989-90.

2.88 The Railway Budget for 1991-92 envisaged a substantial increase in the net surplus. The net surplus as a percentage of capital at charge is estimated to reach 1.3 in 1991-92. This is in sharp contrast to the negative ratios witnessed during the early eighties. Details regarding the performance of Railways are given in Appendix Table 2.7. The Railway Budget proposed hikes in tariffs and freight rates to fetch an additional revenue of Rs. 584 crore in the current year. The highlights are given below :

— The freight rates except for certain essential commodities were increased by 10 per cent.

— The rates for parcels and luggage were increased by 10 per cent.

— The fares for upper classes, namely, AC first class, AC chair car were increase by 20 percent for distance upto 800 Kms and by 15 per cent for distances beyond 800 Kms.

— The fares for second class ordinary were increased by Re. 1.00 at the lowest slab, rising progressively to a maximum of Rs. 5.00 for distance beyond 400 Kms with some marginal adjustments in the fares in the distance zones 11 Kms to 60 Kms.

— The fares for second class mail/express were increased by Re. 1.00 per ticket at the lowest slab, rising progressively to a maximum of Rs. 20.00 per ticket for distances beyond 1300 Kms.

— For second class ordinary monthly season tickets, the increase varied from Rs. 4.00 to Rs. 16.00 according to the distance travelled.

2.89 The outlay for the Railway Plan, 1991-92 was fixed at Rs. 5,325 crore. This represents a very modest increase over the allocation of Rs. 5000 crore for the previous year. Priority continued to be accorded to improvement of rolling stock, traffic facilities and renewal of track and other overaged assets.

Post and Telecommunications

2.90 There was a fall in the deficit of postal services during 1990-91 mainly as a result of revision of rates of certain postal stationery items with effect from June 11, 1990. The deficit was Rs. 192 crore in 1990-91 (RE) as compared with Rs. 263 crore in 1989-90. Postal services are expected to result in a deficit of Rs. 225 crore in 1991-92 (BE). According to present indications the deficit is likely to exceed the budget estimate somewhat. As in the previous years, no dividend was proposed to be paid to General Revenues.

2.91 An increase in tariffs enabled the telecommunications to earn a surplus of Rs. 1328 crore in 1990-91 (RE). The surplus in 1991-92 is estimated at Rs. 1431 crore. Dividend to be paid to General Revenues is estimated at Rs. 204 crore in 1991-92. There has been a substantial improvement in the performance of telecommunications in terms of surplus generation and dividend paid to the General Revenues particularly from the late eighties as compared with the performance in the early eighties. Details are given in Appendix Table 2.8.

Central Government Public Enterprises

2.92 There were 246 Central Government public enterprises as on March 31, 1991, out of which 236 enterprises were in operation. Net profits of these enterprises declined from Rs. 3,789 crore in 1989-90 to Rs. 2,368 crore in 1990-91 (Table 2.10). The rate of return, as measured by the ratio of net profits to capital employed, declined from 4.5 per cent in 1989-90 to 2.3 per cent in 1990-91, the lowest since 1984-85. As in the previous years, the petroleum sector accounted for the bulk of the net profit—Rs. 2,299 crore out of the total of Rs. 2,368 crore. However, there was a decline in the net profits of both petroleum and non-petroleum sectors. The fall in the net profit during 1990-91 is marked in the case of Oil and Natural Gas Commission (Rs. 576 crore), Bharat Coking Coal Ltd. (Rs. 148 crore), Export Credit Guarantee Corporation (Rs. 141 crore) and Mahanagar Telephone Nigam Ltd. (Rs. 96 crore). Rashtriya Ispat Nigam Ltd. had incurred a net loss of Rs. 478 crore in 1990-91, the very first year of its operation. National Thermal Power Corporation and Indian Railway Finance Corporation had improved their net profits by Rs. 164 crore and Rs. 98 crore respectively in 1990-91. During the year 1990-91, 146 Central public enterprises generated gross internal resources to the extent of Rs. 11,372 crore.

2.93 As on March 31, 1991, 23.05 lakh people including about 88,000 casual/daily rated workers were employed in 246 Central public enterprises. The total number of regular employees of public enterprises had gone up from 17.03 lakh in 1978-79 to 22.2 lakh in 1990-91.

State Governments' Commercial Undertakings

2.94 The working results of departmentally run commercial undertakings of States and Union Territories have continued to be poor. Of all departmentally run enterprises, only forest and mines have been generating net surpluses. While the profits from forest and mines registered a modest increase between 1985-86 and 1991-92, the losses of non-profit making enterprises more than doubled during this period. On the whole, the losses of departmentally run enterprises are estimated at a staggering level of Rs. 1827 crore during 1991-92. The unsustainable nature of the operations of these enterprises is mainly attributable to uneconomic pricing. In the context of the on-going process of fiscal adjustments, it is essential that urgent measures are taken to improve the performance of State-run enterprises. Economic pricing, coupled with increase in productivity, could be a starting point (Table 2.11).

* These donot include State Electricity Boards and State Road Transport Corporations.

2.95 The two major non-departmental undertakings, viz., the State Electricity Boards (SEBs) and the State Road Transport Corporations (SRTCs) continued to incur substantial losses in their operations. The commercial losses of all SEBs taken together amounted to Rs. 4104 crore in 1989-90 and Rs. 4169 crore in 1990-91. These are estimated to increase to Rs. 4858 crore in 1991-92. The performance in terms of rate of return on capital (after depreciation and interest) was negative, being (—)16.4 per cent in 1989-90 and (—) 13.8 per cent in 1990-91. The rate of return is estimated to deteriorate to (—)14.8 per cent in 1991-92. The Electricity Supply Act, 1948 enjoins on the SEBs to earn a return of not less than 3 per cent by way of net surplus after providing for depreciation and interest. An important factor contributing to the high level of commercial losses of SEBs is the requirement to supply electricity to the rural/agricultural sector at lower tariff. The losses of SEBs shown above do not take into account the claims of SEBs for subsidies for rural electrification from the State Governments.

2.96 The performance of SRTCs was equally unsatisfactory. The commercial losses at Rs. 470 crore in 1990-91 (RE) were higher as compared with Rs. 359 crore in 1989-90. The losses are estimated at Rs. 362 crore for 1991-92. At the time of the formulation of Seventh Plan, it was envisaged that State Road Transport Corporations would generate internal resources of the order of Rs. 1789 crore after taking into account the gross yield of Rs. 2200 crore from fare revisions. Though the yield from fare revisions was around Rs. 2213 crore, which marginally exceeded the Seventh Plan target, the internal resources amounted to only Rs. 60 crore. This was mainly due to sharp increase in operational expenses.

Outlook

2.97 The fiscal situation which was on the verge of collapse by the middle of 1991, was sought to be put back on the rails through policy initiatives taken by the Government in the July, 1991 Budget. The deficits multiplied over several years cannot be eliminated in a single year. Hence, the need to continue with the policy of fiscal consolidation cannot be over-emphasised. The process to restore macro-economic balance has been launched. Government intend to continue fiscal stablisation and the Finance Minister has announced the intention to further reduce the fiscal deficit of the Central Government. This would imply a substantial decline in the government's net transfer to the rest of the public sector, most notably to Central public enterprises.

2.98 For the realisation of the above goal, it is imperative that the State Governments should also embark upon a policy of fiscal correction. Unless restraint is brought on to bear on the States' expenditure, not much progress can be made in the policy of fiscal correction.

2.99 As the proposed reduction in fiscal deficit involves a substantial cut in the budgetary support, it is necessary that public enterprises are able to generate internal surpluses, on a substential scale. Fiscal discipline is, therefore, necessary on the part of State and Central public undertakings to hasten the process of fiscal correction. The Eighth Five Year Plan (1992-97) approved by the National Development Council in December, 1991 lays emphasis on the need for reorienting the process of planning so as to weed out projects which are economically unsound and to rationalise plan expenditure by a process of consolidation and coordination of schemes. The Eighth Plan also laid emphasis that the principle of market should be applied in the operations of the public sector, unless it is necessary to protect the interests of the poorest of the poor in the society.

MONEY AND CREDIT

Money supply growth during the current financial year has been faster than in the previous year, even though both the net Reserve Bank credit to the Central Government and bank credit to the commercial sector have expanded at a lower rate. This is primarily because of the substantial build up in foreign exchange reserves.

The stance of the monetary policy in 1991-92 was restrictive to contain the growth of aggregate demand to fight the twin problems of high inflation and adverse balance of payments. Quarterly targets have been set for net domestic assets of RBI, net RBI credit to the Central Government and gross fiscal deficit as also the floor for net official foreign exchange reserves. In addition, indicative targets have been set for broad money (M3) growth and bank credit to Government.

The current financial year is marked by several important changes in monetary policy. The Bank Rate was revised twice and raised from 10 per cent to 12 per cent. Interest rates on term deposits (particularly short-term deposits) were also raised significantly in order to ensure their competitiveness in the market. Interest rates on bank advances of all categories, therefore, underwent upward revision both in keeping with these changes and as an anti-inflationary measure. Higher interest rates on export credit and larger export credit refinance facilities were introduced to encourage banks in their credit support to exporters.

Among other measures of credit control introduced in 1991-92 are (a) 10 per cent Incremental Cash Reserve Ratio on the increase in net demand and time liabilities of the scheduled commercial banks over May 3, 1991 level; (b) withdrawal of all refinance facilities (except export credit refinance facility, by RBI; (c) imposition of a ceiling on the effective drawing power of big borrowers with aggregate credit limits of Rs. 1 crore and above from May 9 to September 30, 1991 and (d) extension/tightening of selective credit controls on bank advances against price-sensitive essential commodities like wheat, rice/paddy, cotton and kapas and pulses. The higher minimum cash margin imposed on bank finance for imports in March-April, 1991 came to be reduced in stages with gradual improvement in foreig exchange reserves and also to help exporters in making necessary imports.

The uptrend in the credit sanctioned and disbursed by term lending financial institutions continued in the current financial year. A floor rate of 15 per cent came to replace their fixed lending rate of 14 per cent. Orderly growth of the secondary money market continued to be the concern of the Reserve Bank of India which also took measures to reduce the volatility of call money rates and liberalised the guidelines for issue of commercial paper (CP) and certificate of deposits (CD). The Discount and Finance House of India (DFHI) had large turnover in each major money market instrument. Home Loan Accounts Scheme of National Housing Bank (NHB) was extended to select Housing Finance companies (HFCs). NHB also launched National Housing (Voluntary Deposits) scheme to attract black money to social housing schemes.

The Committee on the Financial system (Chairman: Shri M. Narasimham) has submitted the report and has made far-reaching recommendations for reform in the organisation, operations and policies in the financial sector. The Goiporia Committee in its report has also suggested various measures for improvement in the customer services of the banks. Recommdations of both these committees are now under consideration of the Reserve Bank of India and the Government.

Introduction

3.1 Broad money (M3) growth turned out to be lower at 14.9 per cent in 1990-91 than the 19.4 per cent growth in the preceding year, mainly due to a large draw-down of foreign exchange reserves because of worsening in balance of payments in 1990-91. However, there existed a large liquidity hang-over in the economy because of near 17 per cent average rate of money supply expansion in the last four to five years. The deteriorating fiscal situation at home and the critical payments problem in the external sector made the situation serious.

3.2 The economic realities dictated the adoption of a restrictive monetary policy almost from the beginning of the current financial year. Adjustments were effected in July 1991 in the exchange rate of the Rupee to make it credible and to ensure competitiveness of exports without the need for large and discretionary export subsidies. Major changes were introduced, at the same time, in trade, investment and the industrial policies to promote competitiveness, enterprize and efficiency on the fiscal front. The Central Government's Budget for 1991-92 seeks to reduce fiscal deficit from 8.4 per cent of GDP in RE

1990-91 to no more than 6.5 per cent in 1991-92 (based on projections of GDP at that time; the latest GDP estimate yields 6.2 per cent) through substantial efforts at expenditure reduction and mobilisation of resources.

3.3 To support these measures, monetary policy was also tightened. This reflected the urgent need to restrain aggregate demand in general and import demand in particular, in order to fight the twin problems of inflation and unfavourable balance of payments. Broad money (M3) growth of 13 per cent has been targeted consistent with output and inflation targets. Correspondingly reserve money has also been targeted to grow by 15.5 per cent after taking into account the Incremental Cash Reserve Requirement of 10 per cent imposed on May 4, 1991. The monetary programme for 1991-92 also specifies quarterly ceilings on the net domestic assets of the Reasve Bank of India as well as net RBI credit to the Central Government and floors for net official foreign exchange reserves (in US Dollars).

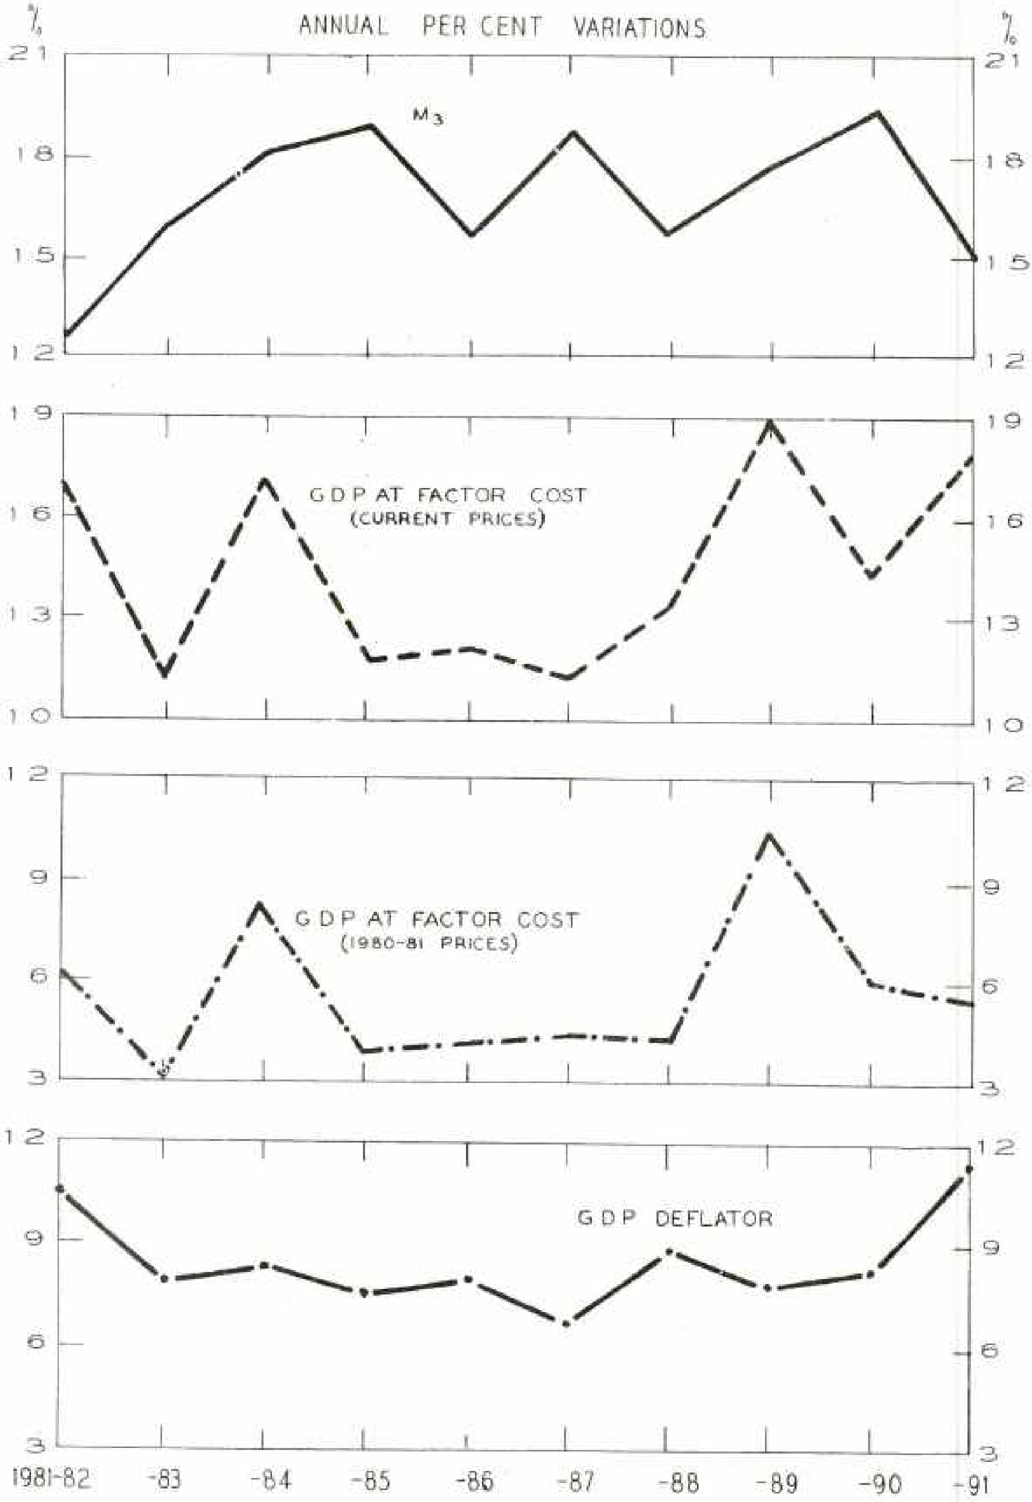
MONEY OUTPUT AND PRICES



3.4 The data on the movement of money supply and its associated monetary variables in the current financial year 1991-92 are available up to the fortnight ending January 10, 1992. Table 3.1 presents component and sourcewise position of the growth of money supply for the full financial year 1989-90, 1990-91 as also for the current financial year 1991-92 up to January 10, 1992, compared with the corresponding period of the financial year 1990-91 (i.e. up to January 11, 1991). The data shows that both narrow money (M1) and broad money (M3) have recorded higher growth rates in this year up to January 10, 1992 than those recorded in the corresponding period of 1990-91. The growth rate of M1 has been higher in this financial year than that of M3 because of a much larger rise (25.5 per cent) in demand deposits with banks than that in time deposits with banks (12.0 per cent). The currency growth at 14.5 per cent has also been much higher than the growth in time deposits. The latter is, in fact, marginally higher than its rate of growth (11.4 per cent) in the corresponding period of 1990-91. The accelerated growth in demand deposits with banks is attributable to an extraordinary factor, namely, the holding of additional cash margins and the money kept by the canalising agencies with banks mainly linked to POL transactions.

3.5 Net bank credit to Government and bank credit to the commercial sector, recorded lower growth of 17.1 per cent and 4.8 per cent, respectively, during 1991-92 (up to January 10, 1992) as against 17.6 per cent and 7.8 per cent, respectively, in the corresponding period of 1990-91. The net increase in RBI credit to Central Government has been of a lower order in the current financial year than that in the last financial year. The higher growth rate in M3 can, therefore, be appropriately explained by expansion in net foreign exchange assets of the banking sector. Available monetary data show that money supply (M3) has been growing above its 13 per cent annual growth path since the fortnight ending August 9, 1991. However, NRCCG has remained within the ceilings fixed for end-October and end-December, 1991.

Reserve Money

3.6 The higher growth rate of broad money up to January 10, 1992 can be traced to faster expansion in reserve money (14.9 per cent) than in 1990-91 (7.8 per cent), essentially supported by larger foreign exchange accruals [Table 3.2].

 Inclusive of appreciation in the value of gold following its revaluation close to the international market price since October 17, 1990. Such appreciation has a corresponding effect on RBI's net non-monetary liabilities.

3.7 Net RBI credit to Government (NRCG) accounts for the lion's share of the increase in reserve money. In 1990-91 increase in NRCG was more than double the increase in reserve money. Only large increase in net non-monetary liabilities of RBI could moderate the growth of reserve money in that year. The increase in net RBI credit to Government (central and state governments) is due mainly to the increase in net RBI credit to Central Government accounting for nearly 96 per cent of the former. The latter, in turn, depends very largely on the Centre's budget deficit which it has to finance fully. In 1990-91 Centre's budget deficit accounted for 77.5 per cent of increase in NRCCG. One important trend in the growth of NRCCG, which is also logically found in the budget deficit as well, that it is not very orderly through the fortnights, The rise in NRCCG at the end of several fortnights exceeds even the annual rise (see chart). Given the divergent patterns of inflows of receipts and outflows of expenditure some mid-year fluctuations in budget deficit are unavoidable but it is equally important to note that volatile increases in NRCCG caused by peaks in budget deficit create avoidable expansion in reserve money and consequent monetary expansion with inflationary consequences.

Scheduled Commercial Banks

3.8 Table 3.3 presents some selected indicators of the operations of the scheduled commercial banks during 1989-90, 1990-91 and up to January 10, 1992. The demand deposits recorded much larger expansion than time deposits in the present financial year, relative to their expansion in the last financial year. Non-food credit to deposit ratio stood at 52.6 per cent on January 10, 1992 as against 57.7 per cent on January 11, 1991. Net balances of these banks with RBI improved significantly in the current financial year so far, mainly due to very large increases in their balances with RBI compared to that in 1990-91.

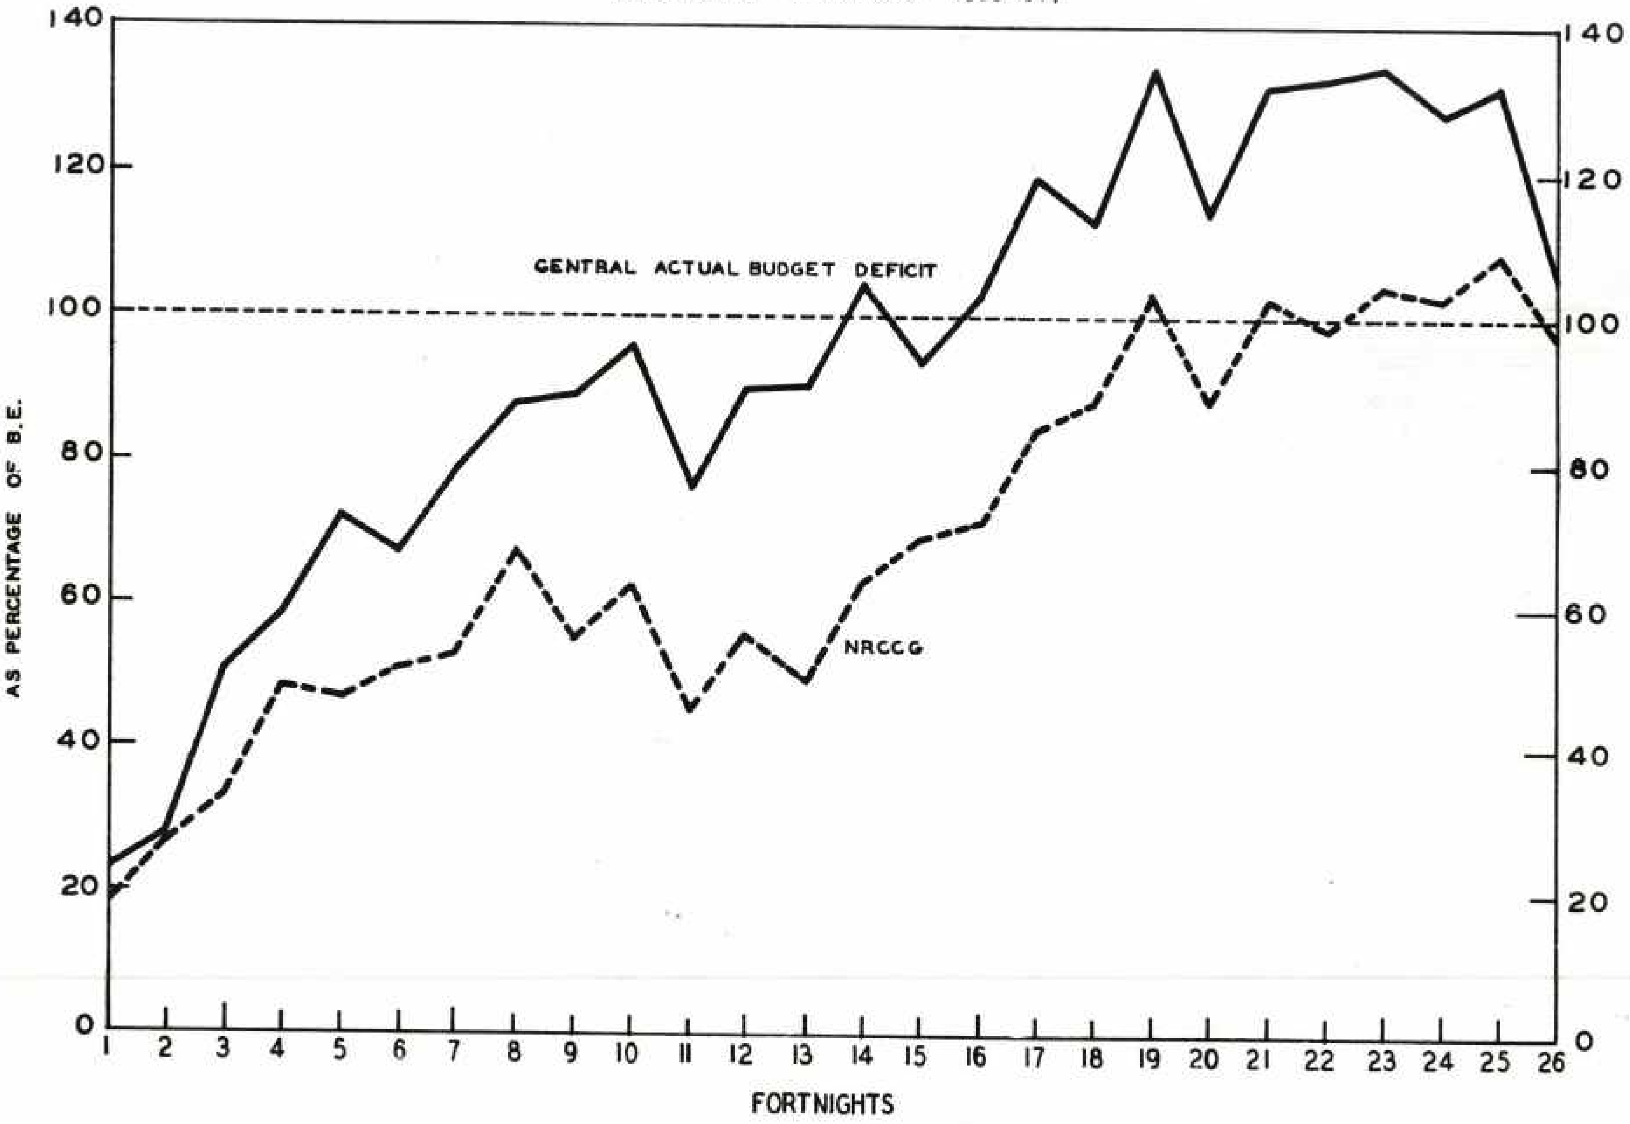
(FORTNIGHTLY DEVIATIONS 1990-91)



3.9 The sectoral distribution of bank credit by scheduled commercial banks is set out in Table 3.4. During 1990-91 (March 23, 1990 to March 22, 1991) growth in gross bank credit was smaller than in 1989-90, though expansion in public food procurement credit was higher. Share of priority sector advances in net bank credit at the end of March, 1991 was also smaller at 39.2 per cent (target being 40 per cent). Among priority sectors, deceleration in credit expansion is most significant in credit to agriculture because of rural debt waivers which in turn moderated the growth in priority sector advances. The expansion in the export-credit in 1990-91 was also very low relative to that in 1989-90.

NOTE : Data are provisional and relate to 50 (49 from March, 1990 and 48 from August, 1990 due to merger) scheduled commercial banks which account for about 95 per cent of the bank credit of all scheduled commercial banks. Gross bank credit data include bills rediscounted with RBI, IDBI, Exim Bank and other approved financial institutions and inter-bank participations. Net Bank credit data are exclusive of bills rediscounted with RBI, IDBI, Exim bank and other approved financial institutions.

3.10 Data on sectoral deployment of bank credit are available only for April-September, 1991 of the current financial year. During this period gross bank credit showed a smaller expansion of Rs. 2,079 crore (1.8 per cent) as compared with the rise of Rs. 5,059 crore (4.9 per cent) during the corresponding period of 1990. Public food procurement credit showed a decline of Rs. 556 crore (—12.3 per cent) as against a rise of Rs. 1,256 crore (62.6 per cent) during the same period of 1990. Credit to medium and large industry also showed a lower expansion of Rs. 844 crore (1.9 per cent) as compared with the expansion of Rs. 2,064 crore (5.4 per cent) during April-September, 1990. Credit to the 'residual sectors' also showed a lower rise of Rs. 371 crore (1.8 per cent), as compared with the expansion of Rs. 1,489 crore (9 per cent) during April-September 1990. However, the growth in priority sector advances during the period at Rs. 1,121 crore (2.6 per cent) was substantially higher than the increase of Rs. 477 crore (1.2 per cent) during the corresponding period of 1990, due mainly to the sizeable increase of Rs. 986 crore (5.9 per cent) to agriculture as against a decline of Rs. 175 crore (—1.1 per cent) during the comparable period of 1990, offset to some extent by the lower expansion in credit to small scale industries and other priority sectors. Credit to wholesale trade and export credit also showed increases of Rs. 299 crore (5.1 per cent) and Rs. 665 crore (7.3 per cent) respectively, as against declines of Rs. 227 crore (—4.1 per cent) and Rs. 185 crore (—2.2 per cent) during the corresponding period of 1990.

Developments in Credit Policy

3.11 Credit policy has been an important component of the overall economic policy package adopted in the country to promote economic growth and stability. The financial year 1991-92 began with serious problems—backlog of inflation, large budget-deficit and growing current account deficit on balance of payments. The immediate concern of the credit policy adopted by RBI has, therefore, been (i) to supplement the macro—stabilisation measures, as also the structural adjustment process initiated in the economy (ii) to help in fighting inflation by curbing aggregate demand in general and that for imports, in particular, and (iii) to motivate the scheduled commercial banks to expand the flow of credit to the export sector. Though the overall stance of the monetary and credit policy was one of restraint in the expansion of money supply and credit, the consideration that productive sectors, especially the export sector, were supplied with adequate credit, was kept in view.

3.12 The continuing rapid deterioration in the country's external payments situation called for special attention. With the objective of conserving free foreign currency assets, the series of measures introduced since September, 1990, was made more stringent in April, 1991, with the immediate aim of containing overall demand, particularly, that for imports. Thus free foreign exchange was not available for import of capital goods and such imports were to be channelled through foreign currency lines of credit and/or to be made against supplier's credit for at least one year. The prescribed minimum cash margin on imports other than capital goods was raised to 200 per cent for imports under OGL and 150 per cent for imports under Specific Licences. The level of holdings of imported raw materials was continued to be restricted to the prescribed norm or three months, whichever was less. An interest rate surcharge at 25 per cent of the interest rate, was imposed on import finance extended by banks. In addition, restrictions was imposed on drawals by borrowers with large cash credit limits for a limited period. However, while adopting these measures, due care was taken to ensure that export-related activities were, as far as possible, not affected, and some of these measures were not applicable in respect of import of essential commodities like POL, fertilizer, foodgrains, edible oils, newsprint and life saving drugs and equipments, etc.

3.13 Along with above measures, interest rates on export credit were reviewed from time to time with a view to providing an incentive to exporters for repatriating the proceeds as well as discouraging them from delaying repatriation of export proceeds. The higher lending rates for export credit also gave incentive to banks to augment their supply of export credit. As it is, export credit was exempted from the stipulation of maximum (45 per cent) incremental non-food credit-deposit ratio. These measures were reviewed periodically and changes effected in them from time to time to avoid the negative impact on the economy. Thus with improvement in foreign exchange reserves position, it was possible to reduce the percentage of cash margin gradually from 200 per cent in April 1991 to 150 per cent in October, 1991 further to 50 per cent in December, 1991 and then to 25 per cent in January, 1992.

3.14 Details of the credit policy announced by RBI for the first half of 1991-92 were spelt out in detail in Economic Survey 1990-91. In short the RBI revised upwards the interest rate on Non-Resident (External) Rupee Accounts of (a) 3 years to less than 5 years and (b) 5 years and above by one percentag point each to 13 per cent and 14 per cent, respectively. The rate of interet on term deposits of three years and above was raised from 11 to 12 perc ent followed by an across-the-board increase by one percentage point, thus raising the maximum rate from 12 to 13 per cent. Simultaneous upward revisions were also effected in interest rate on bank advances of over Rs. 2 lakhs from 16 per cent (minimum) to 17 per cent (minimum) and further to 18.5 per cent (minimum). The stipulation regarding 60 per cent incremental non-food credit to deposits was brought down to 45 per cent but with the exclusion of export credit (with the base fixed at March 22, 1991). The penalty for its non-fulfilment continued to be a levy of penal interest of additional 3 percentage points on refinance availed or the amount of excess non-food credit, whichever is lower in respect of the defaulting banks. A new formula was introduced for determining export refinance limits for banks which would help the banks in catering to additional credit needs of the export sector without facing resource constraints. While fixing new three year period (1987-88 to 1989-90) for determining credit ceilings of bank advances subject to selective credit control, the level of credit ceilings applicable on oilseeds/vegetable cils was reduced from 100 per cent to 85 per cent.

3.15 The credit policy of RBI adopted in the first half of the current financial year left Statutory Liquidity Ratio (SLR) and Cash Reserve Ratio (CRR) unchanged at 38.5 per cent and 15 per cent respectively of the net demand and time liabilities (DTL) of the scheduled commercial banks. Another instrumet for general credit control came to be reintroduced with effect from May 4, 1991, viz. Incremental Cash Reserve Ratio (ICRR) of 10 per cent (on increase in net demand and time liabilities over the level on May 3, 1991). An attempt was thus made to freeze a part of the additional deposit resources of the banks with the objective of containing overall demand. The additional Cash Reserve Ratio was introduced in January 1977. It was withdrawn in October 1980, but re-introduced in November 1983 and remained in force until end-June, 1989. Banks were paid interest at the rate of 8 per cent on the additional cash reserve deposited with RBI under ICRR.

3.16 As another measure the RBI advised the banks on May 8, 1991 that in case of all accounts of borrowers with aggregate credit limits of Rs. 1 crore and above, effective drawing power under the limits for cash credit and inland bills for the period May 9 to September 30, 1991 should in no case exceed the credit limits existing on May 8, 1991 and be equal to 100 percent of the peak levels of actual utilisation in the similar period of 1988, 1989 and 1990. However, in view of their special significance or needs, export credit and credit for sick/weak units (under sanctioned rehabilitation packages) were kept outside the framework of this stipulation. Similarly, credit for newly established limits due to start production and need-based credit for sugar industry were also treated liberally.

3.17 The third set of general credit control introduced by RBI in the first half of the current financial year basically related to interest rate adjustment. Along with the Bank Rate which was raised from 10 per cent to 11 per cent, the interest rates on term deposits, on bank advances of over Rs. 2 lakh and on refinance facilities available to banks from RBI were adjusted upwards to reinforce anti-inflationary stance of the credit policy.

3.18 The credit policy for the second half of the current financial year (busy season) announced on October 8, 1991 had the same stance of restraint in the growth of money supply and credit. In order to prevent reserve money growth, this credit policy envisaged the withdrawal of certain refinance facilities from Reserve Bank, viz. Food Credit Refinance, Standby Refinance, 182 Days' Treasury Bill Refinance and Discretionary Refinance. Outstandings under these facilities were to be repaid by the banks on the day the sanctioned limit expired or on October 18, 1991 whichever was earlier. Even while indicating of the continuance of the stipulation of 45 per cent, Incremental Non Food Credit (excluding export) to Deposit Ratio (INFCDR) for the scheduled commercial banks under the busy season credit policy, RBI warned the banks that those banks which exceeded this ratio for two successive fortnights would face an automatic reduction in refinance limits for the next four fortnights. Further, any excess credit in each subsequent fortnight would result in a reduction in refinance limits for the subsequent two fortnights and persistent violation of the stipulation would lead to total withdrawal of refinance facilities. The RBI reduced to 5.0 per cent the rate of interest paid on the increase in eligible cash balances of banks on their net DTL after March 23, 1990 as well as eligible cash balances under the 10 per cent incremental CRR.

3.19 At the same time several steps were taken to liberalize or expand credit facilities in certain other areas. Bank credit to export sector has been sought to be promoted under this policy by (i) raising interest rates on export credit and (ii) enhancing export credit refinance facilities from the Reserve Bank to banks both of which are intended to encourage them to lend more credit to exporters. Effective July 27, 1991 banks were being provided export credit refinance (under a two-tier formula of refinance) to the extent of 50 per cent of the increase in export credit over the monthly average level (MAL) of 1988-89 up to the MAL of such credit of 1989-90 plus 100 per cent of the increase over the monthly average level of export credit in 1989-90. Facility of export credit refinance scheme was liberalised further in two stages 60 per cent of the increase in export credit over MAL of 1988-89 up to the MAL of 1989-90 plus 110 per cent of the increase in such credit over the MAL of 1989-90 with effect from November 2, 1991; the second tier of refinance would be raised from 110 per cent to 125 per cent of the increase in such credit over the MAL of 1989-90 with effect from December 28, 1991.

Selective Credit Controls

3.20 On a review of price-output developments in the first half of 1991-92, RBI introduced three measures of selective credit controls, effective from October 9, 1991. Bank advances against cotton and kapas which had been exempt from the provisions of selective credit controls were brought back under them. However, mills/processing units continued to be exempt from the stipulations in this regards.

3.21 Secondly, selective credit controls on bank advances against stocks of pulses were tightened by raising minimum margins by 15 percentage points across-the-board to 60 percent for mills/processing units and against warehouse receipts and 75 per cent for 'others.' Thirdly, the credit ceiling on advances against wheat was reduced to 85 per cent of the peak level of credit maintained by any party in any of the three year period ended 1989-90. Effective February 11, 1992, minimum margins on bank advances against wheat (including advances against roller flour mills) have been raised across-the-board by 15 per cent and those on bank advances against cotton and kapas have been raised by 15 percentage points for 'others' and against warehouse receipts. The existing pattern of selective credit controls on bank advances is presented in Table 3.5.

Interest Rate Changes

3.22 Interest rate adjustment is a both flexible and potent tool and clearly signals changes in credit policy. It can also reinforce restrictive/liberal impact of such a policy. Interest rate adjustments extended not only to bank deposits and advances but also to Bank Rate and refinance facilities of RBI.

3.23 Interest rates on bank deposits were revised upwards three times in the current financial year in keeping with high inflation rate (which made deposits at short-end unattractive) and also with a view to helping these deposits compete effectively with other saving instruments in the market. As a part of the credit policy for the first half of 1991-92 the highest deposit rate (i.e. interest rate on deposits of three years and above was raised from 11 per cent to 12 per cent effective April 13, 1991. Such revision was effected for the second time on July 4, 1991 when all the term deposit rates of the scheduled commercial banks were raised across-the-board by one percentage point each. Finally to provide a better rate of return on short-term surplus funds, interest rate on term deposits of 46 days to less than a year was raised by two percentage point, from 9 per cent to 11 per cent and those on term deposits of (a) one year to less than two years and (b) 2 years to less than three years were raised from 10 per cent to 12 per cent and 11 per cent to 12 per cent respectively. The interest rate on term deposits of three years and above was left unaltered at 13 per cent.

3.24 Interest rates on Non-Resident (External) Rupee (NRE) deposits with maturities of three years and above but less than 5 years and of 5 years and above were raised by one percentage point earlier with effect from April 13, 1991. Accordingly, the maximum interest rate for NRE deposits now stand at 14 per cent in place of 13 per cent earlier.

3.25 Among the interest rate adjustments, an event of significance relates to the changes in the Bank Rate effected in the current financial year. A number of interest rates on advances from the Reserve Bank are specifically linked to the Bank Rate which was 10 per cent since July 1981 (and actually had fallen in disuse) came to be raised during the current financial year from 10 to 11 per cent at the close of business of July 3, 1991 and again from 11 per cent to 12 per cent with effect from the close of business of October 8, 1991. All other rates linked to the Bank Rate also underwent similar upward revisions. In line with the upward revision in the Bank Rate, interest rates payable by the banks on various refinance facilities (viz. food credit, export credit, discretionary and standby refinance) also came to be revised upwards by 0.5 to 3 percentage points. There was an increase of 0.5 percentage point on export refinance (from 9 to 9.5 per cent) and by 3 percentage points on discretionary refinance (from 14 per cent minimum to 17 per cent minimum) effective July 4, 1991.

3.26 Upward revisions were made also in the lending rate of the scheduled commercial banks. The interest rate on bank advances of over Rs. 2 lakh which was made partly flexible with the introduction of only a floor level from October 10, 1988, was raised thrice in the current financial year. The first upward revision was effected on April 13, 1991 when the floor rate of interest on bank advances of this category was raised from 16 per cent to 17 per cent and the effective interest rate on discounting of bills of exchange for this category of borrowers was also raised by one percentage point from 15 per cent (minimum) to 16 per cent (minimum). The same interest rate was raised again from 17 per cent (minimum) to 18.5 per cent (minimum) effective July 4, 1991. The next round of upward revisions was made with effect from October 9, 1991 when the interest rates on all categories of bank advances were raised across-the-board by 1.5 percentage points, bringing the floor rate of interest on bank advances of over Rs. 2 lakh to 20 per cent from 18.5 per cent. In this process the rate of interest on bank advances of over Rs. 2 lakh was raised in stages from 16 per cent (minimum) to 20 percent (minimum) i.e. by four prcentage points and on discounting of bills of exchange for advances of this category from 15 per cent (minimum) to 19 per cent (minimum) with the actual rate being kept at one percentage point below the lending rate charged to such borrowers.

3.27 With a view to encouraging the early repatriation of export proceeds and at the same time making delayed repatriation costlier, interest rates on post-shipment credit were reviewed periodically and revised in four stages with effect from April 1, April 23, August 6, and October 9, 1991. A special concessional rate of 7 per cent was prescribed in April, 1991, for periods up to 45 days, leaving the rate for more than 45 days to 90 days unchanged. Interest rate was stipulated at 18 per cent for the entire period of more than 90 days to less than 6 months and 25 per cent for the entire period if repatriation was delayed beyond 180 days. Following adjustment in the exchange rate of the Rupee, interest rate subsidy on exports was abolished. Consequently, interest rate on export credit was revised effective August 6, 1991. Interest rates on pre-shipment credit were raised

(a) from 7.5 to 12.5 per cent up to 180 days and (b) from 9.5 to 14.5 per cent for period of more than 180 days to 270 days (with prior approval of RBI). In the case of post-shipment credit a uniform interest rate of 12.5 percent was introduced for credit up to 90 days, leaving interest rates on post-shipment credit of longer period unaltered. The lending rates noted above are, however, exclusive of 3 per cent tax on interest income earned by banks with effect from October 1, 1991 since banks are supposed to reimburse themselves by making necessary adjustments in the interest rates charged to borrowers. With further increase in general rates of lending, rates of interest on export credit were also revised upwards effective October 9, 1991, so as to ensure that lower lending rates for export credit did not act as a disincentive to banks for extending export credit. Comparative position of interest rates on export credit is shown in Table 3.6.

3.28 In recognition of the need for timely and adequate credit to exporters from banks and of possible leakages in the flow of such credit (because of low interest rate on exports credit), the RBI came to revise the interest rate on export credit further to provide greater incentive to banks. Effective October 9, 1991 for pre-shipment credit, the interest rate was raised from 12.5 per cent to 15 per cent for credit up to 180 days and from 14.5 per cent to 17 percent for credit beyond 180 days and up to 270 days. As regards post-shipment credit for usance periods upto 90 days, interest rate was raised by 2.5 percentage points, to 15 per cent from 12.5 per cent and interest rate for period beyond 90 days and up to 6 months by 2 percentage points to 20 per cent from 18 per cent (higher rate being applicable to period beyond 90 days and from the date of advance as hitherto).

3.29 The current high levels of interest rate have been dictated by the existing inflationary situation which called for the adoption of a restrictive monetary policy. Various measures of supply and demand management have since been introduced to tackle inflation. A reduction in inflation alone will enable relaxation in monetary policy and reduction in interest rates. Further, as the process of fiscal consolidation and reduction in fiscal deficit takes hold, the Government may have to consider a phased reduction in Statutory Liquidity Ratio (SLR) and ease the interest rate on bank deposits. It would seem appropriate that the process of interest rate liberalisation continues and government focus attention on three other key priorities, viz., promoting a market oriented allocation of credit, implementing policies to promote the development of capital markets and enhancing soundness of the banking system. Existing rates for term deposits and selected categories of advances of scheduled commercial banks are indicated in Table 3.6.

Change in import finance

3.30 The critical balance of payments position called for not only long term measures but also short term management of exceptional nature. Thus the credit policy in the current financial year had certain elements of unconventional monetary policy instruments with a view to ensuring that external payment obligations were met and the foreign exchange reserves remained at a reasonable level. This was sought to be achieved, firstly, through compression of imports by containing import demand financed by banks and, secondly, through export promotion by motivating banks to direct larger flow of credit to export sector.

3.31 The balance of payments position in general and of foreign exchange reserves, in particular, was closely monitored by the Reserve Bank of India and response to implovement in this regard reflected in gradual and selective relaxation in the terms of bank finance for imports. These exemptions emphasised the need to increase export and, hence imports other than of capital goods under post-payment Replenishment, post-payment Additional, post-payment Special Additional Licences and EXIM Scrips were exempted from the requirement of prescribed minimum cash margins. Effective September, 1991, exemptions were extended to (a) merchanting trade transactions governed by chapter 13 of the Exchange Control Manual, Volume I (b) import of raw cashewnut for processing and exports as cashewkernel subject to fulfilment of certain conditions. Exemption from the requirement of prescribed minimum cash margin provided in the case of imports by manufacturer-exporters of finished leather, leather products, chemicals and pharmaceuticals, engineering goods, garments and marine products up to 10 per cent of the actual export realisation from General Currency Areas (GCA) during the previous accounting year, subject to a monetary ceiling of Rs. 2.5 crore in a year provided that no export bill remained outstanding beyond the prescribed tolerance level, was enhanced to 20 per cent with a ceiling of Rs. 5 crore. Further, import of certain types of hide and skins, leather and chemicals under OGL by manufacturer-exporters, export houses and trading houses was exempt from the requirement of cash margin.

3.32 On a review of the situation the minimum cash margin for imports of goods other than capital goods under OGL was reduced, effective October 8, 1991, to 150 per cent, i.e. at par with the minimum cash margin stipulated for imports of goods other than capital goods under specific licences. Secondly, partial exemption from the requirement of prescribed minimum cash margin available for certain manufacturer-exporters (to General Currency Areas) was extended to manufacturer-exporters, export and trading houses dealing in woollen goods and carpets, agro-products and processed foods, sports goods and handicrafts. The limit of exemption was also enhanced to 30 per cent subject to a monetary ceiling of Rs. 10 crore in a year.

3.33 Banks were advised on November 9, 1991 that for all imports, other than that of capital goods, covered under letters of credit (whether on sight or usuance basis), cash margin might be released at the time of retirement of documents or on production of Exchange Control Copy of the Customs Bill of Entry (either home consumption or warehousing) whichever was earlier. For imports not covered by letters of credit, cash margins may be released after the retirement of import documents, subject to a minimum period of three months unless covered by suppliers' credit for a minimum period of 180 days in which case the amount of cash margin could be released on clearance of goods and production of the E.C. copy of the Customs Bill of Entry.

3.34 The facility of bank finance for imports, free from minimum cash margin hitherto available for certain thrust sectors for exports, was extended to all manufacturer-exporters to GCA with effect from November 15, 1991 and the monetary ceiling revised to Rs. 30 crore from Rs. 10 crore per year. The benefit of relaxation from the requirement of cash margins made available earlier to exporter having Advance Licences Holder was exteneded to supporter–manufacturers as well. The requirement of seeking prior clearance of the Reserve Bank of India for all imports other than capital goods of Rs. 50 lakh and above, except for certain export related purposes, was dispensed with in all cases of imports exempt from cash margins, including imports uder EXIM scrips, except in cases of import under suppliers' credit exceeding 180 days.

3.35 The prescribed minimum cash margin for imports of goods other than capital goods under OGL and specific licences was drastically reduced from 150 to 50 per cent (except for specific categories for which it had already been relaxed or waived) with effect from December 9, 1991. Requirement of prior centralised clearance by the RBI for these goods (subject to minimum cash margin) was also waived. Imports of scientific and technical books and journals (Item 35 of Appendix of IMPEX policy 1990—93), as also medical equipments/instruments subject to a ceiling of Rs. 10 lakh per consignment, was exempt from the requirement of minimum cash margin. Effective January 1, 1992, the requirement of prescribed minimum Cash margin on imports other than capital goods was further reduced to 25 per cent.

3.36 Reserve Bank of India launched, with effect from Jan. 1, 1992, a scheme called "Post-shipment Export Credit Denominated in Foreign Currency (PSCFC)" with a view to enabling exporters to have post-shipment credit denominated in US dollars (as against the existing system of such credit in Rupees) and pay interest at rates applicable to the foreign curreny concerned. The exporters continue to obtain post-shipment export credit in Rupees also. The scheme was made optional for banks, but they were advised to extend the facility of such credit denominated in a foreign currency to the desirous exporters. Export bills denominated in a foreign currency other than US Dollars could also be denominated by conversion at appropriate exchange rate in US Dollars for credit purposes. Rate of interest to be charged on such credit (repayable in foreign currency) will be notified from time to time by the Reserve Bank of India. (It has since been fixed at 8.5 per cent). Exchange risk will be that of bank and the transactions will be reflected in the position of the bank. For this scheme, banks will have a separate refinance scheme from RBI to be effective from January 4, 1992. The refinance under Refinance Scheme for Post-shipment credit denominated in US Dollars will be equivalent to 133.1/3 per cent of such credit provided by banks to exporters and will have the same interest rate of 9.5 per cent as for usual export credit refinance. The scheme is expected to be attractive both to bankers and exporters and improve the flow of credit to export sector.

Developments in the Money Market

3.37 Money market plays an important role in the financial sector in finding avenues for profitable investment for short-term surpluses and making available short-term funds for banks needing them. It thus works as a equilibrating mechanism, evening out short-term surpluses and shortages in the financial sector. Reserve Bank continued with its initiatives in broadening and deepening Indian money market by not only increasing the number of participants in money market but also by facilitating trading in money market instruments through appropriate liberalisation of terms governing their issue. Discount and Finance House of India Ltd. has actively participated in money market transactions and continued with its efforts in developing secondary markets for the money market instruments. Steps were also taken to contain the spiralling of money market rates which remain free (as against other lending rates which are administered) and have to bear the burden of equilibrating the system.

3.38 182 Days' Treasury bills remained a major money market instrument. Introduced in November 1986, this money market instrument came to be promoted systematically by Discount and Finance House of India. The outstanding amount of these bills increased from Rs. 774.30 crore as on March 23, 1990, to a peak of Rs. 2,363 crore on October 3, 1990 but declined substantially to Rs. 1,077.59 crore as on March 22, 1991. It again picked up to a level of Rs. 2,146.77 crore as on June 28, 1991. The cut-off yield on these bills has declined fractionally to 10 per cent per annum in early August, 1991 from 10.08 per cent per annum in January 1991. It was again at 10.08 per cent per annum on January 10, 1992 with the outstanding amount being Rs. 3,783.47 crore.

3.39 The second instrument viz. Certificates of Deposits (CDs) had also gained market over the years. On June 28, 1991 outstanding amount of CDs issued by 50 scheduled commercial banks was Rs. 4,556 crore (62.2 per cent of the limits of these banks). This compares well with Rs. 3,265 crore outstanding on March 22, 1991. CDs are issued with maturities from 3 months to one year. The typical interest rate for a 3 months CD was in the range of 14 to 16 per cent per annum. For one year CD it is between 15 per cent and 16 per cent. At the end of December, 1991 the outstanding amount of CDs stood at Rs. 5,023 crore.

3.40 The third new money market instrument, viz. Commercial Paper (CP) was introduced in January, 1990. Maturity period of CP issued by 27 companies so far ranged from 3 months to 6 months and the effective interest rates were in the range of 11.7 to 20.9 per cent per annum. The outstanding amount of CP's issued has kept on rising and reached a level of Rs. 142.8 crore at the end of December, 1991.

3.41 In order to moderate the volatality in call money rates RBI took certain measures like increased availability of discretionary refinance facility, softening of the loss of interest in cases of CRR defaults and higher limit for the issue of CDs by banks. During the fortnight ended March 22, 1991, the call rate rose to 28 per cent as against 16.5 per cent during fortnight ended December 28, 1990. Increased requirements of funds by banks for maintaining higher level of CRR in the fortnight ended April 19, 1991 and SLR for the fortnight ended May 3, 1991 following the year end bulge in bank deposits led to sharp rise in call money rates, also because some financial institutions either reduced or stopped lending in the call money market. However, measures taken to widen call and notice money market by increasing the number of participants expanded the flow of funds into this market. As a result, the peak call money rate came down to 17.5 per cent in the fortnight ended August 9, 1991. However, this was much higher than 11 per cent peak rate in the corresponding fortnight a year ago. The peak call-money rate stood at 16.25 per cent during the fortnight ended December, 27, 1991 as against 15 per cent a year ago.

3.42 In the current financial year Reserve Bank took several steps to promote money market instruments and strengthen/deepen the money market. The limits for the issue of CDs by the scheduled commercial banks (excluding RRBs) were enhanced from 3 per cent to 5 per cent of the fortnightly average of outstanding aggregate deposits in 1989-90 effective April 20, 1991 to provide flexibility to the banks in raising funds from the market in times of need for funds. The aggregate limits for the banking system for the issue of CDs were raised from Rs. 4,522 crore to Rs. 7,537 crore.

3.43 Relaxations were also introduced in the guidelines regarding the issue of CPs to make room for greater participation and introduce flexibility in operations of issuing companies. Need for prior approval of RBI to the issue of CP has been waived. The ceiling of working capital (Fund-based) limit for issue of CP by a company, has been raised to 30 per cent and working capital (Fund based) limit for eligibility of the company seeking to issue CP was reduced to Rs. 10 crore.

3.44 In order to create an additional short-term avenue to invest and bring money market instruments within the reach of individuals and small bodies, Reserve Bank announced a decision in April 1991 to set up Money Market Mutual Funds (MMMFs) which would be a special variety of mutual funds investing only in high quality money market instruments of a short term nature. It wes envisaged that only banks and their subsidiaries would be permitted to set up such mutual funds in which individuals and other bodies would be permitted to invest their resources in the form of negotiable/transferable instruments and MMMFs deposit accounts. Minimum size of such investment would be Rs. one lakh with a minimum lock-in period of 3 months for repurchase. The funds mobilised by MMMFs would be exempted from reserve requirements since these funds are to be invested in money market instruments. Reserve Bank has already set up a Task Force consisting of representatives of banks/financial institutions to fully develop the operational details and study the implications of the scheme of MMMFs. The tesk force has since submitted its report to the RBI.

3.45 It has also been the steady endeavour of RBI to promote bill financing by commercial banks. It has encouraged the entry of larger number of participants in the bill rediscounting markets in order to widen them. However, the intending entrants are required to show evidence of having bulk lendable resources and observe minimum size of operations of Rs. 20 crore per transactions which will be permitted only through DFHI. The lending rate on bill finance has been kept always one percentage point lower than the rate on cash credit of the relevant category so that borrowers are urged to switch more and more to the former from the latter. The removal in August 1989 of stamp duty on bills of exchange payable to banks (commercial and co-operative within not more than three months after the date of sight was another incentive for such change-over. Even then it has not gained the desired momentum. Proportion of bank credit under the category of "bill discounted" in total bank credit was about 6 per cent in September, 1991.

3.46 However, parties using bill discounting/rediscounting facilities have been found to draw credit from the banks well above the established credit norms. Banks' lending to hire purchase and equipment leasing companies is subject to a ceiling of three times the net owned funds. RBI has recently directed that credit provided to these companies by way of bill discounting/rediscounting should also be taken into account while providing facilities to such companies. In the case of finance companies (other than above noted ones) banks have been advised to ensure that total credit accommodation provided by banks inclusive of bill discounting/rediscounting facilities, should not exceed three times the net owned funds.

Term Lending Institutions

3.47 Aggregate assistance sanctioned and disbursed by the term lending financial institutions (Development Finance Institutions) in the last financial year 1990-91 shows continuance of the increasing trend seen in preceeding two years (as will be evident from Table 4.8 of the Appendix). In the three year period (1988-89 to 1990-91) aggregate assistance sanctioned by them recorded an average annual growth rate of 31 per cent while aggregate disbursements of assistance rose at an annual average rate of 22.5 per cent. Among the all India Financial Institutions viz. Industrial Development Bank of India (IDBI), Industrial Finance Corporation of India (IFCI), Industrial credit and Investment Corporation of India (ICICI), small Industries Development Bank of India (SIDBI), Life Insurance Corporation of India (LIC), General Insurance Corporation of India (GIC) and Unit Trust of India (UTI), together accounted for the major share of the total assistance sanctioned (Rs. 20,033 crore) and disbursed (Rs. 12,471 crore) by all financial institutions in 1990-91.

3.48 Among industries, disbursements of assistance to iron and steel, rubber, paper, fertilisers, chemicals and chemical products and electrical and electronic equipment recorded significant growth rates. Direct assistance sanctioned by all India financial institutions for new projects recorded a growth rate of 32.5 per cent and for modernisation/rehabilitation purposes recorded a growth rate of 81.1 per cent.

3.49 Provisional data for the first six months, i.e., April—September, 1990 and 1991 in respect of all India financial Institutions are presented in Table 3.7. Data show that total sanctioned assistance by them in April—September 1991 was 9.6 per cent higher than that in April-September, 1990 and disbursements in April—September, 1991 recorded a much higher growth of 39.9 per cent over the level reached in the corresponding period of 1990.

NOTES : 1. Data are provisional.

2. Totals are adjusted for inter-institutional flows.

3.50 It is relevant here to note the contributions made by the financial institutions to the growth of risk and venture capital assistance in our country. Risk capital and Technology Finance Corporation Ltd. (RCTC) established in 1988 after reconstitution of Risk Capital Foundation (RCF) set up earlier in 1975 by IFCI provides risk capital assistance to first generation enterpreneurs on soft terms under Risk Capital Scheme and also supplies conventional loans and interest free (conditional) loans under Technology Finance Scheme to projects that envisage adaptation/ commercialisation of new technologies. Similarly Technology Development and Information Company of India (TDICI) was set up by ICICI and UTI in July, 1988 as India's first venture finance company. It primarily assists small and medium scale projects conceived by technocrat-enterpreneurs by providing project finance in the form of equity or conditional loans, apart from offering technology information service. On cumulative basis, up to March end, 1991 the assistance disbursed by RCF/RCTC and TDICI has not been very large, being of the order of Rs. 29.8 crore and Rs. 24.7 crore respectively.

3.51 Consortium financing arrangements amongst All India financial institutions were further liberalised in 1990-91. Assistance to projects costing up to Rs. 20 crore are now considered for sanction of assistance by the institution receiving the application without reference to the inter-institutional fora.

3.52 The interest rates on financial assistance have been made flexible with the introduction of a floor rate of 15 percent. Institutions are now free to charge an interest rate, beyond the floor in accordance with their perception of the credit worthiness of borrowers.

3.53 Another important development in this segment of the financial sector is that these financial institutions have started tapping the capital market for raising resources. During 1990-91 for the first time ICICI entered the capital market since its initial offer in 1955 with a public-cum-rights issue of shares and raised Rs. 100 crores. Shipping Credit and Investment Corporation of India also issued additional equity shares for Rs. 25 crore to public in this year.

3.54 As the number of these institutions has been growing and their activity getting expanded and diversified, it is being felt that they should approach capital market in raising resources and that the consortium finance is not the best available method of development finance. There is also a felt need to lay down prudential guidelines to govern their functions. These guidelines may relate, interalia, to their capital adequacy, provisioning against bad debts proper valuation of the assets, sound accounting policies and disclosure requirements. Above all, it can not be denied that for a proper management of monetary policy, their credit policies should be consistent with the overall monetary and credit policies pursued by R BI.

Institutional Developments in the Financial Sector

3.55 Discount and Finance House of India (DFHI) which entered the fourth year of its operations on April 25, 1991 has been seeking to develop an active secondary market for the money market instruments and integrate various segments of the market in order to facilitate the smoothening of short-term liquidity imbalances. In its operations, the emphasis is placed on a high turn-over in the money market instruments rather than on being their repository.

3.56 Apart from making 182 Days Treasury bills a highly liquid instrument, DFHI operates in; (a) inter-bank call money and short notice money market; (b) inter-bank term deposit (15—90 days) market, both as lender and borrower and as a broker); (c) commercial papers (CP) and certificates of deposits (CD). The spread/ margin on its money market instruments is not very large but sufficient profits for the DFHI are generated because of large turnover.

3.57 In 1991-92, DFHI enhanced its paid up capital from Rs. 150 crore to Rs. 200 crore to augment its resources. Besides DFHI enjoys refinance facilities from RBI against the holding of Commercial Bills/ derivative usance promissory notes (at 13-18 per cent interest rate). It also continues to avail of a line of credit of Rs. 100 crore (at a minimum of 20 per cent interest) from the consortium of public sector banks for rediscounting of commercial bills.

3.58 During the current financial year DFHI sought to increase its reliance on market funding for business activities and availed of refinance from RBI indeed as a last resort. Average outstanding refinance from RBI in April—September 1991 against the average holdings of commercial bills was 42 per cent, which implies that balance funding was done through own funds and market access, indicative of growing intergration of different segments of secondary money market.

3.59 The total lendings by DFHI in call money market during the current financial year (up to January 10, 1992) was significantly higher at Rs. 254,018 crore as against Rs. 142,067 crore (up to January 11, 1991), in the preceeding year. The daily average lendings by DFHI has increased to Rs. 711.9 crore as against Rs. 579.6 crore last year. During the current year, lending in notice money market (up to 14 days) and term money market (over 14 days and up to 90 days) amounted to Rs. 2,520 crore and Rs. 4,705 crore, respectively.

3.60 The turnover in 182 Days Treasury Bills in the current financial year (up to January 17, 1992) amounted to Rs. 20,406 crore as against Rs. 27,722 crore (up to January 18, 1991) in 1990-91. The reasons for lower turnover during current financial year as compared with that in the last year could be that due to delay in floatation of new loans by the Central Government, treasury bills were held by banks as cover for meeting Statutory Liquidity Ratio. Some of the institutions, like NABARD and DICGC also held treasury bills for deploying their short-term surpluses. Many banks also preferred to hold treasury bills rather than Government dated securities due to strong expectation of a rise in coupon rates of dated Government securities. This has since come true.

3.61 In respect of commercial bills, the turnover during the current financial year (up to January 17, 1992) amounted to Rs. 6,712 crore as against Rs. 10,572 crore (up to January 18, 1991) last year. The lower turnover this year could be on account of diversion of a part of lendable funds of many financial institutions to call money market apparently because of high call money rates in the first quarter of the year.

3.62 The secondary market for certificates of deposit (CDs) and commercial paper (CP) continued to be subdued as investors preferred to hold these instruments till maturity. There was a nominal turnover of Rs. 14 crore in CDs and Rs. 42 crore in CP during the current year.

3.63 The National Housing Bank (NHB) as an apex agency in housing finance seeks to promote a sound and effective institutional framework for the supply of finance in the housing sector as also for augmentation of supply materials and components. NHB has since been notified as a "Public Financial Institution" for purposes of Section 4A of the Companies Act, 1956. This would enable NHB to diversify its efforts for mobilisation of resources. The paid-up-capital of NHB and long-term loan availed by it from RBI as at end June 1991 stood at Rs. 200 crore and Rs. 125 crore respectively.

3.64 The National Housing Bank took various measures to augment its fund. It raised Rs. 88 crores under 20 year (12 percent) Government guaranteed bonds, S25m (Rs. 48.74 crore) by borrowing from US capital market (under USAID Govt. Housing Guaranty Program) and 2.97 billion Yen (Rs. 50 crore) from Overseas Economic Co-operation Fund of Japan and Rs. 171 crore loan from LIC. Negotiations have been started for finalising the modalities for drawing the second tranche of US $ 25 million under USAID Housing Guaranty Program. Under the Capital Gains Bonds Scheme launched on July 20, 1990 NHB collected Rs. 115 crore up to end December, 1991. Under Home Loan Account Scheme which was extended to select Housing Finance companies (HFCs) a total of about Rs. 100 crore has been deposited through 5.44 lakh accounts. NHB is also formulation schemes for launching Mutual Fund and Pension Fund to garner resources.

3.65 An important initiative taken by NHB which sought both to raise resources for social housing (slum clearance/upgradation and low-cost housing for poor) and to tap black money was the launching of National Housing (Voluntary Deposits) Scheme 1991 under the Voluntary Deposits (Immunities and Exemption) Act, 1991. Under this scheme persons, viz, individuals, a Hindu undivided family, a company, a firm, an association of persons or a body of individuals, can make deposits with immunity from enquiry and investigation at 855 identified branches of 8 designated banks and without any limit on the number and amount of such deposits. The scheme, initially open upto November 30, 1991 has since been extended upto January end, 1992. 40 per cent of these deposits will be credited to a special fund of NHB for social housing and remaining sixty percent can be withdrawn without any lock-in period by the depositor. As on January 23, 1992 a total of Rs. 831 million has been deposited under the scheme.

3.66 Till end December 1991, the total refinance assistance provided by NHB to eligible primary leaders rose to Rs. 740.84 crore, apart from Rs. 28.54 crore by way of ad hoc financial assistance to HFC's. Of the total refinance provided by NHB so far, HFC's account for the lion's share.

3.67 In line with the increase by RBI in the ceiling rate of interest on deposits of non-banking financial companies from 14 per cent per annum to 15 per cent per annum with effect from July 27, 1991, the ceiling rate of interest on deposits of HFCs was also correspondingly raised.

3.68 Consequent on increase in the interest rate on deposits of HFCs, NHB raised the interest rate structure for housing finance by HFCs as also its refinance rates, increasing the spreads. The spread available to HFCs now is 2 per cent on loans above Rs. 15,000 and upto Rs. 50,000 and 1.5 per cent on loans above Rs. 50,000 and upto Rs. 2,00,000 as against the earlier spread of 1.5 per cent and 1 per cent respectively. The revised rates of interest effective October 1, 1991 are as follows :

Amount of loan	Rate of interest charged (Per cent Per annum)
	Refinance	Loans to actual beneficiaries
(a) Acquisition/Construction of New housing Unit
1. Upto Rs. 7,500	8.0	10.0
2. Rs. 7,500 to Rs. 15,000	9.5	11.5
3. Above Rs. 15,000 to Rs. 25,000	11.0	13.0
4. Above Rs. 25,000 to Rs. 50,000	13.0	15.0
5. Above Rs. 50,000 to Rs. 1 Lakh	14.0	15.5
6. Above Rs. 1 Lakh to Rs. 2 Lakh	14.5	16.0
7. Above Rs. 2 Lakh	No refinance	16.0 (min)
(b) Upgradtion/major repairs
(a) Upto Rs. 30,000	13.0	15.0
(b) Above Rs. 30,000	No refinance	16.0 (min)

3.69 In the wake of the across-the-board increase of 1.5 percentage points in the lending rates of scheduled commercial banks by RBI effective from October 9, 1991. NHB also revised the rates of interest to be charged by banks on housing loans to ultimate beneficiaries as also its refinance rates. While the spread of 2 per cent between refinance rates and interest rates for ultimate beneficiaries remained unchanged in respect of housing loans up to Rs. 25,000, the spread for higher bracket loans has been increased by 0.5 per cent. The following is the interest rate structure for scheduled commercial banks, effective October 9,1991.

Amount of loan	Rate of interest* (Per cent per annum) Refinance	Loans to actual beneficiaries
1. Upto Rs. 7,500	9.5	11.5
2. About Rs. 7,501 to 15,000	11.0	13.0
3. Above Rs. 15,000 to Rs. 25,000	11.5	13.5
4. Above Rs. 25,000 to Rs. 50,000	13.5	15.5
5. Above Rs. 50,000 to Rs. 2 lakh	15.0	16.5

*(exclusive of interest tax)

3.70 NHB has also provided a line of credit (Rs. 150 crore so far) to HUDCO for assisting in the construction of houses for the people belonging to economically weaker sections and low-income group categories. It has further agreed to provide Rs. 20 crore as refinance assistance for housing programmes of Andhra Pradesh and Rs. 30 crore for resconstruction of houses of persons affected by recent earthquake in the hilly regions of Uttar Pradesh. NHB has entered into an agreement with the State Government of Maharashtra for refinancing slum upgradation scheme in Bombay for Rs. 25 crore in the first phase. Besides, it will also provide Rs. 25 crore as refinance assistance to Andhra Pradesh for building 50,000 houses for EWS and 10,000 families of bidi workers. NHB has also cleared 4 proposals with total capital outlay of Rs. 23.47 crore from different states for aggregate equity subscription by it to the extent of Rs. 1.16 crore for manufacturing of high-tech but low-cost building materials.

3.71 Certain changes were made in guidelines issued/formulated by NHB for public agencies, cooperative housing societies and professional developers in Land Development and Shelter Projects (LDSPs) under which projects are refinanced by NHB through scheduled commercial banks and HFIs. The objective was to bring flexibility in the schemes in the light of existing local conditions and to encourage the use of local and low cost building materials. For instance, the stipulation of (a) plot size of 60 sqm in the case of developed plots and (b) minimum 75 per cent of the dwelling units of 40 sqm are now relaxable subject to cost ceilings of Rs. 50,000 and Rs. 1.5 lakh including the cost of land, respectively. With a view to encouraging professional developers to undertake housing projects on large scale, NHB has revised with effect from January 1, 1992, the guidelines for LDSP for professional developers. The major changes in the guidelines have been effected in the rate of interest on project loaning and the cost of developed plot (raised to Rs. 60,000 from Rs. 50,000 stipulated earlier) and dwelling unit (raised to Rs. 2 lakh from Rs. 1.5 lakh stipulated earlier). Effective from January 1, 1992 NHB has also issued guidelines for financing housing infrastructure schemes which were not covered under LDSP guidelines issued earlier. NHB will consider such infrastructural facilities for financial assistance under these guidelines. Effective January 1, 1992, NHB has revised rate of interest for providing refinance under LDSP schemes in the light of revision effected by RBI and NHB for scheduled commercial banks and HFIs respectively. Under these guidelines till January 7, 1992 NHB has cleared 51 Detailed Project Reports (DPR) with an estimated total project cost of Rs. 376.39 crore for the development of 18,490 plots and 40,559 dwelling units. These include 12 Squatter Resettlement Schemes in Madhya Pradesh with a capital outlay of Rs. 59.48 crore envisaging construction of 22,797 dwelling units.

3.72 In recognition of the need for giving due priority to provision of shelter in the rural areas, NHB has formulated a scheme for subscription to "Special Rural Housing Debentures" floated by state land development banks in respect of lending for rural housing. Under the scheme, NBH has provided refinance assistance of about Rs. 50 crores upto end December, 1991, on housing loans upto Rs. 1 lakh and loans upto Rs. 30,000 for repairs/upgradation of existing houses in rural areas. NHB also accords preference to programmes of land development and shelter projects undertaken by public agencies in rural and semi-urban areas.

3.73 In the current financial year the Credit Rating Information Services of India Limited (CRISIL), India's first credit rating agency, continued to make steady progress in its operations. Its special product known as CREDIT ASSESSMENT for small-sized finance companies, developed initially for the State Bank of India, is now being used by some of the nationalised banks as well, as an additional input in their decision making process on the terms of lending to such companies. CRISIL's quarterly publication, CRISIL RATINGSCAN which presents the rationale for ratings assigned, the list of ratings in use, as well as, ratings reviewed during a quarter received an encouraging response. In the current financial year its CRISILCARD service will contain information on at least 200 companies (as against 100 companies last year).

3.74 The freeing of interest rates on debentures and the mandatory requirement of rating of certain categories of debentures are stages towards institutionalization of the concept of credit rating. By end January, 1992, CRISIL had rated 229 debt instruments, issued by 196 companies (including four companies belonging to the public sector) covering a total debt of Rs. 8,782 crore. Apart from fixed deposit programmes, debentures and short-term instruments, CRISIL had rated 56 commercial paper programmes covering a total debt volume of Rs. 703 crore. In addition, CRISIL had completed CREDIT ASSESSMENT of 54 companies.

Financial Sector Reforms

Report of the Committee on the Financial System

3.75 A nine member committee under the chairmanship of Shri M. Narasimham, former Governor, Reserve Bank of India was set up by the Government of India (GOI) to examine the existing structure of the financial system and its various components and to make recommendations for improving the efficiency and effectiveness of the system, with particular reference to economy of operations, accountability and profitability and for infusing greater competitve vitality into the system so as to enable the banks and financial institutions to respond more effectively to the emerging credit needs of the economy. The committee was also asked to review the existing supervisory arrangement relating to the various entities in the financial sector, in particular the commercial banks and term lending institutions, and to make recommendations for ensuring appropriate and effective supervision. It was also expected of the committee to review the existing legislative framework and to suggest necessary amendments for implementing the recommendations.

3.76 The report of the committee was tabled in both the houses of Parliament on December 17, 1991. The committee's approach to the subject of financial sector reform was based on three broad and interrelated premises. The first was the perception that the spirit of competitive efficiency that is sought to be brought about in the real sectors of the economy should also cover the financial sector for the exercise to be meaningful and successful. The second premise was that to be ab le to perform this task effectively in an environment of competitive efficiency, the financial system itself should be healthy and profitable. The third premise was that for the financial sector to operate on an efficient basis it would need to have a measure of operational flexbiility and, more importantly, autonomy in decision making and that credit and investment decisions should be baseed on professionalism and be free from any type of extraneous pressure.

3.77 The Committee has, inter-alia, recommended, (a) establishment of a four tier hierarchy for the banking structure with 3 or 4 large banks including State Bank of India at the top (which could be international in character) and rural banks (including RRBs) at the bottom (confined to rural areas and mainly engaged in financing agriculture and related activities); (b) hiving off supervisory functions over banks and financial instiutions to a separate quasi-autonomous body under aegis of the RBI;(c) a phased achievement of 8 percent capital adequacy ratio as recommended by the Basle Committee; (d) abolition of branch licensing policy; (e) phased reduction in SLR starting from 1991-92;(f) deregulation of interest rates which are to be related to the Bank Rate on the basis of guidelines given by the Chakravarty Commitee; (g) competition among financial instrutitions which will adopt a syndicating or participating (instead of consortium) approach; (h) retention by IDBI of only its refinancing role and delegation of its direct lending activity to a separate corporate body; (i) prudential guidelines governing the functioning of financial institutions and; (j) proper classification of assets and full disclosure and transparency of accounts of banks and financial Institutions.

3.78 The Committee also made recommendations regarding directed investments and credit programmes and setting up of a separate institution by the Government of India to be known as Asset Reconstruction Fund with the express purpose of taking over a portion of the loan portfolio of banks which has become bad and doubtful and whose recovery is being hampered by the slow legal process. Thus, the recommendations seek to address issues of declining profitability and efficiency and seek to restore the autonomy and flexibility of operations within an overall framework of reasonable monetary stability. They cover policy aspects, organisational issues, accounting practices and operational 'procedures but underlying them all is the central point of qualitative improvement of the advances portfolio and attention to enhancing the inherent strength of the institutions.

3.79 The report of the committee is under examination by the Reserve Bank of India and Government.

Report of the Goiporia Committee

3.80 The improvement in the customer service in banks has long been a concern of the Reserve Bank of India and the Government. In the post bank nationalisation era, this matter assumed greater importance and was examined by both the Banking Commission (chairman: Shri R.G. Saraiya), 1972 and the Working Group on customer service in banks (chairman : Shri R.K. Talwar), 1975. To oversee the implementation of the recommendations made by the latter, a standing committee on customer service in banks was also set up with representatives from the Government, RBI, banks, and Indian Banks' Association. Special drive was made to record and monitor the disposal of complaints made by the customers against services rendered by their banks.

3.81 In September, 1990, a new committee was set up by RBI under the chairmanship of Shri M.N. Goiporia, Chairman, State Bank of India to look into the causes of below-par customer service in banks, to identifiy structural and operational rigidities in the banking system, find ways and means to upgrade technology in banks, address deficiencies in bank service and suggest ways to improve work culture among bank employees. The committee submitted its report on 6th December, 1991.

3.82 In its report, the committee has observed that disservice to customer should be treated as delinquency and that an indifferent and casual approach to work should not go unnoticed. The report has identified quite a number of areas of customer service which call for improvement. Among its major recommendations are (i) extension of banking hours for all transactions except cash, (ii) change in the commencement of working hour for bank staff to facilitate timely opening of the bank counters, (iii) immediate credit of outstation cheques upto Rs. 5,000 as against Rs. 2,500 at present, (iv) enchancement of interest rate on savings account, (v) introduction of tax benefits against bank deposits, (vi) full use of discretionary powers vested in the bank staff at all levels, (vii) expeditious despatch of documents lodged for collection and regular follow-up with the foreign bank to facilitate timely realisation of export proceeds in the case of export finance, (viii) extension of teller's duties, (ix) modernisation of banks, (x) opening of specialised branches for different customer groups, (xi) a new instrument in the form of Bank Orders and (xii) introduction of restricted holidays in banks.

3.83 The recommendations of the committee are being processed.

Outlook

3.84 Money supply growth may get accelerated because of (a) improvement in foreign exchange resources, and (b) larger expansion of bank credit in busy season (October-March) than in the preceding slack season. The only alternative left, therefore, is to make a significant reduction in net Reserve Bank credit to Government with measures to contain fiscal deficit, if monetary growth target is to be achieved by the year end.

3.85 A dynamic and responsive financial sector is a basic requirement for a dynamic and efficient economy. Banks are and continue to remain the most powerful instrument for collections of savings. However, following British tradition, banks are basically suppliers of short-term funds while financial institutions mainly provide term capital. Banks as well as financial institutions need some structural changes and policy reorientation corresponding to the economy's shift towards a more competitive and dynamic environment. As the banks get increasingly drawn into term finance, at least through their subsidiaries, the financial institutions may also meet short-term capital needs of the borrower. At the same time, effective steps need to be taken to remove the heavy burden of bad debts and lessen the multiplicity of regulations that may hinder their efficient growth in future. As the price of borrowed funds, interest rates also require review.

PRICES AND DISTRIBUTION

The prices which had risen rapidly in 1990-91, continued their rise in 1991-92. The wholesale price index (WPI) registered 11.7 per cent increase from April 1991 to February 1, 1992 and the consumer price index (CPI) for industrial workers increased by 11.9 per cent from April to December, 1991. The annual rate of inflation was 12.1 per cent in terms of WPI as on the February 1, 1992 and 13.1 per cent in terms of CPI for industrial workers in December, 1991.

The major concern about inflation during the current year, as in 1990-91, is that it is concentrated in primary commodities including items such as foodgrains, vegetables, sugar and edible oils. Prices have tended to rise even in respect of commodities which are not in short supply.

Some pressure on prices may have arisen because of increase in the prices of administered items such as coal, petroleum products (other than diesel and kerosene), fertilizer, and electricity. However, the impact of these changes is small and in any case a failure to adjust these prices would have meant a larger deficit and correspondingly higher price pressure elsewhere in the system. A steep increase in prices was also observed in respect of raw cotton.

The buildup of inflationary pressures is mainly attributable to excess demand arising from the large and persistent fiscal deficits over the years, resulting in excessive growth in money supply and a liquidity overhang. There have also been supply and demand imbalances in sensitive commodities like pulses, edible oils, etc. due to shortfalls in domestic production and constraints in importing desired quantities due to the severe foreign exchange crunch. A sharp increase in procurement prices of cereals, and consequent rise in the issue prices, has set the trends for open market prices. Exchange rate adjustments in early July, 1991, led to increase in import costs which contributed to some cost pressure in import intensive industries. The uneven progress of monsoon until the end of August, 1991 also generated some inflationary expectations in the economy, exacerbating the pressure on prices.

In order to check the inflationary pressures in the economy and to bring down the prices, particularly that of essential commodities, a number of measures have been initiated by the Government. A major element in the strategy to combat inflation is the massive effort to correct the fiscal imbalance by reducing the fiscal deficit from 8.4 per cent of GDP in 1990-91 to 6.5 per cent in 1991-92. The growth of aggregate demand has been contained by restraining the growth of broad money (M_3) and bank credit to the Government. The selective credit controls on bank advances against price-sensitive essential commodities like rice, paddy, cotton and kapas, and pulses have been tightened. Steps have been taken to revamp the Public Distribution System, and its reach has been extended to 1,700 blocks in farflung and disadvantaged areas. Allocation of sugar, rice and wheat etc. under the PDS has been increased for the lean period. Stocks of wheat and rice have been off-loaded in the market to bring about a sobering effect on prices. Steps have been initiated to improve domestic supply of critical items such as edible oils, cotton and wheat through imports. Action against blackmarketeers and hoarders has been intensified to flush out the hoarded goods. Efforts have been made to remove transport bottlenecks and other infrastructural constraints in the movement of coal, raw materials and finished goods which had earlier led to a sharp increase in the prices of some commodities. State governments have also been requested to ensure availability of essential commodities at reasonable and affordable price and to regularly monitor and review the price situation at the highest level. These measures, together with other economic reforms, have begun to show results. The rate of increase in prices has fallen after September, 1991. A downturn in the annual rate of inflation has also set in; the annual rate of inflation on 1st February, 1992 is lower than at the same point in the previous year.

Introduction

The price situation was under pressure throughout 1990-91 despite a satisfactory monsoon and a good crop for the third year in succession. The annual rate of inflation in terms of Wholesale Price Index (WPI) was 12.1 per cent in 1990-91 compared with 9.1 per cent in 1989-90. The annual rate of inflation in terms of the Consumer Price Index (CPI) for Industrial Workers was 13.6 per cent during 1990-91 compared with 6.6 per cent in 1989-90.

4.2 The price situation has continued to be under pressure throughout the current year as well. In the first 44 weeks of the current financial year up to February 1, 1992, the WPI registered an increase of 11.7. per cent, same as during the corresponding period last year. The annual rate of inflation on a point-to-point basis, as on February 1, 1992 was 12.1 per cent compared with 13.5 per cent on the corresponding date of last year. The Consumer price index for industrial workers registered 11.9 per cent increase during the first nine months of the current year (as in December, 1991), compared with 12.4 per cent during the corresponding period last year. The annual rise in the CPI for industrial workers, on a point-to-point basis, was 13.1 per cent till December, 1991 compared with 13.7 per cent during the corresponding period of last year.

4.3 The trends in WPI and CPI, in a medium term context, are given in Table 4.1.

Wholesale prices : Group-wise changes

4.4 Variations in the WPI of major commodity groups/sub-groups and important commodities during 1991-92 are given in Table 4.2. The major contributors to the rising trend in prices during the current year are primary articles though the increase is less as compared to that of last year. Manufactured products also exhibited a marginally higher increase in prices than in the previous year. Though fuel, power, light and lubricants recorded a rise in the price index, the magnitude of its increase is lower than that in the previous year. Under primary articles, the real impetus to inflation was provided by food articles, such as cereals (especially rice and coarse cereals), fruits, eggs, fish and meat, condiments and spices and non-food articles (primarily raw cotton), rape and mustard seeds. Prices of gram, onion, coffee and raw jute slightly offset the price rise by registering modest to steep decline. Primary articles as a whole, with a weight of 32.3 per cent in the general index, contributed 46.9 per cent to the total price rise compared with 47.2 per cent in the corresponding period last year.

4.5 In the group fuel, power, light and lubricants, the price rise was more prominent in the sub-groups 'mineral oils' and 'coal mining'. With a weight of 10.7 per cent, this group contributed 9.5 per cent to the overall price rise compared with 12.1 per cent in the same period last year.

4.6 Among manufactured products, a steep increase in prices was observed in some food products such as sugar and oilcakes, and in textiles, paper and paper products, chemical and chemical products, particularly fertilizers, and machinery and machine tools. This group, with a weight of 57.0 per cent in the general index, accounted for 43.5 per cent of the overall increase in the prices this year compared with its share 40.8 per cent in the corresponding period last year.

4.7 Goods with administered prices, on the whole, registered nearly the same order of increase in prices (around 9 per cent) this year as that in the last year. Fertilizer prices recorded a steep increase this year due to a phased reduction in subsidies on fertilizers. The prices of coal and coke also increased appreciably. The share of administered items in the overall price rise, however, was lower this year than that in the last year.

4.8 Seasonal goods as a group consisting of food and non-food articles, and food products, recorded a lower rate of price rise this year than that in the last year on account of a decrease in the prices of pulses, fruits and vegetables, raw cotton, oil seeds, edible oils, sugar, etc.

4.9 Taking different groups together, only a few food articles such as rice, fruits, condiments and spices, non-food articles such as, raw cotton and oilseeds, and manufactured products such as, edible oils and oil-cakes, fertilizers, paper and paper products and machinery and machine tools, with a total weight of 25.5 per cent in the general index contributed to as much as 46.7 per cent to the total increase in the WPI on February 1, 1992. Compared to their respective weights, most of these commodities had contributed to a much higher rate of price rise than other commodities last year also.

4.10 An analysis of the movements in the Wholesale Price Index for some essential commodities during the period April to February 1, 1992 shows that the prices of wheat, gram, arhar, masur, urad, onions, potatoes, atta, mutton, gur, tea, mustard oil, coconut oil, groundnut oil, hydrogenated vanaspati, dhoties and sarees, kerosene, petrol, HSD. and cement have increased at lower rates than during the corresponding period of last year. However, the rates of price increase in the case of rice, jowar, bajra, moong, milk, chillies, sugar, salt, washing soap and safety matches are higher this year than in the corresponding period of last year. The major concern about inflation in recent months, as in the preceding financial year, is that it is concentrated in essential commodities such as cereals, particularly rice, wheat, coarse grains, pulses, edible oils, chillies, and sugar. Nearly 27 per cent of the total annual inflation in mid-January, 1992 was on account of rise in the prices of 29 essential commodities, and the remaining 73 per cent was due to rest of the commodities.

Seasonal Behaviour of Prices

4.11 Movements of monthly seasonal factors for major commodity groups/sub-groups (averaged for nine years from April 1981 to March 1990) indicate that the prices of primary articles show the highest degree of seasonality followed by the fuel group. Prices of primary articles tend to rise from April to August, fall in September, increase in October, and fall gently in November and steeply in December to March. The manufactured products index shows gentle rise from the beginning of April to August, followed by a fall up to December, an increase in January and a fall in February and March. The 'fuel' group shows a declining trend up to August and then a rising trend up to March. The all commodities index which reflects the overall effect of these changes, shows a rise up to August, a fall in September to December, a rise in January and a fall again in February and March.

4.12 Oilseeds show the maximum amount of seasonality, followed by fruits and vegetables. The seasonal changes in various items which comprise food articles vary. Rabi crops of wheat and pulses exhibit a trend contrary to that of the kharif crops. The fluctuations in the size of these crops affect the degree of seasonality. Any change in the behaviour of these major commodity groups, i.e., the primary articles/concerned manufactured products and the fuel group affects the overall behaviour of the general price index in any particular period. The actual movement of the price indices this year indicates a contra-seasonal trend in prices of primary articles and manufactured products during the second half of the year. The actual variation in the prices of seasonal items during this year is given in table 4.3.

4.13 The seasonal dip in prices has of late become weak due to increased demand/procurement during the post harvesting season, lower arrivals on account of general improvement in the stock holding capacity of the producers or their holding of stocks on behalf of the traders to avoid stock regulations, multiple cropping, a wider spread of the harvesting seasons due to introduction of short-duration crops, unsteady growth in the production of agricultural and industrial products, and above all, the reduced weightage of primary articles in the WPI (from 41.7 per cent in 1970-71 base to 32.3 per cent in the new base with 1981-82 = 100).

Consumer Prices

4.14 All the three Consumer Price Indices (CPI) for industrial workers, urban non-manual employees and agricultural labourers, exhibited accelerated rates of inflation during the third quarter of the current year due to relatively higher increase in the prices of food articles and food products which have a much higher weight in the Consumer price index than the Wholesale price index. Among the three consumer price indices, the CPI for agricultural labourers has witnessed the highest rate of inflation. Upward movement in the wholesale prices of these commodities have been transmitted to the retail prices of these commodities in around a month's time. The comparable movements in the rates of inflation in terms of the WPI and the CPI during the current year are given below :

Factors underlying inflation

4.15 The buildup of inflationary pressure is mainly attributable to excess demand arising from the large and persistent fiscal deficits over the years, resulting in excessive growth in money supply and a liquidity overhang. There have also been supply and demand imbalances in sensitive commodities like pulses, edible oils, etc. due to shortfalls in domestic production and constraints in importing desired quantities due to the severe foreign exchange crunch. Exchange rate adjustments in early July, 1991, led to increase in import costs which contributed to some cost pressure in the import intensive-industries. The uneven progress of monsoon until the end of August, 1991 also generated some inflationary expectations in the economy, exacerbating the pressure on prices.

4.16 The acceleration in the rate of inflation is a cause for serious concern; equally worrisome is the rise in prices even of commodities which are not in short supply in the market. Fairly good monsoons for four years in a row leading to very good harvests in the last three years and prospects of a good crop during this year have not been able to contain the pressure on prices. The offtake of foodgrains from the PDS has also been higher this year compared to the previous year. Selective credit control measures have been tightened on bank advances against foodgrains, cotton and kapas, oilseeds and edible oils; and the lending rates and margin money for such advances have been increased substantially this year.

4.17 With an improvement in the balance of payments situation, imports of essential commodities in short supply in the domestic market are being arranged. Due attention is also being given to the building up of adequate stocks of these commodities to contain prices in the lean season. The continuance of tight monetary policy, judicious fiscal corrections, improvement in the foreign exchange reserves and regular supplies of critical commodities to the needy population would have salutory impact in bringing down the prices.

Anti-inflationary measures

4.18 A number of reforms in the spheres of fiscal and monetary policies, trade and industry, and external sector of the economy have been initiated which, among other things, are expected to check the inflationary pressures in the economy. Improvement in the foreign exchange reserves would facilitate a more effective management of supply through imports of essential commodities which are in short supply. A number of monetary measures have been introduced during the year to moderate the expansion of liquidity and to curtail effective demand. These were supplemented by a number of fiscal measures such as reduction in fiscal deficit of the Central Government by about 2 percentage points from 8.4 per cent of GDP in 1990-91 to 6.5 per cent of GDP in 1991-92. Imports of edible oils have been permitted against

Exim scrips and foreign exchange earned by the state governments. About 7.5 lakh tonnes of wheat and some rice has been off-loaded by the FCI in the open market to bring about a sobering effect on the open market prices. The PDS is being strengthened to cater more effectively to far flung and disadvantaged areas to help the poorer sections of the society to get essential items at reasonable prices.

4.19 Coal supplies to the cement plants have been augmented and the supply of railway wagons to transport cement has been increased. Allocations of sugar, rice and wheat under PDS have been augmented during the lean season of these commodities in the market, and further exports of commodities in short supply in the market such as rice, wheat, cotton etc. have been restricted or stopped to improve their domestic availability. Commodity exchange agreements have been entered into with the World Food Programme (WFP) whereby the much needed edible oils would be made available to India under WFP assistance in exchange of foodgrains for WFP projects in India.

4.20 State governments who have an equally important role in managing prices, have been requested to review and monitor the working of the PDS, ensure strict enforcement of the Essential Commodities Act for checking the hoarding of commodities in short supply, and ensure timely and adequate supply of esstential commodities by removing infrastructural constraints, if any.

4.21 The monetary measures introduced during the year have been elaborated in the Chapter on 'Money and Credit'. Among the important measures taken to check price rise during the year include selective credit control measures to curb bank advances against stocks of oilseeds/vegetable oils, paddy, rice and other foodgrains, etc.

4.22 The various measures introduced by the Government have now started producing results. Rationalisation of subsidies on a number of commodities, such as fertilizers, food, etc. and substantial increases in the support/procurement prices of different agricultural commodities, which generally set the trend for open market prices, have hindered the manifestation of the expected fall in the prices.

Price Policy

Agricultural Price Policy

4.23 The agricultural price policy seeks to evolve a balanced and integrated price structure in the perspective of the overall needs of the economy, ensuring remunerative prices to the growers and safeguarding the interest of th consumers by making available supplies at reasonable prices. The Government announces each season procurement/support prices for major agricultural commodities and organises purchase operations through public and cooperative agencies such as Food Corporation of India, Jute Corporation of India, Cotton Corporation of India, National Agricultural Co-operative Marketing Federation (NAFED) and Tobacco Board, besides other agencies designated by the State governments.

4.24 The procurement/support prices for important agricultural commodities are fixed by the Government on the recommendations of the Commission for Agricultural Costs and Prices (CACP), the views of the State governments and Central ministries, and also taking into account other factors relevant for fixation of these prices. The CACP formulates its recommendations after making a comprehensive review of the entire structure of prices as cost of production, paid-out-cost and the imputed value of owned assets including land and family labour, changes in input prices, input/output price parity, demand and supply situation, inter-crop price parity, effects on the industrial cost structure, on the general price level, and on the cost of living, international market prices, parity between prices paid and prices received by farmers (terms of trade), etc. In addition to it, other factors which have been kept in view are the need to provide incentives to the producer for adopting improved technology and for developing a production pattern broadly meeting the national requirements, the need to ensure rational utilisation of land, water, and other productive resources, and the likely effect of the price policy on the rest of the economy, particularly on the cost of living, level of wages, industrial cost structure, etc.

4.25 The commodities at present covered for the fixation of procurement/minimum support prices, include, seven cereals (paddy, wheat, jowar, bajra, maize, ragi and barley), four pulses (gram, arhar, moong and urad), seven oilseeds (groundnut, sunflower, soyabean, rapeseed and mustard, safflower, toria and copra) and four other commodities (sugarcane, cotton, jute and tobacco).

4.26 The cost of production is one of the most important factors for determining the procurement/minimum support prices of agricultural commodities. Improvements in the methodology for estimation of cost of production of crops have been made based on a comprehensive study undertaken by an expert committee under the chairmanship of Prof. C.H. Hanumantha Rao and the modifications suggested by the Standing Advisory Committee. Valuation of labour is now done at statutory minimum wage rate or actual wage rate, whichever is higher. 10 percent of the total cost is earmarked as the cost of managerial input. The procurement/minimum sup port prices announced before the sowing season are adjusted in case the increase in input cost turns out to be higher than the anticipated rise at the time of the initial fixation of these prices. The revised methodology of cost of production has been adopted in the formulation of the recommendation for the procurement/support prices with effect from the kharif crops of 1990-91 season.

4.27 As agricultural activity is subjected to frequent fluctuations in weather, a stable relationship between the prices of agricultural and non-agricultural commodities does not protect the interest of the farmers. The terms of trade between agricultural and non-agricultural commodities have, therefore, to be treated as a medium term concept instead of an annual concept where price adjustments are made on a year to year basis. The Government had asked the Expert Committee to review this matter also and suggest appropriate safeguards to protect the interest of the farmers. The recommendations of the Expert Committee are at present under examination.

Price Policy for Kharif Crops of 1991-92

4.29 The minimum support prices for kharif cereals, coarse cereals, pulses, oilseeds, and cotton for the 1991-92 season have been fixed based on the revised methodology for the estimation of cost of production of crops. It also takes into account the 30 per cent increase in the prices of fertilizer this year.

4.30 Minimum support prices only have been announced for 1991-92 kharif crops, as recommended by the CACP, as against the earlier practice of announcing procurement/minimum support prices. The support prices fixed by the Government are in the nature of a guarantee to the producer that in the event of a glut in the market, consequent on excessive production or any other reason, the prices will not be allowed to fall below the minimum economic levels. The farmers are, however, free to sell their produce in the market at prices which may be higher than the support prices fixed by the Government. The support prices provide adequate incentive to the farmers to plan for greater investment in agriculture besides covering fully the increase in the input costs. The increases announced in the minimum support prices for fair average quality (FAQ) are : Rs. 25 per quintal for paddy, jowar, bajra and ragi; Rs. 30 per quintal for maize; Rs. 65 per quintal for kharif pulses viz. arhar (tur), moong and urad; and groundnut-in-shell. The minimum support prices for soyabean (yellow and black varieties) have been raised by Rs. 45 per quintal. An increase of Rs. 70 per quintal has been made in the minimum support prices for sunflower seed, Rs. 75 per quintal for cotton of F-414/H-777 variety and by Rs. 90 per quintal for H-4 variety of cotton. In percentage terms the increases announced in the minimum support prices vary from 12.2 to 13.9 per cent for kharif cereals, 13.5 per cent for kharif pulses, 11.2 to 12.9 per cent for kharif oilseeds and about 12 per cent for cotton.

4.31 These upward revisions in the minimum support prices of kharif crops with a weight of 7.88 per cent in the general index of WPI have directly contributed to a rise of 0.98 per cent in WPI during the current year.

Sugarcane

4.32 The Statutory Minimum Price (SMP) of sugarcane (linked to a basic recovery of 8.5 per cent) was raised further from Rs. 23 per quintal to Rs. 26 per quintal for 1991-92 season. The SMP for sugarcane for 1992-93 season was fixed in advance at Rs. 27 per quintal.

Administered Prices

4.33 Seven commodity groups, namely, crude petroleum and natural Gas, petroleum products, coal, electricity, fertilizers, iron and steel and non-ferrous metals (other than aluminium) constitute the industrial products with administered prices. The prices of these items recorded an increase of 9.3 per cent during the current financial year up to February 1, 1992 as against an increase of 9.4 per cent during the corresponding period last year. The prices of electricity are revised by the State Electricity Boards (SEBs). The prices of other administered items have been revised during the current year as follows :

Iron & Steel

4.34 The prices of bulk of the items produced by integrated steel plants were being fixed and announced by the Joint Plant Committee (JPC) until 16-1-1992. The secondary producers themselves have been fixing and announcing the prices of their products, which fell outside the purview of price regulations. The prices of the items produced by the integrated steel plants were last revised in September, 1990. Price adjustments in these items have been carried out twice this year, once in July, 1991 (to neutralise the increase in the special excise duty by Rs. 15 per tonne on pig iron and an average increase of Rs. 36 per tonne on steel items), and second time on 1st September, 1991 (to neutralise the railway freight increase of Rs. 60 per tonne on pig iron and Rs.90 per tonne on steel items).

4.35 The pricing and distribution of iron and steel was deregulated from 16th January, 1992 and the existing scheme of freight equalisation was also simultaneously dispensed with. The iron and steel requirements of defence, railways, small scale industries sector, exporters of engineering goods, and of the north-eastern region will continue to be met on priority basis, as hitherto, at prices to be fixed by the integrated steel plants from time to time. The integrated steel plants will also fix ex-stockyard prices on the basis of the actual freight(s) or the equalised freight element as existed hitherto, which ever is less. The main producers of steel would also now be free to determine and fix the prices for their products.

4.36 The year witnessed some increase in the open market price of steel mainly on account of shortages in steel melting scraps, billets and HR coils. The shortages could not be made good through imports on account of heavy cash margin requirements, foreign exchange crunch and high import duties which increased their landed cost. In the case of integrated steel plants, increases in prices were effected to offset the increase in direct input cost; increases in other costs are sought to be neutralised by reducing costs through higher capacity utilisation, improvement in productivity, adopting energy saving techniques, improved maintenance and modernisation of plant and equipments. In the secondary sector, changes in prices were governed by demand and supply conditions. The import duties on steel items have been reduced by 20 percentage points along with the deregulation of iron and steel. The duty on steel melting scraps was reduced from 35 per cent to 10 per cent, on pig iron from 55 per cent to 35 per cent, and on billets and H.R. coils from 65 per cent to 45 per cent. This is likely to have a moderating effect on market prices. The production of finished steel this year is expected to be 14.81 million tonnes compared with 13.47 million tonnes in 1990-91. Production will fall short of the demand which is estimated at 16.35 million tonnes.

Non-Ferrous Metals

4.37 The prices of non-ferrous metals, which are mostly imported, are largely influenced by changes in their prices in the international markets and higher landed cost due to exchange rate adjustments made during July, 1991. The increase in the prices of non-ferrous metals (other than aluminium) during the current year up to February 1, 1992 was 6.6 per per cent compared with 8.1 per cent during the corresponding period last year. The year-over-year increase in the prices of non-ferrous metals on February 1, 1992 was 7.9 per cent.

Petroleum Products

4.38 Changes in the POL prices were announced in the Union Budget for 1991-92 in July, 1991 to offset the increase in the rupee value of the imports of crude oil and petroleum products as a result of the exchange rate adjustments and also to help to restrain the growth in the consumption of petroleum products. Prices of motor spirit, domestic LPG and aviation turbine fuel (for domestic use) were raised by 20 per cent. The prices of other petroleum products, excluding diesel and kerosene for non-industrial use, were raised by 10 per cent. The price of kerosene for non-industrial use was reduced by 10 per cent to protect the poor for whom kerosene is an essential source of light and fuel. No increase was made in the price of diesel to protect the interests of the farmers who use diesel.

4.39 The prices of petrol, high speed diesel (HSD), kerosene and liquified petroleum gas (cooking gas) were raised with effect from January 2, 1992 in 11 states to enable oil companies to recover the levies imposed by State governments on petroleum products directly from the consumers. With this, the practice of Oil Coordination Committee (OCC) of reimbursing the State levies to the oil companies has been discontinued. The impact of the hike in prices in different states was 7 paise to 110 paise per litre in motor spirit, 1 paise to 10 paise per litre in kerosene, 1 paise to 34 paise per litre in HSD and 30 paise to 435 paise per cylinder in LPG.

Coal Mining

4.40 The pit head prices of coal and coke are fixed by the Central Government. The average pit head price of Run-of-Mine (ROM) coal was revised with effect from December 28, 1991 from Rs. 249 per tonne as on January 1, 1989 to Rs. 322 per tonne in respect of coal produced by the Coal India Limited (CIL) and from Rs. 297 per tonne as on January 24 1989 to Rs. 388 per tonne in respect of the Singareni Collieries Company Limited (SCCL). No revision was made in respect of prices of soft coke which continues to remain at Rs. 175 per tonne for domestic consumption and Rs. 300 per tonne for industries since January 9, 1986.

Public Distribution System

4.41 The Government is supplying six key essential commodities through the PDS : wheat, rice, sugar, imported edible oils, kerosene and soft-coke. They are supplied at reasonable (below market) rates to consumers, the access to the system being universal. While the Central Government procures or allocates and supplies these commodities to the States or UTs, the latter, in turn, are responsible for the allocation and distribution within the State/UT and allied implementational activities. The PDS aims at insulating the consumer from the impact of rising prices of these commodities and maintaining the minimum nutritional status of our population. The PDS supplies have a stabilising effect on open market prices by increasing availability, removing scarcity psychosis and deterring speculative tendencies.

4.42 The network of the PDS has been expanded over the years, the number of fair price shops having increased to 3.75 lakhs now from about 3.12 lakhs in 1984. About 75 per cent of these shops are located in the rural areas. More than 15 million tonnes of foodgrains, i.e. about 9-10 per cent of total production, are supplied through the PDS per year. As PDS supplies are made at concessional rates, the Central Government has to spend over Rs. 2,000 crores on subsidising distribution of wheat and rice alone. Despite shortcomings, the PDS has established its relevance, and the pressures are mounting for its expansion both in the urban and rural areas to protect the poorer sections of the population from the general inflationary situation.

4.43 The Government has initiated, in consultation with the State governments and the UT administrations, steps to revamp the Public Distribution System to improve its reach on the basis of an area approach and to eliminate leakages and malpractices that have crept into this system. Preference is now being gived to the population living in the most difficult areas of the country, such as the drought prone areas, desert areas, tribal areas, certain designated hilly areas and the urban slum areas. About 1,700 blocks have been covered in these areas under the revamped PDS. Ration cards are being issued to all those who have not been issued such cards so far. Additional fair price shops are being opened where needed. Supply of additional items is being arranged through the PDS outlets. Beneficiaries are being involved in monitoring the functioning of the PDS. The Government has initiated steps to create infrastructural and other facilities necessary to support these operations.

Off Take under PDS

4.44 Foodgrains supplies under the PDS have increased in recent years. During 1990-91 a total quantity of nearly 16.0 million tonnes of foodgrains (rice, wheat and coarse grains) was distributed against 15.7 million tonnes in the previous year. During the first nine months of the current year (up to December 1991), 15.53 million tonnes of foodgrains (rice 8.7 million tonnes, and wheat 6.6 million tonnes and coarse grains 0.23 million tonnes) have been distributed under the PDS. The monthly off-take of major items for the PDS are given in Table 4.6.

NOTE : Figures in brackets give total for corresponding months of 1990-91.

4.45 Under the scheme for the supply of foodgrains (wheat and rice) at special subsidised rates (50 paise below PDS prices) to the population living in Integrated Tribal Development Projects (ITDP) areas, 1.88 million tonnes of foodgrains were supplied during 1990-91 and 1.34 million tonnes during the eight months of the current year (up to November, 1991).

4.46 In view of the sharp increase in the prices of foodgrains, especially wheat, allotment of wheat for PDS was progressively stepped up from 7.7 lakh tonnes in December, 1990 to 10.7 lakh tonnes in May, 1991. Wheat allocation were reduced after the arrival of the new wheat crop but the allocations were again increased progressively when the lean period commenced; the level of allocation was 9.0 lakh tonnes in February, 1992. Similarly, the rice allocations were also progressively increased from 8.1 lakh tonnes in January, 1991 to 9.5 lakh tonnes in February, 1992. With the beginning of the lean season for rice, additional ad-hoc allocations were made for the months of August-October, 1991. The allocation of rice was 10.5 lakh tonnes for August, 1991 and 11.3 lakh tonnes for October, 1991. After the arrival of the new crop, the allocation was reduced to 9.3 lakh tonnes for November, 1991, and 8.9 lakh tonnes for December, 1991, 9.2 lakh tonnes for January, 1992 and 8.5 lakh tonnes for February 1992.

Market Intervention Operations

4.47 Market intervention operations are being conducted in foodgrains, sugar, edible oils and pulses to ensure supply management, to curb inflationary expectations and to have a sobering effect on the open market prices.

4.48 Foodgrains operations aim at procurement of foodgrains for public distribution and the maintenance of buffer stocks to give not only short-term but also long-term stability to prices of essential commodities and safeguard the interest of the consumers. Procurement of foodgrains also ensure remunerative returns to the farmers and provide them with incentives to invest more on agriculture to raise its productivity and to ensure that in the event of any glut or due to any other reason, the market prices do not fall below the support prices.

4.49 The procurement operations under price support in respect of paddy, wheat and coarse grains are undertaken by the Food Corporation of India (FCI), in collaboration with the State Governments. While the procurement operations in paddy are conducted under price support through a vast network of procurement centres spread over the country, rice is also procured through a statutotry levy imposed by the State Governments on rice millers and wholesale traders in their states.

4.50 Procurement of wheat during the current rabi season stood at 77.52 lakh tonnes as on 24th January, 1992 compared to an unusually high level of 110.65 lakh tonnes during the corresponding period last year. Shortfall in wheat procurement could be primarily attributed to the higher open market prices compared to the support prices, increased purchases by the traders, lower arrivals in the major wheat procuring states of Punjab, Haryana and Uttar Pradesh and holding back of the stocks by farmers. (Table 4.7).

4.51 Procurement of rice during 1990-91 kharif marketing season stood at 126.7 lakh tonnes as compared to 118.7 lakh tonnes during the marketing season in the previous year (1989-90). Rice procurement which commenced with the onset of the kharif season 1991-92 touched 75.2 lakh tonnes as on 29th January, 1992 as compared with 88.7 lakh tonnes during the corresponding period last year. In order to maintain rice procurement at satisfactory levels, state governments have been requested to ensure strict enforcement of levy orders.

4.52 During the current financial year up to December, 1991, 154.1 lakh tonnes of foodgrains have been procured as against 199.8 lakh tonnes during the corresponding period last year.

4.53 The stock position of foodgrains with public agencies (Central and States) as on 1st January, 1992 was 147.4 lakh tonnes as against 190.8 lakh tonnes on the corresponding date last year. Under the buffer stock policy, the foodgrains stocks should be 154 lakh tonnes on this date. The shortfall was on account of lower wheat stocks due to lower procurement this year. As per the buffer stock policy for foodgrains, the size of the buffer stock to be maintained by the public agencies should be as under :

4.54 The Central issue prices for the PDS items are revised by the Government periodically keeping in view the increase in the procurement prices, cost of acquisitions etc. The central issue price (ex-FCI godown) of wheat was increased by Rs.46 per quintal with effect from 28th December, 1991 to reduce the burden of subsidy on the exchequer. The revised Central issue prices of wheat are Rs.280 per quintal as against the earlier price of Rs.234 per quintal for the PDS; and Rs.230 per quintal as against earlier price of Rs. 184 per quintal for the I.T.D.P. area; and the tribal majority States. The revised consumer prices in these special areas would not exceed Rs.255 per quintal.

4.55 Similarly, the Government increased the central issue prices (ex-FCI godown) of rice by Rs. 88 per quintal with effect from 28th December, 1991 to absorb partially the increases in the support/procurement prices of paddy and the consequential increase in the procurement cost of rice for the Central Pool. The revised central issue prices for rice under the various schemes are as follows :

The central issue price of rice (raw and parboiled) was last revised in June, 1990 and for wheat, in May, 1990.

Sugar Operations

4.56 The system of dual pricing of sugar in operation for some years was continued during the year. Under this system, 45 per cent of the sugar production is acquired by the Government at pre-determined prices as levy sugar and the remaining 55 per cent of the produce is released for sale in the open market. This ratio of levy to free sale sugar has been maintained at 45:55 since 1988-89. The ex-factory prices of levy sugar were fixed on the basis of Statutory Minimum Price (SMP) of Rs. 23 per quintal of sugarcane for 1990-91 (October—September) season and at Rs. 26 per quintal of sugar cane for 1991-92 (October—September) season. The incentive scheme for early and late crushing periods was continued during the year to raise the production of sugar. Under the scheme, 72 per cent of the sugar produced between 1st May and 31st July, 1991 as well as between 1st October and 15th November 1991 is to be treated as free-sale as against the normal 55 per cent.

4.57 Sugar production during the early part of the 1991-92 season beginning from October 1, 1991 has been slightly more than was achieved in the corresponding period of the previous season. Up to 31s December, 1991 sugar production aggregated to 32.6 lakh tonnes as against 30.7 lakh tonnes up to a similar period in the previous season. The sugar production is now picking up and the total production in the current sugar year 1991-92 is expected to reach about 120 lakh tonnes. Additional capacity for sugar production is being created. Sugar consumption during the current sugar season is also likely to increase to about 115 lakh tonnes as against 105.9 lakh tonnes (provisional) during the sugar year 1990-91.

4.58 The retail issue price of levy sugar distributed through the PDS at Rs.5.25 per kg. with effect from 1st January, 1989 was raised to Rs. 6.10 per kg. from 24th July, 1991 and further to Rs.6.90 per kg. from 21st January, 1992 to reduce the burden of subsidy on sugar distribution through the PDS. The provision for subsdiy in 1990-91 season amounted to Rs. 307.6 crores. Total quantity of levy and free-sale sugar released during the financial year 1990-91 aggregated to 112.7 lakh tonnes as against 105.1 lakh tonnes during 1989-90. Carry-over stocks at the beginning of the current sugar season (1991-92) were 32.8 lakh tonnes (provisional) as against 21.8 lakh tonnes on a similar date last season.

4.59 The wholesale Price Index which had risen during July and August, 1991 has started declining.

Edible Oils Operations

4.60 The country is yet to achieve self-sufficiency in edible oils inspite of steady progress achieved in the production of oilseeds over the years. During the oil year 1990-91 (November-October) the gap between demand and supply of edible oils was estimated to be around 6 lakh tonnes. This gap could not be bridged through imports this year due to foreign exchange constraints. Only about 1.1 lakh tonnes of edible oils could be imported as against 6.1 lakh tonnes in the oil year 1989-90. The imported edible oils are allocated to the States/UTs for distribution to the cross sections of the society through PDS. The allocation thus supplements the availability of indigenous edible oils in the market. The National Dairy Development Board (NDDB) has been appointed the market intervention agency to procure edible oils and oilseeds and release the edible oils to stabilise the open market prices.

4.61 On several requests received from State Governments for direct imports of edible oils, the Central Government has allowed the State governments of Tamil Nadu (18,000 MTs), Karnataka and Kerala (15,000 MTs each) and Andhra Pradesh, Gujarat, Maharashtra and West Bengal (8,000 MTs each) to import edible oils within 31-3-1992 directly against export of certain listed goods.

4.62 The issue prices of edible oils are reviewed and revised keeping in view the prices of imported edible oils in the international market, availability of foreign exchange, customs duties etc. Issue prices of edible oils with effect from 4-1-1992 are as under :

TABLE 4.10

Maximum ceiling prices recommended to States/ UTs for retail sale through FPS	Rs. 25.00 per kg.*	Rs. 27.75 per kg.

(*exclusive of local taxes)

4.63 The prices of edible oils have registered a continuous rise since the last year. The annual rate of rise in edible oils prices at the beginning of the current year was 32.7 per cent. Prices further increased during the current financial year by 8.1 per cent (up to February 1, 1992). As the price rise during the same period last year was more (32.5 per cent), the annual price increase in edible oils at the end of February 1, 1992 came down to 8.2 per cent from 38.2 per cent during the corresponding period of last year.

4.64 To control the prices of edible oils, a number of steps have been taken by the Government, they include a reduction in the stock limit of oilseeds and oils held by dealers, processors and manufacturers of edible oils; withdrawal of permission to use expeller mustard oil in the manufacture of vanaspati; exemption of edible oils from the railway freight increase in the Railway Budget for 1991-92; complete exemption of available liquid oils from excise duty; withdrawal of restriction on packaging of vanaspati in smaller packs; expeditious review of sickness of the vanaspati industry; delicensing of the vanaspati industry; strict surveillance on the availability and prices of edible oils and conducting of de-hoarding operations. Commodities exchange agreements have also been effected with the World Food Programme (WFP) whereby edible oil will be received under the WFP and exchanged for foodgrains which will be distributed under these projects in India. Imports of nearly 2.20 lakh tonnes of palmolein oil by STC to supplement the oil availability in the country are also planned up to March, 1992.

Outlook

4.65 The down turn in the inflation rate may be expected to become manifest towards the end of the current year with the picking up of the growth of industrial production, greater responsiveness of inflation to strict monetary and fiscal discipline, better supply management through effective open market intervention in cereals, edible oils, etc. and extending the reach of the PDS to an additional 1,700 blocks in the far-flung and economically backward, drought-prone, desert and hilly areas. Coordination at various levels, central as well as States, in the removal of supply and distribution bottlenecks and closer involvement of the beneficiaries' committees in PDS would help minimise the distortions in efficient price management and curb inflationary expectations, profiteering and hoarding.

4.66 The inherent strength of the economy to combat inflation and bring about price stability in the near future lies in its stable food economy, high industrial growth potential, fairly good performance of infrastructural sectors, improvements in foreign exchange reserves, expectations of positive impact of structural reforms and liberalisation policies on the overall productivity and growth of the economy, and above all, the strong will and firm determination of the Government to remove the macro-economic imbalances, both internal and external.

BALANCE OF PAYMENTS

The domestic political developments and the Gulf crisis during 1990-91 in the context of a fragile balance of payments situation culminated in a payments crisis of unprecedented dimension in the first quarter of 1991-92. Its prime manifestations were difficulty in financing current imports and in meeting debt service obligations together with the erosion of confidence of short-term lenders and NRI depositors. Short-term credits became difficult to obtain and inflows into non-resident deposits became outflows of an alarming magnitude. This brought the country to a near-default in July 1991. Default would have entailed widespread shortages of essential imported commodities and led to a cutback in industrial output, layoffs and inflation. India's brush with default was the outcome of an uncertain and disturbed situation in the domestic polity which made it difficult to execute a medium-term balance of payments strategy. Besides, the trade deficit widened during 1990-91 as a result of surge in import bill and a deceleration in export growth.

During the current year, trade deficit has shrunk largely because of severe compression in imports arising out of import tightening effected in the recent past. Given the large current acount deficit and the consequent need to finance it through large-scale external borrowing, it became essential to restore international confidence.To this end, a new balance of payments strategy was put in place by the new Government which assumed office towards the end of June 1991. It laid emphasis on exchange rate adjustment, fiscal correction and structural reforms in industrial and trade policy. Besides, recourse to exceptional financing from the IMF of the order US $ 2.3 billion was negotiated under the stand-by arrangement. This was necessitated by the need to provide foreign exchange as an immediate means of support to the balance of payments . As a result of the balance of payments adjustment strategy adopted, there has been a distinct improvement in the external payments position within a short period as reflected in the steady build-up in the reserves during the latter half of the current year. Foreign currency assets, which had plummeted to US $ 1.1 billion in June 1991, rose to about US $ 4.2 billion by the middle of February, 1992. However, a lasting improvement in the balance of payments position depends upon a strong revival in exports. Export performance in 1991-92 has been adversely affected by the severe disruption of trade with the erstwhile Soviet Union and continuing recession in industrialised countries.

Introduction

India entered the decade of the nineties with large internal and external financial imbalances which made the economy highly vulnerable to exogenous shocks. These imbalances were exacerbated by the Gulf crisis and the uncertain and distrubed situation in the domestic polity during 1990-91 and the first quarter of 1991-92. The Gulf crisis resulted in a higher import bill and the loss of export markets and remittances. Taken together, these developments contributed to erosion of international confidence in India. The internaional credit rating agencies started placing India either under watch or downgraded credit rating of Indian entities between August 1990 and July 1991. It became exceedingly difficult to get access to international capital markets and there was massive erosion in the net accruals under non-resident deposits. These developments culminated in a severe external liquidity crunch and a crisis of unprecedented dimensions.

5.2 During 1990-91, total foreign exchange reserves declined by Rs. 1382 crore (US $ 1137 million) net of revaluation of gold. This was despite borrowings from the IMF to the tune of Rs. 3334 crore (US $ 1814 million) under various facilties. A further erosion of Rs. 2073 crore (US $ 1151 million) occured between end-March and end-June, 1991 notwithstanding considerable compression in imports. This massive depletion of reserves became inevitable in the absence of a medium-term BOP adjustment strategy. The new Government, which assumed office on June 21, 1991, promptly took corrective steps to restore international confidence and announced a comprehensive adjustment package invovling exchange rate adjustment, fiscal correction, and structural reforms, towards ensuring a viable balance of payments. As a result, the gross foreign exchange reserves stabilised. These amounted to Rs. 19392 crore (US $ 7501 milion), of which foreign currency assets comprised Rs. 9766 crore (US $ 3774 million) at the end of January, 1992. Foreign currency assets showed an increase of Rs. 5378 crore (US $ 1538 million) between end-March, 1991 and end-January, 1992.

Adjustment Strategy

5.3 Given the large current account deficit and the consequent need to finance it through large-scale external borrowing, it became essential to restore international confidence. This required the management of the BOP and the Budget in a manner which ensured viability of the BOP and strengthened the debt-servicing ability of the economy. To this end, a new BOP adjustment strategy was put in place. It comprises three main elements, viz., exchange rate adjustment, fiscal correction and structural reforms in the area of trade and industrial policy. The rationale of the elements of adjustment strategy is briefly mentioned below.

(a) Exchange Rate Adjustment : A downward adjustment of about 18 per cent in the external value of the Indian Rupee was effected in two steps on July 1 and 3, 1991 followed by the abolition of -cash export subsidies designed to improve export incentives and make them more uniform. Apart from improving the profitabilty of exports, this adjustment quelled destabilising market expectations.

(b) Fiscal Correction : Reduction in the fiscal deficit was envisaged by about two percentage points from around 8.4 per cent of GDP to 6.5 per cent of GDP within the remaining eight months of the current financial year, to be followed by continued fiscal consolidation. This fiscal correction has been complemented with a restrictive monetary stance. These are aimed at reducing aggreate expenditure and thereby the current account deficit.

(c) Structural Reforms: These have been intiated in the field of trade and industrial policy with a view to further integrating the Indian economy with that of the world. In the realm of trade policy, the new measures have replaced import licensing for a wide range of intermediate products with the tradeable import entitlements carrying a uniform replenishment rate of 30 per cent of export value. The new instrument, known as Eximscrips, is freely tradeable, providing added incentives to exporters and enabling the allocation of imports according to the market forces within the available pool of Eximscrips. In the area of industrial policy, the system of licensing that regulated the entry and expansion of firms has been largely eliminated, exclusive reservations for the public sector have been sharply curtailed, and a significant reduction in barriers to foreign investment has been effected. These structural reforms are designed to improve the efficiency and competitiveness of the Indian economy and facilitate export expansion and other supply responses needed to support long-term growth and balance of payments viability.

(d) Mobilisation of Exceptional Financing : The Government has negotiated a stand-by arrangement with the IMF for SDR 1656 million(US $ 2.3 billion) over a 20-month period. This has been necessitated by the need to provide adequate foreign exchange cover for imports and maintain confidence of the foreign investors during the adjustment phase.

5.4 During the latter half of 1990-91 and the first quarter of 1991-92, primacy was accorded to the short-term management of the BOP. The much needed corrective action to curb domestic demand through fiscal measures could not be taken due to the uncertain internal political situation. Thus it was mainly left to monetary and credit policy to redress external imbalances and, in particular, the liquidity crunch. In addition, the import regime was made more restrictive by shifting a large number of items from OGL to restrictive/licensable categories and making prior approval from RBI for effecting large value imports essential. The monetary measures taken in this regard were mainly of two types. The first set of measures raised the cost of the financing foreign trade. These include the imposition of cash margins and high interest rates on import finance and export credit aimed at import compression and accelerating the realisation of export proceeds. The second set of measures involved interest rate increases relating to deposits and loans by commercial banks with a view to reducing aggregate expenditure and thereby the current account deficit.

While the symptoms of the emerging BOP crisis had begun to appear during the Seventh Plan period, the problem was aggravated by global developments subsequently. In particular, the position worsened during 1990-91. The proximate causes for this deterioration were a surge in imports owing to an increase in the POL import bill and a contraction in net invisible receipts as a result of escalation in interest payments. The pressure on the external sector intensified during 1990-91 and the first quarter of 1991-92. Durnig 1990-91, while various medium-term adverse factors were still in operation, certain short-term factors got superimposed on them. Foremost was the fallout of the Gulf crisis which entailed an additional cost of Rs. 5180 crore (US $ 2887 million) on the current account alone during the year 1990-91. Secondly, the disturbed conditions in the domestic polity generated unfavourble market perceptions and expectations concerning India. This affected both the current account and capital account components of an already vulnerable BOP position and, at the same time, made the financing of the former extremely difficult.

5.6 On the current account, there was a precipitous fall in invisible receipts in the form of private remittances, travel and toursim earnings, etc. The number of foreign tourist arrivals into India declined by 8.8 per cent during 1990-91. The temporary loss of confidence resulted in virtual cessation of commercial lending by private foreign banks to India and a massive erosion in accruals under non-resident deposits (NRDs). The seriousness of the former is evident from the fact that the approvals accorded to such loans fell from Rs. 2296 crore (US $ 1379 million) in 1989-90 to Rs. 596 crore (US $ 341 million) in the first six months of 1990-91 and to a mere Rs. 28 crore (US $ 15 million) in the second half. Net inflows of NRDs fell from a level of about US $ 1306 million in 1989-90 to US $ 229 million in 1990-91. Foreign Currency Non-Resident Account (FCNRA) deposits were particularly hit. The net infows into these deposits turned negative beginning October 1990 (Table 5.2). The monthly average outflows from the FCNRA were of the order US $ 67 million during the second half of 1990-91 which accelerated to more than US $ 310 million during the first quarter of 1991-92. This average monthly rate of outflow has decelerated to US $ 91 million during July-December 1991. Inflows into NRDs had earlier financed about one-forth of the current account deficit.

5.7 As a percentage of GDP, the current account deficit is estimated to have gone up to 2.5 per cent in 1990-91 from 2.2 per cent in 1989-90. The results of the quick estimates prepared by the RBI place the current account deficit in 1990-91 at Rs. 13088 crore (US $ 7295 million) as compared to Rs. 9824 crore (US $ 5900 million) during 1989-90. This sharp increase in the current accont deficit of Rs. 3264 crore (US $ 1395 million) during 1990-91 is made up of a larger trade deficit coupled with a smaller net invisible receipts. Trade deficit during 1990-91 on a payments basis stood at Rs. 15142 crore (US $ 8440 million), higher by Rs. 2729 crore (US $ 985 million) over the preceding year's (1989-90) level of Rs. 12413 crore (US $ 7455 million). The trade deficit on a payments basis as reported by the RBI is higher compared with the trade deficit reported by the DGCI&S based on customs valuation owing to differences in the timing, coverage and valuation of the trade data. Estimates of other net invisible receipts showed a decline to Rs. 1200 crore (US $ 669 million) from Rs. 1686 crore (US $ 1013 million) in 1989-90.

5.8 Movements in the country's foreign exchange reserves given in Table 5.3 manifest the net result of transactions in the external sector since 1980-81. Among the three components of foreign exchange reserves, the foreign currency assets of the RBI declined by Rs. 1399 crore (US$ 1132 million) in 1990-91 as against a decline of Rs. 818 crore (US $ 858 million) in 1989-90. As a result of the BOP adjustment strategy, there has been a distinct turnaround in BOP situation as reflected in the steady buildup in the foreign currency assets of the RBI. These have risen to Rs. 10958 crore (US $ 4243 million) on February 14, 1992 and were higher by Rs. 6570 crore (US $ 2007 million) over the end-March 1991 level.

5.9 The BOP data so far available for the current year are incomplete. However, available official data on trade and capital flows do provide an indication of the likely current account and capital account outturn of the balance of payments in 1991-92. On the whole, the current account deficit is expected to decline from 2.5 per cent of GDP in 1990-91 to less than 2 per cent in 1991-92. This reduction signifies the adjustment-cum-stabilisation measures now in place.

5.10 On the trade front, in terms of dollars, both exports and imports declined during the first six months of 1991-92 leading to a substantial reduction in trade deficit reflecting that the import compression measures introduced in the previous several months began to take effect. In US dollar terms, the imports and exports showed a decline of 17.5 per cent and 6.2 per cent, respectively. However, in view of the exchange rate adjustment effected in July 1991, imports and exports showed an increase of 9 per cent and 23.9 per cent, respectively in Rupee terms. These trends reduced trade deficit by Rs. 1878 crore (US $ 1405 million) from a level of Rs. 4234 crore (US $ 2426 million) during April-September 1990 to Rs. 2356 crore (US $ 1021 million) during April-September 1991.

5.11 The capital account, however, is expected to deteriorate during 1991-92 because of the curtailment in access to external commercial borrowings and the outflow of non-resident deposits. During April-December 1991, there was a net outflow in FCNR deposits of the order US $ 1475 million compared with a net inflow of US $ 397 million for the same period of 1990. Besides, net disbursements on account of external commercial borrowings (including export credit) were only Rs. 294 crore (US $ 128 million) during April-September 1991. There has, however, been a significant step-up in net aid disbursements (aid receipts minus repayments) from a level of Rs. 2407 crore (US $ 1363 million) during April-December 1990 to Rs. 5431 crore (US $ 2264 million) during the same period of 1991.

5.12 Despite improvement in the current account position, the adverse trends in the market-related capital inflows would necessitate exceptional financing of the order US $ 3.2 billion during 1991-92. This is expected to be largely covered by the World Bank structural adjustment loan, purchases under the stand-by arrangement with the IMF, and by additional financing from multilateral and bilateral sources.

5.13 In response to the rapidly dwindling foreign exchange reserves, the Government leased 20 tonnes out of the confiscated gold to the State Bank of India which, in turn, entered into a sale arrangement in the international market for a sum of US $ 200 million with a repurchase option. Further, the RBI, both as part of its reserve management policy and as a means of raising resources temporarily, took a decision to keep its gold abroad up to the limit permitted by the RBI Act (under Section 33(5) of the Reserve Bank of India Act, the RBI has the power to keep up to 15 per cent of its gold abroad). A total quantity of 46.9 tonnes was sent by the RBI to the vaults of the Bank of England to raise a sum of $ 405 million from the Bank of England and the Bank of Japan. These two transactions put together enabled the raising of a little over US $ 600 million and help tide over the serious liquidity crunch. With improvement in the country's reserves position, the gold pledged abroad was redeemed.

5.14 To mobilise foreign exchange resources, the State Bank of India launched India Development Bonds (IDBs) effective from October 1, 1991 with full repatriation benefits (for both interest earned and principal) to non-resident Indians/overseas corporate bodies. A sum of US $ 1378 million (US $1085 million in dollar bonds and UK £ 165 million in pound sterling bonds) was mobilised under this scheme (up to February 10, 1992). Besides, a scheme known as the 'Remittances in Foreign Exchange (Immunities) Scheme, 1991' was introduced to encourage repatriation of remittances. In respect of such remittances, their source, purpose and nature would not be subject to scrutiny under exchange control regulations and Direct Tax Laws. A sum of US $ 766 million has been mobilised up to February 10, 1992.

Exchange Rate Adjustment

5.15 The primary objective of the exchange rate adjustment is one of strengthening the viability of external payments position, i.e., to ensure that exchange rate movements maintain a reasonable incentive for export promotion and encourage efficient import substitution activities, and at the same time, to stem the flight of capital from India and discourage flow of remittances from abroad through illegal channels. In the immediate short run, exchange rate adjustment is expected to facilitate realisation of outstanding export receipts and accelerate, in general, the inflow of remittances by quelling destabilising market expectations. Downward adjustment in the exchange rate raises the relative price of traded goods (by increasing the domestic price of foreign currency) to non-traded (or home) goods, thereby encouraging production of tradeables while discouraging their consumption. This expenditure-switching effect at a macro level results in correcting the imbalances in the trade and current account.

5.16 The real effective exchange rate (REER) of a currency, which is the nominal exchange rate adjusted for the relative change in prices in the respective countries, is a proxy for a country's degree of competitiveness in world markets. Appreciation in REER reflects a deterioriation in the country's international competitiveness, while a depreciation in REER reflects the converse.

5.17 Many of India's trade competitors made substantial exchange rate adjustments over the past few years. China and Indonesia, for instance, depreciated their currencies against the US dollar more than India did despite their lower inflation. Over the period end-December 1980 to end-December 1989, China depreciated by 68 per cent and Indonesia by 65 per cent while India depreciated by only 53 per cent against US dollar, whereas the increase in consumer prices in China and Indonesia were lower at 100 per cent and 111 per cent, respectively, against India's 114 per cent over the same period.

5.18 Between October 1990 and March 1991 the REER of the Rupee appreciated by about 2 per cent as a result of a much slower rate of depreciation in the nominal exchange rate (2.4 per cent against the major five currencies over the same period) and the widening inflation differentials as the country's domestic inflation accelerated after October 1990. Further, in the five month period between February 1991 and June 1991, the nominal effective exchange rate of Rupee decreased only by 2.5 per cent while the inflation differentials continued to widen. All this resulted in an erosion of India's international competitiveness.

5.19 To restore the competitiveness of our exports and to bring about a reduction in trade and current account deficits, a downward adjustment of the Rupee had become inevitable. The Reserve Bank of India effected the exchange rate adjustment in two steps in early July 1991. The timing of the exchange rate adjustment was necessitated by the need to nullify adverse expectations and restore international confidence. On the other hand, the magnitude of the adjustment was predicated on the need to restore competitiveness of the country vis-a-vis her competitors in trade. On July 1, 1991 the value of the Rupee declined by 8 to 9 per cent against the major currencies (the pound sterling, the US dollar, the deutsche mark, the yen and the French franc). On July 3, 1991, the value of the Rupee was further lowered by 10 to 11 per cent against the major currencies.

5.20 In determining the extent of adjustment, the relevant factors were : differentials in the price levels between India and her major trading partners; the extent of real depreciation of the currencies of competitors; the degree of correction required in our balance of payments; and market expectations. Taking all these factors into account the magnitude of downward adjustment in the external value of the Rupee by about 18 per cent was appropriate.

5.21 A basic requirement for the success of this policy is that relative price change should bring forth requisite change in production and consumption patterns. Exchange rate depreciation could lead to an improvement of the current account only if export volumes rise and/or import volumes fall sufficiently to outweigh the price effect. Besides, lags in such response to exchange rate changes are also to be reckoned with. There is the well known "J Curve" effect of the improvement in balance of trade occuring after an initial deterioration. However, following the stringent monetary restrictions on imports, the expected deterioration of trade deficit did not happen. The trade deficit during the first six months of the current financial year contracted significantly.

Merchandise Trade

5.22 Overall trends in merchandise trade, on customs basis, during the recent years, both in Rupee and dollar terms, are given in Table 5.4.

This performance is marked by a high trade deficit, about $ 5.4 billion per annum during the last five years. The capacity of exports to finance imports (export/import ratio) declined in 1990-91 to about 75 per cent from around 78 per cent in the previous year, in the face of a fall in the growth of exports and sizeable growth in imports. However, during the first half of the current financial year, the trade deficit has been curtailed by nearly sixty per cent (in dollar terms) due to a sharp reduction in imports.

Imports

5.23 The high rate of growth in imports witnessed during the previous three years continued in 1990-91 when imports increased by 13.2 per cent in dollar terms or 22 per cent in Rupee terms. The acceleration in 1990-91 was mainly attributable to higher oil imports as POL imports in dollar terms increased by 60 per cent as a result of both a hike in world oil prices following the Gulf crisis as well as increased volume of oil imports as domestic production was impaired by supply difficulties. Non-oil imports during the year rose by only 3.1 per cent (in dollar terms). The compression of non oil imports resulted from a series of measures taken by the Government and the RBI in view of acute scarcity of foreign exchange reserves.

5.24 During the first half of 1991-92, import curbs were extended and intensified in the wake of a precarious balance of payments situation. The structural changes in trade policy announced during the year also aimed at optimal import compression by linking imports to exports (through the mechanism of Eximscrips), thereby encouraging efficiency in the use of imported inputs. Thus, imports during April-September, 1991 declined sharply by 17.5 per cent in dollar terms, contributed by a 22.7 per cent fall in non-POL imports.

5.25 Table 5.5 shows imports by major categories and commodities for 1990-91 and April-September 1991-92 along with growth rates for 1990-91 and the first half of 1991-92. The share in total of bulk imports, which largely consist of consumption goods as well as raw materials and some key universal intermediates, increased from 41.6 per cent in 1989-90 to 46.3 per cent in 1990-91 and stood at 45.1 per cent during April—September, 1991-92. Non-bulk imports constituted slightly more than half of total imports in 1989-90, 47.1 per cent in 1990-91 and 48.4 per cent during April—September, 1991. The acceleration in bulk imports was contributed, besides POL, by higher imports of pulses, edible oils, coal, ores and metal scrap and paper & paperboard. The deceleration in growth of non-bulk imports in 1990-91 was largely on account of a fall in the import of gems and jewellery, which is export-related, and a deceleration in the growth of imports of professional instruments and plastic material & artificial resins.

5.26 During April—September, 1991-92 imports declined across the board in dollar terms, excepting POL, the fall being substantial in imports of capital goods, chemicals, non-metallic minerals, ores and metal scrap, non-ferrous metals and edible oils. Imports of export-related items, in dollar terms, declined by around 10 per cent in 1990-91 and about 15 per cent during April—September, 1991.

Import Compression Measures

5.27 In view of the precarious foreign exchange reserves position, the Government sought to achieve import compression by fiscal and monetary means rather than by means of physical controls, although the latter were also resorted to during 1990-91 and the first quarter of 1991-92. To this end, the RBI continued and further tightened restrictions on import financing introduced in the second half of 1990-91. In May, 1991 the RBI imposed a 25 per cent interest rate surcharge on bank credit for imports subject to a commercial rate of interest of a minimum of 17 per cent, to discourage the use of bank credit to finance imports. The fiscal measures adopted to contain imports included an increase in the issue price of fertilizers and selective reduction in subsidies, an increase in the price of petroleum products and a continuance of the Gulf surcharge.

5.28 The new trade policy also aimed at optimal import compression by increasing the size of Exim-scrips and simultaneously shifting various categories of imports out of the realm of licensing requiring the release of free foreign exchange into the expanded Eximscrip market. Such a shifting of a large part of unsatisfied import demand to the Eximscrips market permitted the creation of a self-balancing mechanism whereby imports would automatically adjust to availability of foreign exchange through an increase in the Eximscrips premium, which in turn would provide an incentive to exporters.

5.29 An important direct import compression measure introduced in October, 1990 was the requirement of a cash margin of 50 per cent on payments for most imports other than capital goods. In March-April, 1991 these cash margins for imports other than capital goods were increased substantially, first to 133 $\frac{1}{3}$ per cent and then to 200 per cent (for all OGL imports) and 150 per cent for imports under specified licenses. Even in the case of 100 per cent EOUs, advance licenses, etc., a cash margin of 50 per cent was imposed. However, with the improvement in the reserve position, these cash margins were relaxed to 150 per cent in October, 1991, to 50 per cent in December, 1991 and then to 25 per cent in January, 1992.

5.30 Restrictions were also placed in March, 1991 on sale of foreign exchange for import of capital goods, which were allowed initially only under foreign lines of credit available with financial institutions. Subsequently, in November, 1991 relaxations were made permitting such imports up to a limited extent against suppliers credit. Import of capital goods up to a value of Rs. 50 lakhs was also permitted against free foreign exchange, and up to a value of Rs. 100 lakhs if the importer could arrange, suppliers credit for 360 days. Import of capital goods would also be allowed (i) against a matching inflow of foreign equity, (ii) against release of free foreign exchange upto 15% of the cost of import up to a limit of Rs. 100 lakhs where 85% of the cost is financed by external commercial borrowings, (iii) for export-oriented entities against borrowings for a minimum period of two years provided the borrowings are liquidated out of the net foreign exchange earnings of the borrowing unit.

5.31 In March, 1991 the Government introduced a system of prior centralised approval by RBI for opening letters of credit and remittances against imports not under letters of credit where the amount involved was Rs. 25 lakhs and above. This arrangement was further tightened in April, 1991 by the regulation that whenever the cumulative value of letters of credit and remittances taken together exceeded Rs. 2 crores for a single importer, all further letters/remittances would have to be specifically cleared by the RBI. These prior clearance requirements on the cumulative value of imports were eliminated in August, 1991. In December, 1991 the requirement of centralised clearance in those cases where the prescribed cash margins were to be maintained (imports other than capital goods) was waived.

Exports

5.32 There was a major slowdown in export growth during 1990-91 signalling a reversal of the buoyancy witnessed in earlier years. During 1986-87 to 1989-90, exports grew at 17.0 per cent per annum in dollar terms or 26.5 per cent in Rupee terms. In contrast, export growth in 1990-91 was modest at 9.1 per cent in dollar terms or 17.6 per cent in Rupee terms. This deceleration in exports was caused by a number of factors, such as, (i) a slowdown in the expansion of world trade (volume of world trade decelerated from 7.3 per cent in 1989 to 4.2 per cent in 1990 and further to 0.9 per cent in 1991) and recessionary conditions in some major industrial economies; (ii) loss of export markets in the Middle East due to the Gulf crisis; (iii) political and economic upheavals in Eastern Europe, which earlier provided a sheltered market to Indian exports; (iv) import curbs introduced during 1990-91 in response to the foreign exchange shortage and intensified after the Gulf crisis, affecting export-related imports; (v) movement in the exchange rate which was broadly supportive of exports since 1986-87 becoming adverse thus affecting competitiveness of exports; and (vi) internal law-and-order problems in some states.

5.33 Export data for major commodities for the years 1990-91 and April—September, 1991-92, together with growth rates for 1990-91 and the first half of 1991-92 are given in Table 5.6. They reveal that while export growth of agricultural commodities remained buoyant in 1990-91, that of manufactured goods decelerated. Consequently, the share of agricultural product exports in total exports increased from 17.6 per cent in 1989-90 to 19.4 per cent in 1990-91 while the share of manufactured goods slipped from 74.6 to 72.9 per cent during the same period. Nevertheless, the unit value realisation of many primary exports like coffee, rice, spices, oil-cakes, sugar and raw cotton (which together account for roughly 40 per cent of total agricultural exports) recorded a decline during 1990-91. Much of the drop in the export performance of manufactured goods is attributable to a decline in actual levels or a deceleration in the export growth of gems and jewellery, engineering goods, readymade garments and chemical & allied products which had been performing strongly during the last few years.

5.34 During 1991-92 (April-September), export performance has been quite disappointing with exports declining by 6.2 per cent in dollar terms (although in Rupee terms these increased by 23.9 per cent). Exports were adversely affected partly by the severe import curbs and the tight monetary policy impacting on export credit and import of raw material and components. The growth in industrial production could not be sustained once the accumulated inventories were drawn down resulting in a decline in industrial production during the first six months of the current financial year. Another reason for the poor performance of exports in the first half of 1991-92 was a perceptible fall in exports to the Rupee Payment Area (RPA), as shown below. However, exports to General Currency Area went up by 5.4 per cent.

Export Promotion Measures

5.35 Given the tight foreign exchange reserve position, the Government accorded the highest priority to lifting those import restrictions which affected exporters i.e. on export-related imports. The RBI exempted or relaxed the minimum cash margin requirements for imports of various export-related goods. Requirement of cash margins for imports (other than capital goods) against Eximscrips, issued after the realisation of export proceeds, was exempted and centralised clearance by RBI for imports against Eximscrips was also waived. Prior approval requirements were also relaxed in some cases in order to promote exports. The minimum ceiling of Rs. 3 crore in reckoning the permissible tolerance level for arriving at export outstanding to decide waiver/requirement of cash margins was also dispensed with in December, 1991. It is the Government's policy to further relax restrictions on export-related imports with the progressive strengthening of foreign exchange reserves position. Ministry of Commerce has also identified about 30 items for 'extreme focus' for stepping up their exports substantially in the medium and the long run. Besides, the structural trade policy reforms carried out by the Government, inter alia, aimed at promoting exports.

5.36 The Union Budget for 1991-92 also contained certain export promotion measures. The tax concession under section 80 HHC of income tax act was extended to exports of software and processed minerals; expanded coverage of specified machinery items was permitted under concessional duty for marine products industry; to promote leather exports, customs duty was reduced on certain raw materials and the coverage of concessional duty available to specified capital goods of leather industry was expanded; import duty on zirconium oxide and yttrium oxide was reduced to encourage indigenous manufacture of cubic zirconium and jewellery exports therefrom; and larger coverage of drug intermediates & bulk drugs was made eligible for a concessional rate of import duty.

Export Credit

5.37 In view of the paramount need of timely and adequate credit to increase exports, the RBI credit policy for the second half of 1991-92 effected a change in the export credit refinance formula. To provide an added incentive to banks for extending export credit, banks would be provided export credit refinance to the extent of 60 per cent of the increase in outstanding export credit over the monthly average level of 1988-89 up to the monthly average level of 1989-90 plus 125 per cent of the increase over the monthly average level of outstanding export credit in 1989-90. The modified two-tier formula was to be implemented in two stages. The second tier of refinance was to be raised from 100 per cent to 110 per cent effective November 2, 1991 and from 110 per cent to 125 per cent from December 28, 1991.

5.38 Further, interest rates on pre-shipment and post-shipment export credit were also increased. Interest rates on pre-shipment credit were increased from 12.5 per cent per annum to 15 per cent per annum for credit upto 180 days and from 14.5 per cent per annum to 17 per cent per annum for credits beyond 180 days and upto 270 days. Similarly, interest rates on post-shipment credit were increased to 15 per cent (from 12.5 per cent) for credit up to 90 days, 20 per cent (from 18 per cent earlier) for credit beyond 90 days and upto six months and 15 per cent (from 12.5 per cent) for deferred credit for the period beyond 180 days. There was no change in the interest rate of 25 per cent for post-shipment credit beyond six months from the date of shipment. The increase in export credit interest rates together with the liberalisation of the export refinance formula are expected to facilitate a significant and enduring increase in flow of credit to the export sector. A pre-shipment export credit scheme denominated in foreign currency was introduced by EXIM bank to enable exporters access to imports of raw materials/components. To enable the exporters to avail of post-shipment credit denominated in foreign currency and pay interest at rates applicable to foreign currency concerned, a new scheme of "Post-shipment Export Credit Denominated in Foreign Currency" was introduced with effect from January 1, 1992.

Direction of Trade

5.39 The direction of India's foreign trade for the years 1989-90, 1990-91 and the first half of 1991-92 is depicted in charts on the following pages. Currently, slightly more than half of the exports are accounted for by OECD, a little less than a fifth by Eastern Europe, about a sixth by non-OPEC developing countries and around a twentieth by OPEC countries. As regards sources of imports, slightly more than half are from OECD, about a fifth from the developing countries (non-OPEC), around a sixth from OPEC and around a twelfth are from Eastern Europe. During the current financial year (April—September, 1991-92), the share of USSR in total exports declined from 16.1 per cent in 1990-91 to 9.1 per cent. Agreements with the independent Republics of the former USSR are urgently required to be effected for protecting these markets.

New Trade Policy

5.40 The reversal of trends in export growth during 1990-91 and the current year required a massive export thrust. In contrast, the earlier economic policy environment had a constraining effect in this regard. High tariff walls and strict import licensing had produced a domestic cost structure which was out of line with the world prices. The high cost structure and the various limitations on entrepreneurial decision-making, introduced by many of the policies, had resulted in the industry becoming uncompetitive in the international market making it extremely difficult to export without extensive subsidies and other special incentives.

5.41 To redress this situation and to step up the rate of growth of exports, which is crucial for the medium-term recovery of the economy, adjustments in the exchange rate of the Rupee were effected twice in July, 1991. These exchange rate adjustments are expected to improve the country's international competitiveness in the short and medium term thus boosting growth of exports. This, however, assumes that inflation would be controlled and production for exports augmented. These exchange rate policy changes were followed by major structural reforms in trade policy aimed at substantial liberalisation of controls and licenses, decanalisation of many items of trade, reduction in peak tariff rates, abolition of export subsidies and other measures to encourage competitiveness and enterprise in the economy. Further, changes in industrial policy undertaken by the Government would also help in improving the international competitiveness of Indian industry and thus promoting exports. Supportive tight fiscal and monetary policies were also adopted to correct the trade imbalance.

5.42 During July—August, 1991 the Government announced far reaching changes in trade policy. These policy changes aimed at strengthening export incentives, eliminating a substantial volume of import licensing and optimal import compression. Essential imports of sensitive items (such as POL and fertilizers) were fully protected, but other imports of raw materials and components were linked to export performance through enlargement and restructuring of the replenishment licensing system. The system of cash compensatory support was abolished consequent upon the change in the exchange rate and other measures of reform which provided substantial incentives for exports across the board. The major policy changes introduced are highlighted below.

(i) The new trade policy makes major changes in the import licensing system by replacing large part of administered licensing of imports by import entitlements linked to export earnings. The import replenishment system was enlarged and restructured and renamed as Eximscrips. Eximscrips will be freely tradeable and the premium on the scrips, set by the market, will represent a further incentive for exporters and a means of allocating imports according to market forces. This will improve the export profitability with maximum incentives to exporters whose import intensity is low. The increased coverage by Eximscrip and the requirement under new policy to encourage financing more and more imports by purchasing Eximscrips would imply a major expansion in demand for Eximscrips leading to increased market premium and export profitability. The Eximscrips will have the following features :

(a) All the export products would have a uniform Eximscrip rate of 30 per cent of FOB (as against 5 to 20 per cent earlier) except for metal based handicrafts, newspapers/journals/periodicals, exposed cinamatographic films and gems/jewellery sector which would continue to enjoy the higher benefits of replenishment as were earlier admissible. Further, in respect of some notified export products such as value added agricultural products, marine products, drugs, electronic products, high technological engineering products, the exporters would be eligible for an additional Eximscrips entitlement of 10 per cent of the FOB value of exports

(b) Exports generated from the General Currency Area (GCA) and the Rupee Payment Area (RPA) will enjoy the benefit of import replenishment for use from the GCA and the RPA, respectively

(c) The scope of export services has been enlarged and the rate of replenishment of service exports has been increased from 10 per cent to 30 per cent of net foreign exchange earnings (NFE)

(d) For exports made on the basis of duty-free imports obtained against Advance Licenses, Eximscrips will be available at the general rate of 30 per cent, but this will be applied to the NFE

(e) Eximscrips will be tradeable and can be used to import any item in the limited permissible list (Appendix 3), the non-sensitive canalised list (Appendix 5A), all OGL items for actual users (Appendix 6, List 8 Part I and Appendix 6, List 10) and non-OGL capital goods other than those in the restricted list (Appendix 1A) of the Import Export policy, 1990...93

(f) The system of supplementary licenses has been discontinued and the category of unlisted OGL abolished (except for small scale industries and for manufactures of specified life saving drugs and equipment) and all these import requirements will be met through Eximscrips.

(ii) The system of advance licenses, designed to provide exporters with duty-free access to the inputs they need to produce competitively for world markets, is an important instrument of trade policy, especially in our situation where import tariff levels are still high. The new trade policy has strengthened this system of advance licences by simplifying and speeding up the process of issuing these licenses, reduction in the number of documents required, larger coverage of items for prescribing norms, specifying the value of an advance license in free foreign exchange, permission to adjust fluctuations in prices of imported individual items within the overall CIF value of the advance license, delegation of powers to revalidate these licenses, streamlining the procedure for obtaining bank guarantee and legal undertaking, permission to dispose off the materials imported against such licenses without seeking prior permission of the licensing authority (in cases where no MODVAT facility has been availed of) and removal of substantial manufacturing activity condition for exports to GCA for these licenses.A new Scheme of Transferable Advance License for GCA exports in selected thrust areas, whereby exporters can undertake exports based on duty paid inputs obtained from the market and subsequently obtain advance licenses for replenishment of these inputs, was also introduced. These changes in the advance license scheme will give greater freedom to exporters procuring duty-free raw materials and strengthen it as an instrument of export promotion.

(iii) The procedure for import of capital goods (CG) has been simplified following the Statement on Industrial Policy. New units and units undergoing substantial expansion will be automatically granted licenses for import of capital goods (other than those in the Restricted List—Appendix I Part A) without any clearance from the indigenous availability angle, provided their import is fully covered by foreign equity or the import requirement is up to 25 per cent of the value of plant and machinery subject to a maximum of Rs. 2 crore. By way of further relaxation in January, 1992 the requirement of licence for import of CG under the above scheme of direct foreign investment up to 51 per cent foreign equity in high priority industries has been done away with. Import of OGL capital goods (Appendix 1, Part B), non-OGL capital goods (non-Appendix 1, Part A and B) and Restricted goods (Appendix 1, Part A) will be allowed without a specific licence on the basis of the clearance given by the Reserve Bank of India in cases where foreign exchange for import of capital goods is fully covered by foreign equity. Import of such capital goods against foreign equity will be only for actual use. As a measure of rationalisation, payment for imports of capital goods may also be allowed to be made directly in the foreign country by the foreign investor. Such payment will be treated as his contribution to the foreign equity of the company. Access to non-OGL capital goods (other than those in the Restricted List) has also been expanded for all exporters and export houses by permitting their imports against Eximscrips. The clearance from the indigenous angle has been waived for import of capital goods in the case of externally financed projects in which international competitive bidding procedure is followed.

(iv) The new trade policy also includes measures to strengthen the development of Export Houses and Trading Houses as an instrument for promoting exports. These include a widened range of items permitted to be imported by Export Houses, Trading Houses and Star Trading Houses against their additional licences during 1991-92 and additional entitlement of Eximscrips at the rate of 5 per cent of FOB for these houses w.e.f. 1st April, 1992. Government has also permitted the setting up of Trading Houses with 51 per cent foreign equity for the purpose of promoting exports. Such trading houses would be eligible for all the benefits available to domestic export and trading houses.

(v) The list of Restricted items was reviewed and 98 items were shifted from the restricted list to the limited permissible list. The list of OGL items was also reviewed and 37 items shifted from the limited permissible list to the OGL list. Similarly, the list of OGL items was reviewed and 76 items were shifted initially and 34 in December, 1991 from OGL to Limited Permissible List.

(vi) Over the years, a number of items of exports and imports have been canalised for export or import through specified public sector agencies. The new policy aims at progressively reducing the extent of canalisation. The Government has decontrolled 116 items allowing their exports without any licensing formalities. Another 29 items have been shifted to OGL. In the case of imports, 6 items were decanalised and placed on OGL while 16 items were decanalised and listed in Appendix 3 where they will be available for import against Eximscrips.

(vii) The Export Processing Zones (EPZ) scheme and the 100 per cent EOU scheme, which were introduced to provide for duty free enclaves, enabling production exclusively for exports, have not taken off as expected and have also not attracted foreign investment for tapping export markets to the desired extent. After a review of the working of these schemes, the following changes were made :

(a) All EOU/EPZ units will be eligible for Exmiscrips at the basic rate of 30 per cent applied to NFE.

(b) The duty applicable on DTA sales from EOU/EPZ units has been reduced to 50 per cent of the normal customs duty subject to the duty payable not being less than the excise duty on the same product. DTA sales will be permitted in the ratio of 25 : 75 in relation to export sales in case of units whose use of indigenous raw material is more than 30 per cent of production. In all other cases, the ratio of permissible DTA sales to export sales will be 15 : 85.

(c) The NFE earned by EOU or EPZ units can be clubbed with the earnings of their parent/associated companies in the DTA for the purpose of according Export House, Trading House or Star Trading House status for the latter.

(d) The IPRS scheme for supply of steel has been extended to EOUs and EPZ units.

(e) Capital goods imports for these units will be allowed under the automatic approval procedure if they are fully covered by foreign equity or if they do not exceed 50 per cent of the value of plant and machinery subject to a ceiling of Rs. 3 crore.

Besides, procedural improvements like the delegation of approval powers, allowing entry of imported raw materials on a provisional basis to expedite customs clearance, replacement of a Multiple bond by a Single bond for obtaining import clearance and permitting units under EPZ and EOU schemes to supply/transfer finished goods among themselves, were also announced by the Government.

(viii) The Actual user requirement in respect of OGL capital goods and OGL raw materials and components has been removed. The condition of having registration/industrial approval from the concerned authority for import of OGL capital goods, raw materials, components, consumables and spares, was also dispensed with.

(ix) It is also realised that the extent of tariff protection is unduly high, constraining the movement towards international competitiveness. The Budget and Trade Policy statement indicate that customs duties would be reduced over time, in tandem with improvements in the fiscal and balance of payments position. The Union Budget, 1991-92 has already begun the process of tariff reforms with a reduction in peak tariff rates to a maximum of 150 per cent (from as much as 300 per cent or more) and a moderate across the board reduction in tariffs on capital goods imports. Rationalisation and simplification of the tariff structure would also need to be emphasised as part of these reforms.

(x) Harmonisation of Trade and Customs Classification since October, 1991 has introduced greater transparency in import policy including tariff structure.

(xi) Objectives of public sector Trading Organisations, which have traditionally depended on canalised trade, would be reoriented towards their emerging as international Trading Houses capable of operating in a competitive global environment, of serving as effective instruments of public policy and of providing adequate support to the small scale/cottage industries.

(xii) The Government has decided to allow established exporters to open foreign currency accounts in approved banks and allow exporters to raise external credits, pay for export-related imports from such accounts, and credit export proceeds to such accounts. This will facilitate payments by exporters for their essential imports.

5.43 The medium-term objective of the Government is to progressively eliminate licensing and quantitative restrictions on capital goods and raw materials/components so that all these items can be placed on OGL save for a small carefully defined negative list. The Ministry of Commerce has already set up a High Level Committee on Trade Policy Reforms to work out the modalities of achieving this transition.

External Capital Flows

5.44 The crisis in the balance of payments during 1990-91 and the first quarter of 1991-92 necessitated extra efforts in mobilising additional external funds to fill the substantial financing gap. The task of the Government became particularly difficult in the context of the weakening of international confidence in the economy resulting in unprecedented setback in the net accruals under non-resident deposits and erosion in the country's credit rating, coupled with the general shortage of capital in the international financial markets, resulting in drying up of the source of commercial borrowing. In the end, the Government could mobilise substantial additional financial resources from the IMF, the World Bank and also bilateral donors especially Japan.

External Assistance

5.45 Last year's survey pointed out the hardening of terms of India's external assistance in the 1980s arising from the falling share of IDA assistance in the World Bank's lending profile as well as the shortening of the maturity period of IDA lending since 1987. This is reflected in a declining net transfer under external assistance even in Rupee terms during the recent period, 1987-88 to 1989-90 (see Table 5.8). This trend was reversed in 1990-91 with a nearly 15 per cent rise in net capital transfer in that year in Rupee terms and about 6 per cent in dollar terms. Indications are that, in the current year, net capital transfer under external assistance would rise substantially. This indicates larger disbursements which would more than compensate the rising debt service payments.

5.46 In the context of the present shortage of foreign exchange, utilisation of already authorised assistance assumes significance. Efforts were made in recent years to identify and remove the constraints in aid utilisation. The major constraints in the speedy utilisation of the committed assistance are the paucity of Rupee resources due to limited Plan allocations, delays in procurement of stores and equipment, problems connected with land acquisition and rehabilitation and resettlement of displaced persons. The measures already taken to improve aid utilisation include waiver of DGTD clearance for import of capital goods under all externally-aided projects, enhancement of additional central assistance to the states to 100 per cent in the case of social sector projects, formation of standard bid documents and simplification of other procedures. These steps are in the right direction but by themselves not adequate, and new measures may have to be introduced in order to step up the utilisation of external assistance in pipeline which amounted to about $ 30 billion at the end of November 1991.

5.47 The Aid-India Consortium which met in Paris late in September 1991, pledged to provide $ 6.7 billion of assistance in 1991-92 which represents an increase of $ 400 million, or about 6 per cent over the previous year. Taking into account the immediate liquidity requirements of the country, the Consortium decided to provide a large component of overall commitments at $ 2.3 billion or one-third, in the form of fast-disbursing assistance mainly from the IBRD, ADB and bilateral donors such as Japan and Germany.

5.48 The World Bank approved a Structural Adjustment Loan of $ 500 million in December 1991 in order to help the country in the process of reforms in industrial and trade policy, of which $ 300 million has already been released. The Asian Development Bank sanctioned a Programme Loan of $ 250 million for assisting the restructuring of the Oil and Natural Gas Commission and associated policy reforms in the oil sector, of which half the amount has been drawn by January 1992. Japan also assisted India with two fast-disbursing loans of $ 150 million each for the import of diesel and to help the refinance operations of the SIDBI for loans to small-scale industries.

External Commercial Borrowing

5.49 The country's reliance on external commercial borrowing has been substantial in recent years up to 1989-90 after which there has been a steep decline in this source of external capital. The fall in disbursements coupled with a sharp rise in debt-service payments, resulted in a net negative transfer under external commercial borrowing in 1990-91. The situation deteriorated in the first half of 1991-92 (Table 5.9).

5.50 Several factors are responsible for the fall in the availability of commercial credit to India in 1990-91 and 1991-92. A major factor has been the overall shortage of capital in the international market due to the low level of savings in some of the major developed countries and the heavy demand on world savings arising from the unification of the Germanys, post-Gulf war reconstruction in West Asia, and restructuring of the East European countries. Banks were also diverting funds from credit expansion towards strengthening their capital base in order to meet capital adequacy requirements of the Bank for International Settlements. The Gulf crisis, political instability, and the erosion of international confidence in the economy resulted in successive downgrading of India's creditworthiness by international rating agencies further constraining India's access to commercial credits.

5.51 The fall in fresh borrowing from external commercial sources since 1990-91 is accompanied by a major shift in the composition of ECB approvals. Whereas the share of bank loans and bonds fell considerably in this period, that of export credits rose. Indeed, in the second half of 1990-91 and first half of 1991-92 there was a spurt in approvals under export credits partly compensating for the drying up of other sources of commercial credit. This is not surprising as export credits are not that much affected by the loss of creditworthiness as bank loans and bond issues, for the lender in the former case is usually protected by insurance cover offered by credit insurance agency of the concerned country.

5.52 The International Finance Corporation, Washington (IFC-W) is the major multilateral agency promoting productive private investment in developing countries by providing long-term loans and risk capital at commercial rates for maturity of 7 to 12 years. Since 1959, the IFC(W) has approved investments in India amounting to about $ 1.0 billion the bulk of which has been in the form of long-term loans. The IFC(W) investments in India have been mainly in sectors like power, iron and steel, automobiles, chemicals and petrochemicals, and general manufacturing. Approvals for 1990-91 were $ 126 million and for 1991-92 up to November $ 222 million. In the context of deregulation of the Indian economy, IFC(W) is expected to play a more active role in promoting productive private investment, attracting foreign direct investment and also in mobilising resources from international capital markets.

Non-Resident Deposits

5.53 Non-resident deposits which had been a source of considerable support to India's balance of payments over past years received a serious setback in 1990-91 when they registered an accretion of only about $ 250 million against $ 1.3 billion in 1989-90. This reflected the erosion of international confidence in the Indian economy from the latter half of 1990-91 which worsened in the early half of 1991-92 leading to a further outflow of $ 1.5 billion during April-December, 1991 under the FCNR accounts alone against an inflow of $ 397 million in the corresponding period of last year. The NR(E)R deposits also suffered, although marginally, showing an outflow of about $ 90 million during April-December, 1991 against an inflow of $ 30 million in the same period last year. As a result, the total outstanding balances under these two accounts put together declined from $ 10.6 billion at end-March, 1991 to $ 8.5 billion at end-December, 1991 (Table 5.10).

The latest interest rate structure of non-resident deposits can be seen from Table 5.11.

5.55 Two additional schemes were introduced to attract foreign exchange resources from non-resident Indians in the second half of 1991-92. On October 1, 1991, the State Bank of India launched its India Development Bonds for non-resident Indians (NRIs) and their overseas corporate bodies (OCBs). The bonds have a five-year maturity period and are denominated in US dollars and pound sterling. The dollar bonds carry an interest rate of 9.5 per cent and the sterling bonds 13.25 per cent. They are freely transferable among NRIs/OCBs as also among Indian residents who receive them as gifts from the former. These bonds are also free from income, wealth and gift taxes in India. The offer which was initially open up to November 30, 1991 was extended up to January 31, 1992. An amount of $ 1085 million and £ 165 million ($ 293 million) had been collected under the scheme as per information available till February 10, 1992.

5.56 The second new scheme for mobilising additional foreign exchange resources was entitled 'The Remittances in Foreign Exchange (Immunities) Scheme, 1991'. Under this, the source of funds, purpose and the nature of remittance would not be subject to scrutiny under the exchange control regulations and Direct Tax Laws. However, any income received by the person on the remitted amount would be subject to income tax. A sum of $ 766 million had been received under this scheme as per information available up to February 10, 1992.

Foreign Investment

5.57 Foreign investment has played a very limited role so far in the Indian economy (for example, direct foreign investment approvals in India during 1986-90 had been Rs. 900 crore or about Rs. 180 crore per annum) resulting from a relatively restrictive foreign investment regime followed by the Government till recently. Foreign investment was allowed generally in areas of hi-tech, sophisticated technologies and substantial exports. The normal ceiling for foreign investment was 40 per cent of the total equity capital, but a higher percentage of foreign equity was considered in priority industries if the technology was sophisticated and not available in the country, or if the venture was largely export-oriented.

5.58 The Government has established a more liberalised foreign investment policy as a part of the new industrial policy announced in July 1991. The new regime of foreign investment contains the following : (i) as against the past policy of considering all foreign investment on a case-by-case basis and that too within the normal ceiling of 40 per cent of total equity investment, the new policy provides for automatic approval of direct foreign investment up to 51 per cent foreign equity holding in 34 specified high-priority, capital-intensive, hi-technology industries provided the foreign equity covers the foreign exchange involved in importing capital goods and outflows on account of dividend payments are balanced by export earnings over a period of 7 years from the commencement of production; (ii) foreign technology agreements are also liberalised for the 34 industries with firms left free to negotiate the terms of technology transfer based on their own commercial judgement and without the need for prior Government approval for hiring of foreign technicians and foreign testing of indigenously developed technologies; (iii) in order to avail of professional marketing activities for systematic exploration of world markets for foreign products, foreign equity holding up to 51 per cent would be permitted for trading companies as well; and (iv) a special Board (Foreign Investment Promotion Board) has been set up to look into large foreign investment projects where higher foreign equity limits of more than 51 per cent may be permitted.

5.59 Although it is too early to expect a substantial inflow of foreign investment resulting from the above changes, the response of the new foreign investment policy measures has been encourging so far. The overseas investment approvals reached a peak of Rs. 522 crores during 1991 (including approvals given by the Reserve Bank of India up to December 22, 1991) as against only Rs. 128 crores during 1990.

Drawals from the IMF

5.60 In the context of heavy withdrawals from non-resident deposits and the drying up of the source of commercial credits, the much needed support to the country's balance of payments was provided mainly by the IMF. After the completion of the drawings under the extended arrangement in April 1984, India did not take any recourse to the IMF till December 1990. The gross drawings from the Fund from January 1991 to January 1992 amounted to SDR 2.2 billion equivalent to $ 3.0 billion or Rs. 65 hundred crore. Details of these drawals are given in Table 5.12.

TABLE 5.12

* The drawal of SDR 487 million during July—September 1990 of the reserve tranche is not regarded as the use of Fund credit as it is treated as part of the country's external resources which can be drawn up to its full amount at any time without conditions.

 A total of SDR 1,656 billion ($ 2,262 billion) to be disbursed in 8 tranches over a 20-month period from November 1991 to June 1993.

External Debt

5.61 India's medium and long-term external debt, consisting of external assistance on Government and non-Government accounts, external commercial borrowings and the IMF liabilities, amounted to Rs.1,004 hundred crore ($ 51.1 billion) at the end of 1990-91 which constituted about 19 per cent of GDP. Including NRI deposits, the country's external debt (other than short-term debt) stood at Rs.1212 hundred crore ($ 61.7 billion) constituting about 23 per cent of GDP. Adding the estimates of short-term debt of maturities up to one year, India's aggregate external debt amounted to Rs. 1,307 hundred crore or $ 66.5 billion as on March 31, 1991 which was around 25 per cent of the country's GDP.

5.62 It may be noted that short-term debt constitutes a relatively low proportion of India's aggregate debt; the share of short-term debt in total external debt rose from about 4 per cent at the end of 1988-89 to about 7 per cent at the end of 1990-91. The short-term debt is in the nature of suppliers' credits to finance normal import trade as well as bankers' acceptance facilities arranged through Indian banks. India's short-term debt is largely owed by public sector canalising agencies incurred for the import of POL, fertilisers, edible oil and essential raw materials. From the second quarter of 1990-91, Indian banks found it increasingly difficult to raise resources through short-term credit on the one hand, and the cost of alternative sources of short-term credit through suppliers' credits and credits from non-Indian banks rose, on the other. The situation, however, has improved since July 1991 as there has been a gradual restoration of international confidence. Besides, with the increase in the country's foreign exchange reserves it has been possible to stabilise the level of short-term credit.

STOCK OF EXTERNAL DEBT AS A RATIO OF GDP

5.63 The debt-service payments on India's medium and long-term external debt (excludingNRI deposits) reached a peak of 23.5 per cent of exports and gross invisible receipts in 1987-88. The ratio declined thereafter and in 1990-91, it stood at 21.3 per cent. The declining trend in India's debt-service ratio is partly on account of a substantial growth in the value of exports during the recent years and partly to progressive termination of liability towards the IMF on account of the EFF loan.

5.64 The short-term liquidity crisis on India's external sector has been overcome and the country's foreign exchange reserves have registered a substantial improvement. International confidence has been restored.

5.65 However, the underlying weaknesses of the balance of payments remain; the falling support from net invisible receipts resulting from rising interest payments, the poor industrial and export performance, and the high domestic inflation are problems in the way of return to a sustainable balance of payments. The gradual relaxation of import controls as the reserve position improves, will help in restoring growth in industrial sector and exports. However, the tight monetary policy may have to continue for some more time in view of the high inflation.

5.66 With the restoration of international confidence in the economy, India may be able to attract funds from abroad through foreign investment, external commercial borrowing and non-resident deposits. A stable low oil price and low interest rates in the international market would help India's balance of payments. However, the medium-term turnaround in the balance of payments hinges largely on the country's ability to boost exports.

5.67 Exports are to benefit from the relaxation of import controls which are under way. However, the continued high domestic inflation and recessionary conditions in the world economy are two important impediments to sustained growth of India's exports. The emergence of a number of independent states in the erstwhile U.S.S.R. and the continued uncertainty in the region are bound to affect the country's exports adversely. The inconclusive Uruguay Round of Multilateral Trade Negotiations and the consequences thereon do not augur well for the future. The prospect of the system collapsing into various regional trade blocks is not good for countries such as India. Thus India's balance of payments will continue to be under strain in the near future.

INDUSTRY

A major policy reform, substantially deregulating the industrial sector and liberalising foreign investment and technology imports, has been the most significant development during 1991-92. The new package of industrial policy initiatives abandons industrial licensing in all industries except those reserved for the public sector, for the SSI sector and those under compulsory licensing, subject to minimal locational conditions. Lists of industries reserved for the public sector and under compulsory licensing have been pruned. Restrictions on investment by MRTP and FERA companies have been removed. The MRTP Act has been amended to remove threshold limits of assets. Approval for foreign investment up to 51 per cent of equity has been made automatic in specified high, priority industries subject to certain conditions regarding the coverage of the import cost of plant and machinery and balancing of dividend payments by export earnings. Approval for foreign technology agreements has been made automatic subject to certain limits on payments. The Phased Manufacturing Programme is abolished and the convertibility clause in the loan agreements with banks/financial institutions removed. Part of the equity holdings of selected public sector enterprises are being divested and placed with mutual funds. Sick public sector enterprises have been brought within the purview of the BIFR.

After consistent high growth in the past three years, industrial production is likely to suffer a setback during 1991-92. The recessionary trend is more pronounced in the manufacturing sector. Factors responsible for this downturn were import compression, rise in the cost of imports due to the cash margin requirement and the downward adjustment of the exchange value of rupee and the tight money policy on the supply side and a perceptible fall in effective demand due to inflationary pressure, reduction in public expenditure, and strict fiscal dicipline on the demand side. This setback is transitional, an immediate fall out of the stabilisation measures initiated by the Government for the macroeconomic adjustment of the economy.

However, infrastructure industries performed well, except for crude petroleum and petroleum products. Production of saleable steel and cement increased substantially. There was a deceleration in the production of nitrogenous fertiliser, but phosphatic fertiliser did well. The growth of the small-scale industries decelerated in 1990-91 because of import and credit constraints.

The investment climate continues to be econouraging. There was a significant increase in new capital issues by private sector companies. The stock market has been booming with optimism. Once the key stabilisation measures have been successfully implemented, the overall investment climate is likely to turn brighter in the coming months and years in response to deregulation and liberalisation. Industrial relations were by and large peaceful.

Introduction

The new Industrial Policy initiating far-reaching structural reforms to lead Indian industries away from a regulatory and protective regime to a free, market-oriented, competitive and globalised environment has been one of the widely debated issues in the country ever since its announcement in July 1991. Another important issue which has been a cause of immediate concern during the current financial year is the persisting weak trend in industrial production, particularly in the manufacturing sector. This chapter outlines the thrust areas of new industrial policy, reviews the performance of manufacturing industries and gives an over view of the investment climate, capital market, industrial sickness and other related areas having a close bearing on the industrial economy of the country.

Industrial Policy

6.2 The decade of the 1980s witnessed a rapid expansion of the industrial activity which can be attributed mainly to the reforms undertaken in both industrial and trade policies in the early and mid-1980s. Further policy changes have become necessary for accelerating the industrial growth in the 1990s in order to consolidate the achievements of the last decade. The new policy initiatives were announced in the Statement on Industrial Policy tabled in Parliament on 24th July 1991. The policy de-regulates the industrial economy in a substantial manner. The major objectives of the new policy package will be to build on the gains already made, correct the distortions or weakness that might have crept in, maintain sustained growth in productivity and gainful employment, further encourage growth of entrepreteurship and upgrade technology in order to attain international competitiveness. All sectors of industries whether small, medium or large, belonging to the public, private or co-operative sector, will be encouraged to grow and improve on their past performance. Key provisions of the New Policy are given below:

A. Domestic Regulatory Reforms

De-reservation of industries for the Public Sector

6.3 Since 1956, 17 industries have been reserved for investment by the public sector. Private sector was, however, permitted to invest in these industries on a selective basis. Now only 8 industries will continue to be so reserved. Among the industries reserved earlier were many core industries like iron and steel, electricity, air transport, ship building, heavy machinery industries such as heavy electrical plants and telecommunication cables and instruments. The new Industrial Policy has removed all these industries from the Reserved List. Industries which continue to be reserved for the public sector are in areas where security and strategic concerns predominate. The Government has also decided that it will undertake a review of the existing portfolio of public investments, particularly in respect of industries based on low technology, small scale and non-strategic areas, inefficient and unproductive areas, areas with low or no social significance or public purpose and areas where the private sector has developed sufficient expertise and resources. The focus in the public sector will be on strategic, hi-technology and essential infrastructure areas. The Government has also announced its intention to offer a part of Government shareholding in the public sector enterprises to mutual funds, financial institutions, the general public and workers. A beginning has been made by divesting part of the equities of selected public sector enterprises to be placed with mutual funds. Overall, much greater autonomy will be given to public sector management so that they can operate on commercial lines. The new policy indicates the Government's intention to invite a greater degree of participation by the private sector in important areas of the economy.

Abolition of Industrial Licensing

6.4 Until the early 1980s the Indian industrial sector had functioned under a tight regulatory regime of industrial licensing which was designed to allocate the overall scarce resources towards building the industrial base of the country. Now that the Indian industrial economy has a wide, diversified and increasingly competitive base, the new policy has abolished all industrial licensing, irrespective of the level of investment, except for certain industries related to security and strategic concerns, social reasons concerns related to safety, and overriding environmental issues, and manufacture of products of a hazardous nature. There are certain locational guidelines designed to discourage the clustering of industries, particularly the polluting industries in the periphery of major urban centres. Existing industries will also be free to expand according to their market needs without obtaining prior expansion or capacity clearance from the Government.

6.5 In the earlier licensing regime existing manufacturers were licensed to produce specific products. With the abolition of industrial capacity licensing, firms will now be free to manufacture any article in response to market demand (except for those subject to compulsory licensing).

Abolition of Phased Manufacturing Programmes

6.6 The Government has recently announced a significant devaluation of the rupee and made substantial trade policy reforms. With the adjustment of the exchange rate towards a more realistic level and the removal of the need for imprort licences for a large part of raw materials, intermediate goods and components, there is no longer any need for enforcing the local content requirements on a case-by-case, administrative basis under the "Phased Manufacturing Programmes" which have been in force in a number of engineering and electronic industries. In future, there will be no Phased Manufacturing Programmes attempting to force the pace of indigenisation in manufacturing. Various incentives that are currently available to manufacturing units with existing Phased Manufacturing Programmes will continue. The prospective abolition of Phased Manufacturing Programmes will remove a major irritant that a large number of firms have felt in terms of discretionary power and Government's interference in business decisions.

Removal of Mandatory Convertibility Clause

6.7 A substantial portion of industrial investment in India is financed by loans from banks and financial institutions. These institutions have so far followed a mandatory practice of including a convertibility clause in their lending operations for new projects. This has provided them the option of converting part of their loans into equity if felt necessary by their management. Although this option has not often been exercised, it has often been interpreted as an unwarranted threat to private firms of takeover by financial institutions. Henceforth, financial institutions will not impose this mandatory convertibility clause.

Removal of Investment Controls on Large Business Houses

6.8 Since the enactment of the Monopolies and Restrictive Trade Practices Act (MRTP Act) in 1969 all firms with assets above a certain size (Rs.100 crores since 1985) have been classified as MRTP firms. This asset limit has been applied to the sum of the assets of firms interconnected through equity shares or through management control. Such firms have been permitted to enter selected industries only and this also on a case-by-case approval basis. In addition to control through industrial licensing, separate approvals were required by such large firms for any investment proposals. This had begun to have a significant deleterious effect on the freedom of many of the large private firms in their plans for growth and diversification. Parliament has passed the MRTP Amendment Bill removing the threshold limits of assets in respect of MRTP and dominant undertakings. These firms will now be at par with others, and not require prior approval from the Government for investment in the delicensed industries. The MRTP Act as amended now will give more emphasis to the prevention and control of monopolistic, restrictive and unfair trade practices so that consumers are adequately protected from such practices.

6.9 This interconnected set of measures will provide a new environment of increased competition and freedom in the operations of the Indian private sector. The aim of all these measures is to recognise the increased competence of Indian firms and to give them the necessary freedom to deal with the emerging challenges that are being thrown up by today's increasingly interdependent industrial world.

B. Reforms in regulations concerning foreign investment and foreign technology

6.10 As with domestic industrial investment, foreign investment has also been traditionally regulated tightly in India. In the case of foreign technology agreements sought by Indian firms as well as foreign investment, it was necessary to obtain specific prior approval from the government for each project. With the expansion of industrial activity in the country, this case-by-case approval process has become unwieldly. Moreover, with the increasing technical sophistication of Indian firms and the communication revolution that has swept the world, there is little reason for the interference of Government, which involves delays and hamper business decision making, in the import of technology by Indian firms. Hence, for a specified list of high-technology and high-investment priority industries (ANNEX-III industries) firms will receive automatic approval to make foreign technology agreements within certain guidelines. For the present, these guidelines will allow royalty up to 5 per cent of domestic sales and 8 per cent of export sales, along with lumpsum technology payments of up to Rs. 1 crore. This automatism will be available to other industries also if the payments can be made without resort to free foreign exchange resources. This policy measure will remove the delay and uncertanity which clouds the relationships between Indian and foreign firms and are designed to encourage more stable and dynamic technology relationships between foreign firms and their Indian counterparts.

6.11 Hiring of foreign technicians and testing of indigenously developed technology abroad earlier required case-by-case approval by the Government. This involved unavoidable delay. Henceforth, no permission will be necessary for these purposes.

6.12 Similarly, in the case of foreign investment, automatic permission will be available for foreign equity up to 51 per cent equity shares in the high-priority industries referred to above. This facility will be available to those firms which are able to finance their capital equipment imports through their foreign equity. This is a major departure from the existing policies which required case-by-case approval of foreign investment normally limited to 40 per cent equity participation. Again, this has been done in recognition of the increased maturity of Indian firms and the fast changing global scenario where strategic alliances are the order of the day. Foreign investment in these areas will therefore be welcome in India and strategic alliances would be specifically invited. For this purpose, a special empowered board will be constituted to engage in purposive negotiations with a number of large international firms and to invite substantial investments to provide access to high technology and world markets. The investment programmes negotiated by this board will be considered in totality and will be free from other predetermined parameters or procedures.

6.13 Foreign investment policy so far has generally discouraged foreign equity holdings in service areas except for hotels. The Government had decided to invite foreign equity holding up to 51 per cent by international trading companies also. In addition to hotels, 51 per cent equity will also be welcomed in other tourist related areas.

6.14 With the announcement of these measures a very substantial structural reform of the Indian industrial policy has taken place. These reforms should help galvanise the economy in the closing decade of the century, make it more outward-oriented and provide freer play of market forces.

Industrial Production 1991-92

6.15 There has been a mild recession in industrial production in the first eight months of the current financial year. The General Index of Industrial Production (IIP) has shown a decline of 0.9 per cent during April—November 1991 compared with a significant growth of 10.0 per cent in the corresponding period of last year. The decline in production was much steeper at 2.3 per cent in the manufacturing sector as against a growth of 11.5 per cent last year (Table 6.1) while the production of the mining and quarrying sector fell by 1.6 per cent, that of the electricity sector recorded a lower growth of 7.8 per cent compared with 8.3 per cent last year.

6.16 According to the production data at the disaggregated level available upto November 1991, of the 17 major industry groups in the manufacturing sector, 2 groups, viz beverages and tobacco products and non-metallic mineral products with a combined weight of 4.57 per cent in the IIP recorded accelerated growth, 6 groups of industries (weight : 45.18 per cent) recorded decelerated growth and 9 industry groups (weight : 27.36 per cent) recorded negative growth (Table 6.2). The major industry groups which have been reeling under recessionary pressure were electrical machinery and appliances, non-electrical machinery and machine tools, rubber, plastic, petroleum and coal products, metal products and parts and transport equipment. Some of the major product groups of industries which have shown significant fall (by more than 5 per cent) in production during April—October 1991 are nylon filament yearn, polyester fibre, electric motors, diesel engines, viscose filament yarn, wrist watches, pig iron, telephone instrument, computer systems and peripherals, jeeps, motor cycles, scooters and mopeds, cloth (mill sector) paints and varnishes, petroleum crude and machine tools.

6.17 This decline in the production of the manufacturing sector has come about in spite of a fairly good back up support by the agriculture and infrastructure sectors. Except for petroleum, all other major infrastructure industries like coal, electricity and steel have been performing fairly well.

6.18 The structural changes and the resilience acquired by the manufacturing sector over the years have ostensibly weakened the dependent character of its backward linkage with agriculture. However, the health of the industrial sector is getting increasingly sensitive to the changes in the macroeconomic factors both on the demand and supply sides. Some of these factors which have cast a depressive effect on the production performance of the manufacturing sector in 1991-92 are :

(i) Import compression measures initiated in 1990-91 and continued during the curent year have affected the availability of imported raw materials, spares and components and capital goods to import-dependent industries such as man-made fibres and synthetic yarn, electrical and electronics, metals and alloys, chemicals and agro-chemicals, pharmaceuticals, engineering goods, paper and paper products, rubber and plastic products, automobiles and ancillaries. The cash margin requirement on imports and the interest surcharge on import credit imposed by the RBI in 1990 and the downward adjustment of the exchange value of rupee in July 1991 have made imports costilier and pushed up the production cost of many import dependent industries.

(ii) Credit controls along with the hike in interest rates have affected the availability and cost of finance, particularly working capital, to the industry and pushed up the cost of production. The additional taxation measures announced in the union budget for 1991-92 have also contributed to the rise in industrial costs. However, financial results of many of the leading industrial companies for the half-year ending September, 1991 show higher sales earnings and profits, which means that these companies were able to pass on the increased production costs to the consumers in the initial period. The escalations in the prices of the manufactured goods might have led to the build up of some consumer resistance and a slump in effective demand.

(iii) Reduction in public expenditure and other fiscal adjustment measures have also resulted in a perceptible fall in the effective demand for the products of many manufacturing industries. The slump in demand was more pronounced in non-essential consumer durables like automobiles, entertainment electronics etc.

(iv) Production of petroleum products was down by 3.3 per cent in April—October 1991. This might have caused some transport bottlenecks and raw material (e.g. petro-chemical) shortages, affecting industrial production.

6.19 The structural composition of Indian industries based on the end use of output has not shown any marked changes in the past decade. Table 6.3 gives the group-wise annual growth rates of the use-based groups of all industries in 1981-82 and from 1985-86 to 1990-91. Groupwise growth rates of 155 selected industries with a total weight of 85.51 in the IIP, for the year 1990-91 and for the period April—October, 1991 are given in Table 6.4.

Steel

6.20 Production of saleable steel by the main steel plants (excluding Visakhapatnam Steel Project) during April—December 1991 improved substantially (Table 6.5). All the SAIL plants, except Durgapur, increased their production. But there was a decline in the production of pig iron by the SAIL plants. In the case of finished steel, production of the secondary sector (mini-steel plants) which has been growing at an average annual rate of 4 per cent in the past 3 years, suffered a mild setback during the current year because of the inadequate availability of melting scrap due to import constraints. Price and distribution controls on iron and steel items manufactured by integrated steel plants were withdrawn on January 16, 1992. The Freight Equalisation Scheme was also withdrawn. The requirements of defence, railways, small-scale industries, exporters of engineering goods and the North-Eastern region will, however, contince to be met from the priority quota.

Cement

6.21 The cement industry has been doing exceedingly well during the current year. Production of cement during April—December 1991 recorded a growth of 10.7 per cent compared with 7 per cent in the corresponding period of last year. The bulk of the increase during the current year has come from the large plants in the private sector which contributed more than 80 per cent of total cement production (Table 6.6). This better performance of private sector cement plants can be partly attributed to the firm trend in cement prices since the decontrol of the industry in March 1989.

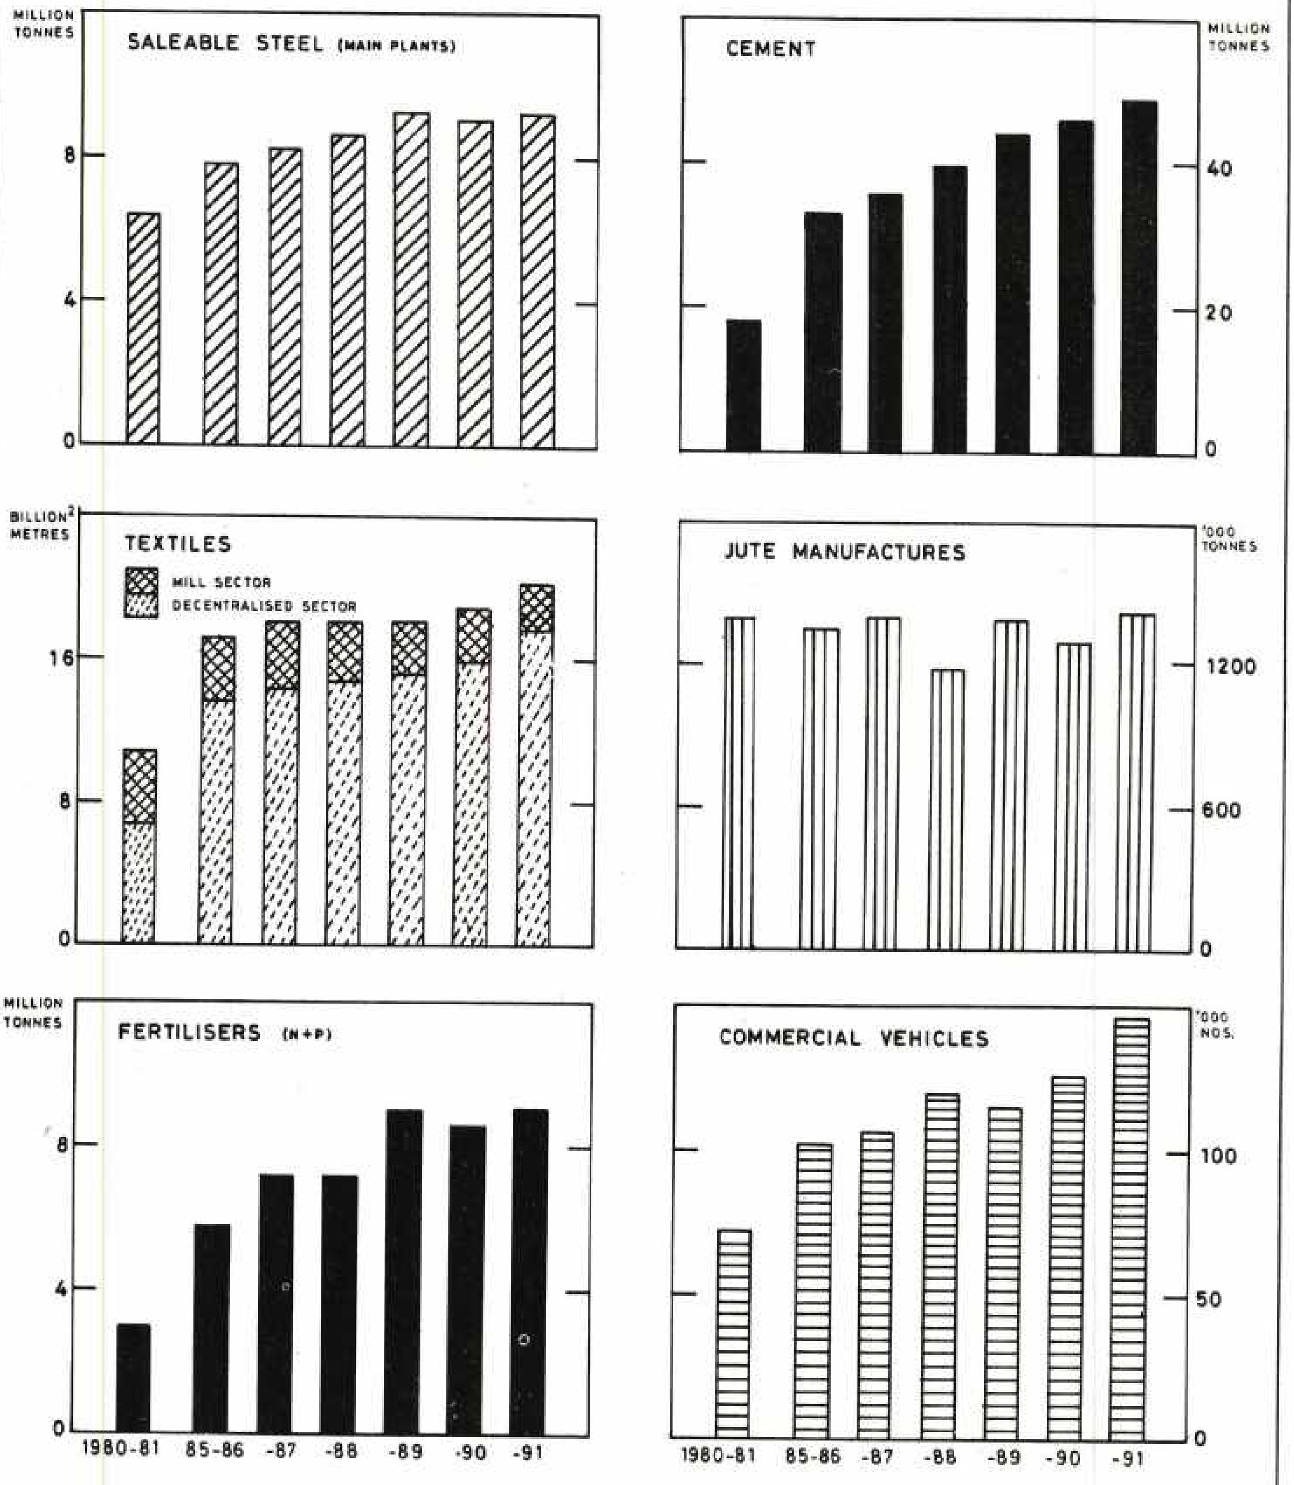
PRODUCTION OF SELECTED INDUSTRIES



Fertilizers

6.22 Production of fertilizers (nitrogenous and phosphatic) during April—December 1991 showed growth of 7.2 per cent over the corresponding period of last year (Table 6.7). This was largely due to the increase in the production of phosphatic fertilizers. There was a deceleration in the production of nitrogenous fertilizers. Targets set for the production of fertilizers for the current year are 7.35 m.t. of nitrogen and 2.65 m.t. of phosphate. Even if the industry is able to meet these targets, indigenous production will fall short of the expected demand of about 13.5 m.t. (including 1.4 m.t. of potassic fertilizers) in the current year, which is 6 per cent higher than the estimated consumption of 12.7 m.t. in 1990-91. The supply—demand gap in fertilizers, particularly in nitrogen, is expected to widen this year. Capacity utilization of the fertilizer industry during April—December 1991 was about 89 per cent compared with about 83 per cent for the corresponding period, last year.

Small-Scale and Village Industries

Small-scale Industries

6.23 The estimated number of small-scale units at the end of 1990-91 was 19.38 lakh including 5.6 lakh unregistered units. Value of production is provisionally estimated at Rs. 155340 crore and employment at 124.30 lakh. Direct exports from the sector during 1990-91 are provisionally estimated at Rs.9100 crore. The growth of the sector during 1990-91 was relatively low because of the adverse impact of certain factors like import restrictions, credit squeeze and hike in interest rates. The combined adverse effects of these factors are likely to aggravate further during the current year. Production in the small scale sector is expected to go up only by about 3 per cent this year as against 8.5 per cent in 1990-91. The growth in employment is also likely to be only marginal.

6.24 The new policy measures for promoting and strengthening small, tiny and village enterprises were laid in Parliament on 6 August, 1991. The main thrust of the new policy is to impart more vitality and growth to employment and exports. The salient features of the new policy are :

(i) De-regulation, de-bureaucratisation and simplification of statutes, regulations and procedures;

(ii) Increase in the investment limit in plant and machinery of tiny enterprises from Rs. 2 lakh to Rs. 5 lakh, irrespective of the location of the unit;

(iii) Inclusion of industry-related services and business enterprises, irrespective of their location, as small-scale industries;

(iv) Ensuring both adequate flow of credit on a normative basis and quality of its delivery for viable operation of the SSI sector;

(v) Setting up of a special monitoring agency to oversee the genuine credit needs of the small-scale sector;

(vi) Introduction of suitable legislation to ensure prompt payment of small industries bills;

(vii) Introduction of a scheme of Integrated Infrastructural Development (including technological back-up services) for small-scale industries;

(viii) Setting up of a Technology Development Cell in the Small Industries Development Organisation;

(ix) Market promotion of SSI products through co-operative/public sector institutions, other specialised professional/marketing agencies and the consortia approach;

(x) Setting up of an Export Development Centre in the Small Industries Development Organisation.

6.25 The scope of the National Equity Fund and Single Window Schemes being implemented by the Small Industries Development Bank of India for the benefit of the smaller among small-scale units was further widened during 1991-92 by enhancing the limit of the project cost of eligible units from Rs. 5 lakh to Rs. 10 lakh and from Rs. 10 lakh to Rs. 20 lakh, respectively. The limit of working capital assistance under the Single Window Scheme was also enhanced from Rs. 5 lakh to Rs. 10 lakh.

Khadi and Village Industries

6.26 Units under the Khadi and Village Industries Commission produced Rs. 2225 crore worth of goods in 1990-91 and provided employment to 47.93 lakh persons. During 1991-92, the production level is expected to go up to Rs. 2460 crore and employment to 50.01 lakh.

Investment Climate and Capital Market

Investment climate

6.27 The approval of Letters of Intent, SIA registrations, DGTD registrations, etc. are the conventional indicators of investment intentions. After the announcement of the New Industrial Policy, all registrations have been abolished but the issuance of Letters of Intent for still licensed industries continues. The filing of Industrial Entrepreneurs' Memoranda has replaced the system of registrations. The response to the New Industrial Policy is shown by the filing of 3095 memoranda since this system began in mid August. Thus the aggregate indication of investment intentions increased from 2763 during April—December, 1990-91 to 4699 in April-December, 1991-92 (Table 6.8). The funds raised in the capital market and the flow of institutional credit to the industrial sector broadly indicate the trend of actual financial investment in the sector. Approvals for new capital issues granted to non-Government companies during April—December 1991 at Rs. 7309 crore have shown an increase of 59 per cent over Rs. 4604 crore in the corresponding period of last year (Table 6.9). Actual issues also increased by 44 per cent indicating the highly optimstic outlook of the capital market in spite of a recessionary trend in industrial production. According to the provisional data available, assistance sanctioned by all-India financial institutions in the first six months (April—September) of the current financial year, shows an increase of 9.6 per cent over corresponding period of last year. Actual disbursements also have gone up by 39.8 per cent. Approvals for the import of capital goods granted by the Capital Goods (Main) Committee during April—December 1991 was two and a half times more than the approvals granted in April—December, 1990. Approvals for foreign investment proposals and foreign technology agreements also showed an increase (Table 6.8). A full picture of the investment behaviour during the current year, particularly in the post-deregulation period, would be available only after the recalibration of the data reporting system. However, the overall prospects of investment during the current year is expected to turn brighter, responding to the liberalisation measures initiated under the new Industrial Policy announced in July 1991.

Capital Market

6.28 The capital market has been performing reasonably well in the April—December period of the current year. Approvals for new issues of shares and debentures granted by the Controller of Capital Issues (CCI) during the period showed a significant growth of 57 per cent in the case of non-government companies and a modest growth of 9 per cent in the case of government companies (Table 6.9). The overall approval for new capital issues in April—December 1991 was 33 per cent higher than that in the corresponding period of last year. A notable feature of new capital issues this year was a perceptible shift in favour of debentures in the portfolio composition. Debentures constituted 65 per cent of the new issues approved for non-Govt. companies in April—December 1991 as against 56 per cent in April—December 1990

6.29 According to the provisional data available with the RBI new capital issues actually floated in the market by non-government public limited companies during April—December 1991 amounted to Rs. 3096 crore marking an increase of 44 per cent over the corresponding period of last year (Table 6.9). The increase was 56 per cent in the case of equities and 39 per cent in the case of debentures.

6.30 The cautious recovery with an underlying optimism witnessed in the stock market during the last quarter of 1990-91 continued during the first quarter of the current financial year as well, when the Reserve Bank of India's All-India Index Number of Ordinary Share Prices (Base : 1980-81 = 100) recorded an increase of 7.6 per cent from 527.9 in the last week of March, 1991 to 568.0 in the last week of June, 1991. The market sentiments gathered further bullishness following the new fiscal measures announced in the Union Budget for 1991-92 and the new policy initiatives of far-reaching consequences announced in the Industrial Policy Statement in July, 1991 and the Trade Policy Statement in August, 1991. The RBI index moved up from 644.3 in the last week of July 1991 to a new peak of 752.2 in the last week of August 1991. Equity prices, however, opened with a weak note in the first week of September but recovered subsequently and the index closed at 779.9 in the last week of September. The market was rather sluggish in October, 1991 and the index declined to 756.7 in the last week of October. The stock market revived during November and but for some temporary pauses in the bullish tread, remained more or less buoyant till the end of December when the RBI index closed at 814.5. On a point-to-point basis, the RBI index showed a gain of 54.3 per cent between end-March, 1991 and end-December, 1991. The average index for the period April—December 1991 showed an increase of 36.3 per cent over the corresponding period of last year.

6.31 Some of the important policy measures on capital market taken by the Government and the Reserve Bank of India during the current year are :

(i) Setting up of mutual funds in private and joint sectors will be allowed.

(ii) The ceiling on the acquisition of shares/debentures of Indian companies by non-resident Indians (NRI) and overseas corporate bodies (OCB) has been raised by the Reserve Bank of India under the portfolio investment scheme, from 5 to 24 per cent.

(iii) The Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI) has been made a statutory body by a Presidential Ordinance on 31 January 1992. The Board is now vested with powers to protect the interests of investors in securities and to promote the development of the capital market and to regulate the working of stock exchanges.

(iv) In August 1991 Government issued a directive to the stock exchanges to ensure greater transparency in transactions in securities for the benefit of the investing public and stricter regulation of trading in 'specified' shares, timely settlement of transactions and broad-basing the governing bodies of stock exchanges.

(v) Revised guidelines for good or bad delivery of securities in stock exchanges were issued in August 1991 to improve and simplify the operation of stock exchanges.

(vi) As a measure of investor protection, Government issued a directive in September 1991 to the stock exchanges for introducing a scheme of registration of sub-brokers.

(vii) Clause 41 of the Listing Agreement was amended to provide for greater disclosure of financial information on a half-yearly basis by the listed companies.

(viii) In order to improve the liquidity of listed shares, the Government has asked major stock exchanges to work out a scheme of "Market Makers" in the exchanges.

(ix) Earlier guidelines on Employees' Stock Option Scheme were amended in May 1991 to restrict the maximum number of shares that can be allotted to an employee at 500 shares of Rs. 10 each or 50 shares of Rs. 100 each. The unsubscribed portion of the employees' quota would automatically be added back to the public issues.

(x) All restrictions on interest rates on debentures and public sector bonds other than tax-free bonds were removed in August 1991. Interest rates on such instruments will be governed by the market forces but the companies are required to obtain a credit rating before floating these instruments. The credit rating would be optional in specific cases like public sector bonds, non-convertible debentures up to Rs. 5 crore for private placement and debentures convertible into equity within 18 months of allotment.

(xi) The format of the propsectus to accompany the application form for public issues was revised and a memorandum containing the salient features of the prospectus was prescribed. Among other disclosures, the companies are now required to highlight the risk factors of the projects in the prospectus as well as in the memorandum.

(xii) Guidelines on large issues (Rs. 500 crore or above) were revised in October 1991. Proceeds of such issues, till deployment, can be invested only in fixed deposits with co-operative/nationalised banks, UTI, financial institutions and public sector undertakings (other than in public sector bonds).

(xiii) A new financial instrument, 'Stockinvest' has been introduced to be used by the investors as application money for new capital issues.

Industrial Sickness

6.32 An outstanding credit of Rs. 9353 crore which constituted about 9.2 per cent of the total bank advances and 17.4 per cent of the outstanding bank credit to industries was locked in about 2.2 lakh sick industrial units (excluding 125571 non-existent and non-traceable SSI units with an outstanding bank credit of Rs. 240 crore) on the rolls of commercial banks as at the end of March 1990. If the non-traceable and non-existent units are also taken into account, total bank credit locked in sick and weak units as at the end of March 1990 at Rs. 9593 crore was 24.5 per cent higher than the Rs. 7705 crore outstanding at the end of December 1988, which constituted 9.4 per cent of the total outstanding bank advances (Table 6.10). There was a slight abatement in the increasing incidence of sickness, which is a welcome trend signalling some positive results of the measures taken by the banking system to improve the strengthen the mechanism for an early detection of the symptoms and prevention of sickness among the assisted industrial units as well as for the rehabilitation of such units. The share of the SSI sector in the aggregate bank credit locked in sick/weak units (including non-traceable and non-existent units) had come down from 28.7 per cent at end-December, 1987 to 27.8 per cent at the end of March 1990. According to RBI data, about 74 per cent of the bank credit locked in non-SSI sick and weak units at the end of March 1990 was in the private sector. Industry group-wise, the incidence of sickness and weakness in the non-SSI sector, in terms of credit outstanding, was the highest in textiles (27.7 per cent) followed by engineering (19.9 per cent), chemicals (6.9 per cent), iron and steel (5.8 per cent) and paper (5.2 per cent).

6.34 The Government and the Reserve Bank of India have initiated a number of measures for the revival of sick industrial units as well as to prevent the incidence of sickness. Important guidelines issued by the RBI to scheduled commercial banks during the current year are outlined below :

(i) Banks have been advised to adopt the single window concept for lending under consortium arrangements for both sick and weak units in respect of the disbursements under working capital as well as rehabilitation term loan (viz. towards payment for pressurising creditors, labour rationalisation and statutory liabilities) envisaged under the rehabilitation package.

(ii) Banks have been advised to gear up their organisational machinery for taking effective measures to detect sickness at the incipient stage and to take appropriate remedial measures.

(iii) In respect of a unit in an industrial group becoming sick, banks have been advised to impress upon the 'group' to come forward with concrete proposals to assist the unit where sickness is on account of internal factors. Infusion of fresh funds from out of the resources of the healthy units in the group should be insisted upon.

(iv) It has been re-emphasised that participation by banks in rehabilitation package is mandatory. If any bank is not able to 'discount' its debt as permitted by RBI, it would have no alternative but to take up its share. If any member bank does not take up the share, the consortium of banks will have the right to defer the repayment of dues to it under the package.

(v) A definite time frame for implementation of packages should form a part of the draft packages submitted to BIFR. This has been introduced to eschew any tendency to delay on the part of the involved agencies.

(vi) A nodal monitoring agency (either lead institution or lead bank) for monitoring the implementation of the rehabilitation package would be designated and the name of the agency would be indicated in the draft package submitted to BIFR.

(vii) In the context of the all-round increase in lending rates, the RBI parameters on interest rates for various facilities under rehabilitation packages in respect of non-SSI sick/weak industrial units have been revised. In order to obviate the need for change in the parameters whenever there is a revision in the lending rates on advances, the interest rates have been prescribed as fixed percentage points below the prevailing minimum lending rate.

(viii) While drawing up rehabilitation packages for non-SSI sick/weak units, banks are required to ensure that promoters' contribution is maximised. A minimum of 20 per cent in the cases involving change in management, professional/technocrat management and 30 per cent in other cases, should be insisted upon. The banks and financial institutions can stipulate higher promoters' contribution, where warranted. While working out promoters' contribution, in cases other than change of management, technocrat and professional management, the monetary value of sacrifices from banks, financial institutions and Government will have to be taken into account, in addition to the long term requirement of funds under the rehabilitation packages.

(ix) In order to ease the debt burden of sick units, banks and institutions have been given the option, on the basis of their commercial judgement, to convert part/whole of the unpaid interest/term loans into equity/quasi equity under rehabilitation packages sanctioned by them. Detailed guidelines for this purpose have been issued.

(x) Parliament has passed the Bill to amend the Sick Industrial Companies (Special Provisions) Act, 1985 (SICA) to bring public sector enterprises also within the purview of BIFR.

6.35 Since its inception up to the end of December 1991 the BIFR had received 1547 references under Section 15 of the Sick Industrial Companies (Special Provisions) Act, 1985. Of these 410 cases were rejected after scrutiny. Of the 1117 references registered, 191 were dismissed as not maintainable and 131 cases were approved under section 17(2), after an assurance that the company could make its net worth positive on its own within a reasonable time. Operating agencies were appointed in respect of 623 cases. After considering the reports of the operating agencies and further hearings the Board sanctioned 225 revival schemes (including merger, change of management and leasing), recommended 155 cases to the concerned High Court for winding up and ordered the sale of one unit. In addition, draft schemes were formulated in respect of 46 cases and winding up notices were issued in respect of 62 cases. The proportion of cases decided to those effectively registered by the BIFR till the end of December 1991 was about two-thirds and the ratio of companies in the revival path to those on the road to liquidation works out to 1.9:1.

Industrial Relations

6.36 Industrial relations were by and large peaceful during the current year. There were no major or prolonged disturbances on the labour front. Industrial unrest, in general, was confined to cotton and jute textiles and engineering industries in the states of Andhra Pradesh, Maharashtra, West Bengal and Tamil Nadu. Table 6.12 gives the data on mandays lost due to strikes and lockouts.

Outlook

6.37 Industrial production has been on the threshold of a recession in the first eight months of the current financial year. The constraining factors like import compression, tight-money policy, fiscal retrenchment and inflationary pressure which have had a depressing effect on industrial production are still in operation and some of them, particularly the strict monetary and fiscal discipline which are the basic elements of the macroeconomic adjustment programme initiated by the Government, are likely to continue in operation. Import compression, even after relaxation, will have a hangover effect on the manufacturing sector because of the normal time lags in effecting the imports. However, fairly good agricultural production, encouraging trends in the infrastructure sectors and the containment of the inflationary pressures in the economy will give some boost to the effective demand for industrial products. An increase in the tempo of investment in response to the new Industrial Policy is also likely to generate more demand. If an optimistic view of these favourable factors is taken, the growth of industrial production during the current year could be expected to be in the range of 3 to 4 per cent.

As a result of a good monsoon during 1990-91, foodgrains production reached 176 million tonnes, 3 per cent more than in 1989-90. The production of rice and wheat was 74.6 million tonnes and 54.5 million tonnes respectively. Among the commercial crops, sugarcane and oilseeds reached production levels of 240.3 million tonnes and 18.5 million tonnes respectively.

Due to the erratic behaviour of the monsoon, it is expected that the total production of foodgrains during 1991-92 may fall below last year's level—a setback in production is anticipated for kharif foodgrains and the major oilseed crops, groundnut and soyabean. However, the prospects of rapeseed and mustard are bright. The prospects of sugarcane are excellent. Cotton production during 1991-92 may also be higher. Due to a fall in area, production of jute and mesta during 1991-92 may be a little lower than last year's production.

The irrigation potential estimated to have been created by 1990-91 was about 82.8 million hectares. However, there is a cumulative gap in the utilisation of the potential of about 8.6 million hectares till 1990-91.

Fertiliser consumption reached 12.6 million tonnes in 1990-91 and is expected to be about 13.6 million tonnes in 1991-92. Fertiliser subsidy increased from Rs. 3201 crore in 1988-89 to Rs. 4389 crore during 1990-91. As a part of fiscal correction, the Union Budget for 1991-92 increased issue prices of fertilisers by 30 per cent while completely exempting small and marginal farmers from the price increase.

During 1990-91 milk production is estimated to have reached 53.7 million tonnes while egg production has reached a level of 21 billion eggs. As a result of delicensing, dairy industry may face some initial adjustment problems, but it is likely to emerge more competitive and efficient. Fish production in the country has reached 3.8 million tonnes during 1990-91.

The Eighth Plan has given priority to the growth and diversification of the agricultural sector, which is expected to generate surpluses for exports.

Introduction

7.1 Agriculture and allied activities are the mainstay of livelihood of the country's population, as about three-fourths of the population lives in rural areas. The Government has given the utmost importance to the development of this sector. The measures taken from time to time combined with the dynamic response by the farmers, have enabled Indian agriculture to attain considerable resilience to weather shocks in the recent period. The improvement in farm productivity witnessed over the years has assisted in absorbing the impact of natural calamities, like failure of the monsoon, floods, etc. As a result, the influence of the monsoon has been moderated despite the fact that only about one third of the total area under principal crops has assured irrigation facilities. The country has achieved considerable improvement in agricultural production.

7.2 During 1990-91, total foodgrains production in the country reached 176 million tonnes, showing an increase of 3 per cent over the earlier year's performance. The foodgrains production in 1991-92 may be below the target level of 182 million tonnes. The kharif crop has been considerably affected by a long dry spell in the north and north-western parts of the country. However, rabi foodgrains production may show a marginal increase over that in the previous year.

Production Performance

7.3 With a good monsoon, the year 1990-91 turned out to be satisfactory. Foodgrains production increased slightly during this year. The share of rabi crops in total foodgrains production was 43.3 per cent. Coarse grains and pulses constituted 26.8 per cent of the total foodgrains production. The performance of agricultural production during 1980s is shown in Table 7.1.

@Nine major oilseeds including groundnut, castorseed, sesamum, rapeseed and mustard, linseed, safflower, nigerseed, sunflower and soyabean.

Figures in brackets are per cent increase or decrease over the year.

Agricultural year is from July to June.

7.4 The major foodgrain crops, viz., rice and wheat, achieved record production levels of 74·6 million tonnes and 54.5 million tonnes, respectively, during 1990-91. Among commercial crops, sugarcane production reached a level of 240.3 million tonnes during this year. The favourable monsoon has also led the oilseeds production to increase to 18.5 million tonnes during 1990-91.

7.5 It is too early to indicate the overall production of foodgrains during 1991-92. Current expectations are that foodgrains production during the current year may fall below last year's production level of 176.2 million tonnes. Kharif output, already harvested, is likely to be below last year's level of production of 99.9 million tonnes. This is mainly on account of the long dry spell in the north and north-western parts of the country covering Bihar, Uttar Pradesh, Rajasthan, Madhya Pradesh and Gujarat during the south-west monsoon. Rabi foodgrain production may show a marginal increase over the previous year.

7.6 The dry spell has also adversely affected the output of oilseeds. The output of groundnut crop in Gujarat is likely to be lower, as also soyabean production in Madhya Pradesh. The prospects of rabi oilseeds, particularly rapeseed and mustard are brighter; the targetted level of 8.4 million tonnes may well be achieved.

7.7 The propspects of sugarcane are excellent. Cotton has suffered in Gujarat, Maharashtra, Karnataka and Tamil Nadu, but production may be higher than last year's level of 9.76 million bales. The production of jute and mesta this year may be slightly lower than last year's production level of 9.1 million bales, as the area is reported to have decreased in West Bengal. Targets and achievements of agricultural production from 1988-89 onwards are given in Table7.2.

Rice

7.8 The area under rice during 1990-91 was 42.60 million hectares. Irrigation coverage is 43 per cent; the remaining area is rainfed. The increase in rice output and productivity in the country owes much to the Integrated Programme for Rice Development which covers 24 states. Among the major states, Assam, Uttar Pradesh, Karnataka and Bihar showed an increase in rice production during 1990-91. In Andhra Pradesh and Tamil Nadu, production declined owing to a decrease in area coverage; in West Bengal and Punjab, rice production declined owing to lower yield per hectare. A target of 76.50 million tonnes of rice has been fixed for 1991-92.

Wheat

7.9 Wheat production witnessed an increase during 1990-91 in all the major growing states of Bihar, Gujarat, Haryana, Madhya Pradesh, Punjab, Rajasthan and Uttar Pradesh. The area covered under the crop has reached 24.0 million hectares.

7.10 The productivity of wheat has increased substantially; in 1990-91 it was 3.4 times as compared to the 1950-51 level. A target of 56.50 million tonnes of wheat production has been fixed for the current rabi 1991-92 season.

RECENT TRENDS IN FOODGRAINS PRODUCTION

Coarse Grains

7.11 The area covered under coarsegrains; namely, jowar, bajra, maize, ragi, small millets and barley, was of the order of 36.55 million hectares during 1990-91. The production of all coarse grains crops, except barley and bajra, declined. There was a fall of 3 per cent in the area covered under coarse grains. For the year 1991-92, a target of 34 million tonnes has been fixed.

Pulses

7.12 The production of pulses, reached 14.06 million tonnes in 1990-91, an increase of 9.4 per cent over the previous year. While gram, the major pulse crop, recorded a 23 per cent increase to reach 5.20 million tonnes, the other kharif and rabi pulses also showed marked increases of 8-10 per cent. The output of arhar, however, declined from a level of 2.75 million tonnes in 1989-90 to 2.43 million tonnes in 1990-91.

7.13 Pulses are grown mainly under unirrigated conditions; only about 9 per cent of the area under pulses has assured irrigation facilities. The major pulses (arhar and gram) are being produced in the states of Gujarat, Haryana, Madhya Pradesh, Maharashtra, Orissa, Rajasthan and Uttar Pradesh. Gram and arhar are grown in an area of about 7.4 million hectares and 3.6 million hectares, respectively. Gram accounted for 30.4 per cent of total area and 37 per cent of the pulse production during 1990-91; arhar accounted for 14.8 per cent of the area and 17.3 per cent of production in 1990-91.

7.14 The production of pulses in 1991-92 has been targetted at 15.5 million tonnes (6.1 million tonnes in kharif and 9.4 million tonnes in rabi season). This is to be achieved through the continuance of pulse development programmes such as National Pulses Development Project (NPDP) and the Special Foodgrains Production Programme (SFPP)—Pulses. The main objective of NPDP is to increase production by adopting location-specific technology. NPDP is supplemented by a special programme under SFPP-Pulses, covering schemes for: (a) plant protection umbrella for gram and arhar crops against pod borers, cut worms and termites in 11 states and (b) the expansion of area under summer moong/urad through the distribution of seeds at concessional rates. Recently, pulses have also been included in the mandate of the Technology Mission on Oilseeds. An integrated approach to crop production technology and price support/market intervention is being adopted to increase productivity.

Oilseeds

7.15 Oilseed production is shown in Table 7.3. The favourable monsoon assisted in increasing the production of nine oilseeds to a level of 18.5 million tonnes during 1990-91. This was achieved despite a 14 per cent decline in the production of kahrif groundnut because of adverse weather conditions in Gujarat. The improvement in oilseeds production became possible on account of higher production of the main rabi oilseeds in 1990-91.

7.16 Under the Oilseeds Production Programme (OPP), a centrally sponsored scheme, the pattern of assistance is 75:25 sharing basis between Government of India and State Governments, except for production of breeder seed and frontline demonstration by the Indian Council of Agricultural Research (I.C.A.R.) and the production of foundation seed by states with 100 per cent central assistance. The programme is in operation in 321 districts in 18 states in 1991-92.

7.17 Oil palm is regarded as one of the richest yielders of edible oil per unit area; its yield is 4-5 times that of the conventional oilseeds. The Expert Committee constituted by the Government of India in 1986 identified about 575, 000 hectares as suitable for oil palm cultivation in nine states, namely, Andhra Pradesh Karnataka, Kerala, Tamil Nadu, Assam, Maharashtra, Orissa, Tripura and West Bengal. Two more states have been identified recently by the ICAR, namely, Gujarat and Goa. The Technology Mission on Oilseeds has been declared as the nodal agency for the development of oil palm. A number of schemes were introduced in 1990-91 to initiate advance action for promoting oil palm cultivation during the Eighth Plan, viz., the setting up of oil palm nurseries, frontline demonstration on gardens and expansion of the capacity of the Seed Germinator Central Plantation Crop Research Institute (CPCRI), Palode, Kerala.

7.18 A target of 18.50 million tonnes has been fixed for oilseeds production during 1991-92. Already the kharif groundnut crop has been seriously affected due to monsoon failure in Gujarat. It may be difficult to achieve the targetted oilseeds production.

Cotton

7.19 Cotton is grown in 7.4 million hectares. Only 30 per cent of the crop is irrigated. Cotton production fell from 11.42 million bales in 1989-90 to 9.76 million bales in 1990-91. The area under the crop in Gujarat, Karnataka, Punjab and Tamil Nadu declined considerably. Only Andhra Pradesh recorded substantial increase in production. The pest heliothis attacked the crop at the flowering stage in Punjab, Haryana and Rajasthan. In other states, unfavourable weather conditions led to lower productivity. A target of 12 million bales has been fixed for 1991-92.

Jute and Mesta

7.20 Production of jute and mesta increased from 8.29 million bales in 1989-90 to 9.1 million bales in 1990-91. All the maojr producing states, viz; West Bengal, Assam, Andhra Pradesh, Bihar and Orissa, registered a substantial increase. A target of 9.1 million bales has been fixed for 1991-92.

Sugarcane

7.21 Favourable weather and Government measures, such as price incentives raised sugarcane production to 240.3 million tonnes in 1990-91 as against 225.6 million tonnes in 1989-90. Uttar Pradesh contributed 43 per cent. The increase in production was mainly due to an increase in area.

7.22 Sugar production in 1990-91 aggregated 11.9 million tonnes as against 11 million tonnes in 1989-90. In 1991-92, sugar production is expected to reach 12 million tonnes. The increase in the availability of sugar led the Government to allow export of 0.56 million tonnes of sugar. The Statutory Minimum Price (SMP) for 1991-92 was increased to Rs. 26 per quintal from Rs. 24 announced earlier. A further increase of the SMP to Rs. 27 has been announced for 1992-93.

Horticultural Crops

7.23 Horticulture covers a wide range of crops such as fruits, vegetables, coconut, cashewnut, spices and ornamental plants. Horticulture in dry and hilly areas plays a crucial role in establishing ecologically sound farming systems. The development of horticulture faces a number of constraints, such as, shortage of quality planting material, lack of complementary development inputs such as credit and extension services, losses due to perishability, lack of suitable post-harvest technology and weak infrastructure. Various schemes are under implementation for the development of horticulture.

7.24 The production of vegetables, went up from 34 million tonnes to 53.8 million tonnes during the Seventh Plan period. Coconut was declared an oilseed crop to encourage for its development. Assistance is being provided by the Coconut Development Board. Coconut production has increased substantially. The country produces about 1.8 million tonnes of spices of which 120,000 tonnes, worth Rs. 300 crore is exported annually. Pepper is the most important spice and accounts for about 80 per cent of export earnings from spices. Cashew is another important export crop. In 1989-90 around 45,000 tonnes of cashew kernel worth Rs. 360 crore was exported. In 1990-91 exports increased to 50,000 tonnes worth Rs. 441 crore. Domestic production of 274,000 tonnes was not sufficient to meet the requirements of cashew processing industries. About 40,000 tonnes of raw nuts are imported annually.

Tea

7.25 Production of tea increased from 544 million kg in 1979-80 to around 719 million kg in 1990-91. The increase in production was achieved mainly through an increase in yield, from 1490 kg to around 1700 kg per hectare. There has recently been a considerable increase in tea production in South India. The average yield is about 2000 kg per hectare in South India as against about 1600 kg in North India.

7.26 Tea production during 1990-91 reached 719 million kg compared to 703 million kg in 1989-90. As tea is one of the main agro-exports, the Government has made vigorous efforts to increase its production. The Tea Board is operating a number of schemes. The target for production in 1991-92 is 735 million kg.

7.27 The domestic market takes about two-thirds of the tea output. Domestic demand increased from 328 million kg in 1985-86 to 500 million kg in 1989-90. Although exports of tea declined from 210 million kg in 1989-90 to 199 million kg in 1990-91, export earnings increased from Rs. 905 crore in 1989-90 to Rs. 1045 crore in 1990-91. The average realisation rose from about Rs. 43 to about Rs. 52 per kg. A target of tea exports of 210 million kg valued at Rs. 1200 crore, has been fixed for 1991-92.

Coffee

7.28 Coffee production has been fluctuating depending upon weather conditions. Moreover, coffee is a biennial crop. Coffee production increased from 200,000 tonnes in 1984-85 to 215,000 tonnes in 1988-89. In 1990-91, the production was around 173,000 tonnes.

7.29 Most of the coffee produced in the country is exported; domestic consumption is stable around 55,000 tonnes. 111,000 tonnes of coffee worth Rs. 278 crore was exported in 1990-91 as against 130,000 tonnes, valued at Rs. 363 crore, in 1989-90. The decline in export earnings was mainly due to a fall in the international prices after quotas were suspended.

Rubber

7.30 Government has been making energetic efforts to increase the production of natural rubber. Production of natural rubber is estimated to be 365,000 tonnes in 1991-92 compared to 330,000 tonnes in 1990-91. The increase in production was due to an increase in area as well as an improvement in yield per hectare. It is estimated that around 461,000 hectares will be under rubber in 1991-92. As a result of promotional efforts, in addition to the traditional rubber-growing states of Kerala and Tamil Nadu, other non-traditional states have also succeeded in growing natural rubber.

7.31 With the growth of the automobile and the road transport industry, consumption of rubber has increased over the years. It is expected to increase from 364,000 tonnes in 1990-91 to around 380,000 tonnes in 1991-92. The gap between domestic demand and supply is normally met through canalised imports. In 1990-91, around 31,700 tonnes was imported as against 26,500 tonnes in 1989-90. With the Rubber Board taking continuous measures to improve rubber production, no canalised imports of natural rubber is expected in 1991-92.

Factors influencing Agricultural Production

7.32 Agricultural production depends on a number of factors ranging from weather conditions to input applications and institutional support. Since most of the cropped area does not have assured irrigation, monsoon play a crucial role.

Monsoon

7.33 The south-west monsoon during 1991 turned out to be somewhat on the lower side of the normal. In the south-west monsoon season from 1 June to 30 Septmeber, 1991 the country-wide rainfall was 92 per cent of the long period average. Eighty per cent of the meteorological sub-divisions (28 out of 35) got normal to excess rainfall. However, the weakening of the monsoon for quite some time from the middle of June, 1991, and its subsequent erratic behaviour, adversely affected agricultural operations, particularly in north and north-western parts of India. Both paddy and groundnut crops were affected. Rainfall and the performance of the monsoon since 1981 onwards are given in Table 7.4.

7.34 The regional distribution of rainfall as reflected in the All India Cumulative Rainfall Index for the entire season, constructed by using the average area sown under kharif rice in each meteorological zone as weights, (for the triennium 1980-81 to 1982-83), indicates that rainfall recorded this year was 98.7 per cent of normal. The south had very good rainfall. The details are given in Table 7.5.

Reservoir Situation

7.35 The weakening of the monsoon for some time and its further erratic behaviour has affected water levels in tanks and reservoirs. The total live storage in 56 important reservoirs monitored by the Central Water Commission in the last week of September 1991 was 2.7 per cent lower than the level of last year: it came down from 100.37 TMC to 97.62 TMC.

Irrigation

7.36 Punjab, Haryana, Western Uttar Pradesh, parts of Andhra Pradesh and Tamil Nadu, have assured irrigation facilities. At the end of 1989-90, 32.9 million hectares of land was under major and medium irrigation and 46.8 million hectares under minor irrigation. Another 3.02 million hectares is estimated to have been added in 1990-91 (0.69 million hectares through major and medium and 2.33 million hectares through minor irrigation). Thus the total potential likely to have been created by the end of 1990-91 adds up to 82.8 million hectares. Till the end of Seventh Plan, about Rs. 25,813 crore was spent by the Government for the creation of an irrigation potential of 32.9 million hectares under the major and medium projects. In spite of this massive investment, the utilisation of the created potential is considerably low. The cumulative gap in the utilisation of the potential till the end of 1990-91 is about 8.6 million hectares. The details are given in Table 7.6.

7.37 Since 1974-75, Command Area Development (CAD), a centrally sponsored scheme, is in operation with the basic objective of optimising the utilisation of the created irrigation potential by bridging the gap between the potential created and utilisation and increase in agricultural production from irrigation command areas. The programme broadly covers on-farm development works such as construction of field channels, land levelling and shaping and implementation of warabandi for rotational supply of water to ensure equitable and assured supply of irrigation water to holdings. Attention will be focussed on employment and other economic activities, farmers' participation in operating the system and better water management practices in the further expansion of the programme. The programme includes arrangements for the supply of inputs and credit, agricultural extension, the construction of markets and godowns and the development of ground water for conjunctive use. The programme at present covers 157 major/medium irrigation projects, spread over 20 states and 2 union territories, covering a Culturable Command Area (CCA) of 20.7 million hectares. Cumulatively till March, 1990, an area of 11.3 million hectares was expected to have been covered by field channels, 2.0 million hectares by land levelling and 5.2 million hectares by warabandi. During the year 1990-91, the achievements under field channels, warabandi and land levelling were 0.55 million hectares, 0.58 million hectares and 0.033 million hectares against the target of 0.72 million hectares, 0.96 million hectares and 0.08 million hectares, respectively. The targets for 1991-92 fixed for field channels, warabandi and land levelling are 0.95 million hectares, 0.89 million hectares and 0.10 million hectares, respectively. Minor irrigation schemes include ground water and surface water schemes. While ground water schemes include wells, shallow tube wells and pumpsets, the surface water schemes include tanks and reservoirs, diversion schemes, lift irrigation from rivers and streams, etc. These schemes have been accorded special attention under the Special Foodgrains Production Programme. The forthcoming annual plans will concentrate more directly on creation of minor irrigation scheme to cover surface and ground water. Due to advantageous water table levels, the Eastern sector will receive special attention for minor irrgation.

7.38 The progress of the irrgation develoment has not been uniform among the states. National Water Resources Council, was set up in 1983 to meet the need for evolving a national policy for the development and use of water resources for deriving optimum benefits. The Council adopted the National Water Policy in September, 1987. According to this Policy, the adoption of an integrated multi-disciplinary approach to planning and formulation of projects has been recommended. Next to drinking water, highest priority has been accorded to irrigation.

Seeds

7.39 Next to assured irrigation, use of High Yielding Varieties (HYV) of seeds has improved crop productivity substantially. The HYV Programme had covered 63.9 million hectares by 1990-91. Crop-wise coverage of area under HYV is given in Table 7.7.

7.40 The distribution of certified/quality seeds increased from 5.70 million quintals in 1989-90 to 5.71 million quintals in 1990-91. The distribution of certified seeds increased from 3.9 million quintals in 1989-90 to 4.1 million quintals during 1990-91. A target of 4.9 million quintals of certified seeds to be distributed has been fixed for 1991-92.

7.41 There is no statutory control on the prices of seeds. The prices of seeds are fixed by the public sector seed corporations and private companies on the basis of their commercial judgement. The seeds are distributed through National Seeds Corporation, State Farms Corporation of India, State Seeds Corporations, State Departments of Agriculture and other private and co-operative agencies.

Fertilisers

7.42 For improving the yields of different crops, proper application of fertilisers is crucial. Consumption of fertilisers reached 12.6 million tonnes in 1990-91 and is expected to be of the order of 13.6 million tonnes in 1991-92. Trends in fertiliser consumption during the 1980s are given in Table 7.8.

7.43 Production of fertilisers has shown a gradual increase over the years. During 1990-91 the production of nitrogenous and phosphatic fertilisers was about 9 million tonnes. The gap in the domestic demand is met through imports. As fertiliser is one of the crucial inputs in improving crop yields and its price affects the cost of cultivation, Fertiliser Retention Price and Subsidy Scheme was introduced with effect from 1 November, 1977 under which fertilisers are supplied at a uniform and subsidised prices to the farmers throughout the country. The details of fertiliser production, its imports and subsidies are given in table 7.9.

7.44 As a part of fiscal correction, the Union Budget for 1991-92 presented on 24 July, 1991 increased the issue prices of fertilisers by 40 per cent on an average; low analysis fertilisers, such as, calcium ammonium nitrate, ammonium chloride, ammonium sulphate and sulphate of potash were decontrolled. In addition, in respect of single super phosphate, a ceiling on the subsidy per tonne payable to producers was also announced with a view to moving towards total deregulation. Subsequently, with effect from 14 August, 1991, the average price increase on fertilisers was reduced by 10 per cent and made 30 per cent, and small and marginal farmers were exempted from the price increase. In order to reduce the administrative difficulties in the implementation of dual pricing of fertilisers, Government framed guidelines and provided funds to state and union territory governments.

7.45 The increase in fertiliser prices became necessary for two reasons :—

(i) In its absence, fertiliser subsidies would have reached an unmanageable level and the Government would not have been able to meet Plan needs.

(ii) Fertiliser prices had remained almost unchanged from July 1981 till July 1991 although the prices received by the farmers for their agricultural produce had almost doubled.

In order to compensate the farmers for the fertiliser price rise, procurement/minimum support prices of crops of kharif, 1991 season have been suitably increased. Even after the 30 per cent price increase, the subsidy on fertiliser remains substantial and needs to be reduced further.

Pesticides

7.46 Consumption of pesticides in 1990-91 is estimated to be 82,000 tonnes. The target fixed for 1991-92 is 83,000 tonnes. In order to maximise crop production and protect it from pest attack, major emphasis is being placed on Integrated Pest Management so as to minimise over-dependance on chemical pesticides and to avoid harmful effects to human beings. During 1991-92, 25 Central Integrated Pest Management Centres were set-up in 22 states and one union territory. Major activities of these Centres include crop pest monitoring, promoting biologica control, organising demonstrations and training in Integrated Pest Management, for extension workers and farmers.

Agricultural Credit

7.47 The policy on agricultural credit continues to be one of providing adequate and timely credit to farmers through institutional agencies such as co-operatives, commercial banks and regional rural banks to support agriculture and allied activities. The major objective of the policy is to enable farmers, especially small and marginal farmers, to adopt modern technology and improved agricultural practices. The total quantum of agricultural loans had reached Rs. 12,329 crore in 1989-90. The target for 1991-92 has been fixed at Rs. 15,455 crore. Agency-wise disbursements of agricultural credit are given in Table 7.10.

@ Targets fixed by the Working Group on Agricultural Credit and Co-operation (including crop insurance).

7.48 Despite a substantial increase in the overall agricultural credit, the problem of mounting overdues has slowed down credit expansion. Overdues have been around 40—42 per cent during the last 3-4 years. They have eroded the lending capacity of the co-operative institutions for want of recycling of funds and ineligibility of the institutional agencies to borrow additional funds from the higher financing agencies. The state and union territory governments and concerned institutional agencies have been requested from time to time to improve the recovery position of co-operative dues. For strengthening of Primary Agricultural Credit Societies (PACS), programme of Business Development Planning (BDP) has been initiated with the objective of making them viable institutions by increasing member participation, augmenting disbursal of loans and to make PACS multi-purpose.

Comprehensive Crop Insurance Scheme (CCIS)

7.49 It is universally observed phenomenon that farming operations are susceptible to the vagaries of nature. In order to protect the farmers from various risks including natural calamities, a Comprehensive Crop Insurance Scheme (CCIS) was introduced in the country with effect from 1 April, 1985 for major foodgrain crops, namely, wheat, paddy, millets, oil-seeds and pulses. It is a voluntary area-based and credit linked scheme. All farmers availing of crop loans from co-operative credit institutions, regional rural banks and commercial banks for growing the above crops are eligible for coverage under the CCIS. The sum insured is equal to the crop loan disbursed, subject to a maximum of Rs. 10,000 per farmer. The premium payable is two per cent of the sum insured for wheat, paddy and millets and one per cent for oilseeds and pulses. Indemnity claims under the CCIS are shared between central government and the respective state government in the ratio of 2 : 1 and 50 per cent of the premium payable by small and marginal farmers is subsidised equally between central and state governments. The objective of the scheme are :

(i) to provide a measure of financial support to farmers in the event of crop failure as a result of natural calamity;

(ii) to restore credit eligibility of farmers after a crop failure, for the next crop season; and

(iii) to support and stimulate production of cereals, pulses and oilseeds.

7.50 Since its inception, the CCIS has been quite popular and beneficial to the farmers. From Kharif 1985 to the end of Kharif 1991 cumulatively 29.4 million farmers have been covered over an area of 51.9 million hectares, insuring a sum of Rs. 6591.41 crore. The season-wise progress of the Scheme can be seen from Table 7.11.

ALLIED SECTORS

Animal Husbandry

7.51 A large number of small and marginal farmers, agricultural labourers and other rural poor depend upon livestock for obtaining gainful employment. Thus animal husbandry plays an important role in the country's rural economy. This sector provides valuable animal proteins for human diet and also other products of mass consumption like wool, hides and skins for the growing needs of various industries. The gross value of output from this sector increased to Rs. 358 billion in 1989-90 which constituted about 25 per cent of the total agricultural output of Rs. 1426 billion.

7.52 The large livestock population enables the country to meet the growing demand for animal protein and raw materials for industry. The main aim of animal husbandry development is to assist the farmers in producing livestock and to facilitate the improvement of their economic condition. Towards this end, short-term and long-term strategies are formulated at the national level. Under the short term strategy, efforts are made to step up the supply-package of services, like technology, improved breeding practices, feed and fodder, health cover and improved management and marketing. The long-term strategy aims at building up institutions and expertise for efficient supply of these services and raising animal productivity. As a result of various policy measures production of milk and eggs has increased significantly. During 1990-91, milk production is estimated to have increased by 4.4 per cent over the previous year to 53.7 million tonnes. Egg production also increased by 4.2 per cent over the previous year to 21 billion eggs.

Dairy Development

7.53 Dairying provides supplementary employment and an additional source of income to a large number of farmers, most of whom are small and marginal farmers. Operation Flood, the world's largest integrated dairy development programme, is aimed at establishing linkage between rural milk producers and urban consumers by organising farmer-owned and managed dairy co-operative societies. The programme which was launched in 1970, is at present in its Third Phase with financial assistance from World Bank and commodity assistance from the EEC in the form of skimmed milk powder and butter oil. Over 64,000 dairy co-operative societie have been organised under the programme in 170 milk-sheds covering about 7.66 million farmer members. These co-operatives have established a processing capacity of 15.5 million litres of milk a day and powder production capacity of 727 tonnes a day. During October, 1991, the co-operatives procured 9.35 million kg of milk per day and marketed 8.0 million litres a day in metropolitan areas, 140 large cities and many other small towns of the country.

7.54 In conformity with the New Industrial Policy announced on 24 July, 1991, the compulsory licensing requirement for most industries, including the dairy industry, has been removed. Some apprehensions were initially expressed in the co-operative dairy sector that this might adversely affect liquid milk availability in the country. They were based on the presumption that with the entry of private industry into the dairy business, liquid milk would be diverted for the production of high value-added milk products. Even though there may be some initial adjustment problems, as the co-operative dairy industry is well organised, it is by and large capable of facing the competition. As the overall objective of the New Industrial Policy is to increase efficiency and competitiveness, the organised dairy industry will emerge stronger. However, during the period of adjustment, care may have to be taken to safeguard the co-operative dairy sector.

Fisheries

7.55 Fish production in the country has increased more than fivefold during the last 40 years. It reached a level of 3.8 million tonnes during 1990-91 from 0.8 million tonnes of production in 1950-51. Fisheries has been recognised as an important source of protein, foreign exchange earner and employment generator. Special efforts have been made to promote extensive and intensive fish farming activity in the inland sector, modernising of coastal fisheries, encouraging of deep sea fishing through joint-ventures, etc. The implementation of the two development programmes for inland fisheries, viz., Development of Aquaculture and National Programme of Fish Seed Development, have led to encouraging results in the form of inland fish production reaching 1.5 million tonnes during 1990-91 as against 0.9 million tonnes in 1984-85. The share of inland fish production in total fish production increasd from 36 per cent in 1980-81 to 40 per cent in 1990-91. Banning of bull trawling by chartered foreign fishing vessels and speedy motorisation of traditional fishing craft led to a quantum jump in marine fish production in recent years. It increased to 2.3 million tonnes in 1990-91 from 1.7 million tonnes in 1984-85. During 1991-92, fish production is expected to be about 4 million tonnes. The marine production export earnings in 1990-91 were of the order of Rs. 890.40 crore and anticipated to cross Rs. 1000 crore during 1991-92.

Agricultural Marketing

7.56 The agricultural marketing system, by and large, operates under the normal forces of supply and demand. The trade is mainly in the hands of private enterprises. The Government intervention is limited mainly to protecting the interests of producers and consumers and also to promoting the organised marketing of agricultural commodities in the country. All the states and union territories except Jammu & Kashmir, Kerala, Mizoram, Sikkim, Andaman & Nicobar Island, Dadra & Nagar Haveli and Lakshadweep, have enacted necessary legislation for the regulation of agricultural produce markets. The number of regulated markets in the country as on 31 March 1991 was 6,640. The Central Government is providing assistance for the creation of infrastructural facilities in the markets and also for setting up of rural godowns. A sum of Rs. 84.52 crore for development of 3,763 markets and Rs. 37.68 crore for the establishment of 4,628 rural godowns have been granted by the Central Government by the end of March, 1991. To facilitate grading, standards have been laid down for 142 agricultural and allied commodities under the Agricultural Produce (Grading and Marking) Act, 1937.

7.57 A number of organisations have been established with specific aims and objects to help the Government in implementation of the policies and developmental programmes relating to agricultural marketing, viz., the Commission for Agricultural Costs and Prices, the Food Corporation of India, the Cotton Corporation of India, the Jute Corporation of India, etc. Agricultural marketing is also being attended to by a network of co-operatives at the primary, state and national levels. Marketing co-operatives are operating in almost all Mandies. Co-operative societies are functioning in the area of processing of fruits and vegetables, sugarcane crushing, ginning & pressing of cotton etc. At the national level, the National Co-operative Development Corporation plans and promotes programmes for the production, processing, marketing, storage, export and import of agricultural produce through co-operatives. The National Agricultural Cooperative Marketing Federation of India Ltd. is the apex co-operative organisation dealing in procurement, distribution, export and import of selected agricultural commodities. A few other organisations in the co-operative sector are: the National Co-operative Tobacco Growers' Federation Ltd., the National Consumers' Co-operative Federation, etc. One of the important functions of the Tribal Co-operative Development Federation of India (TRIFED) is to attend to the marketing problems of the tribals.

7.58 However, the share of co-operatives in the total marketing of agricultural commodities is small.

The specialised Boards have been created for commodities like rubber, coffee, tea, tobacco, spices, coconut, oilseeds and vegetable oil and horticulture. The National Dairy Development Board is also engaged in the marketing of agricultural commodities. Separate Directorates have been created to manage development of special commodities like sugarcane, jute, tobacco, oilseeds, rice, millets, cotton, pulses, cashewnut, cocoa, arecanut and spices. Besides, a number of Development Councils have been set up for special commodities like rice, pulses, jute, millets, cotton, tobacco, oilseeds, sugarcane, arecanut and cocoa. In the field of exports, besides the State Trading Corporation, some of the related bodies are the Cashewnut Export Promotion Council, the Shellac Export Promotion Council, the Agricultural and Processed Food Export Development Authority.

7.59 The role of co-operatives in the marketing of agricultural produce has been progressively expanding. To help the farmers in getting remunerative prices, co-operatives have assumed a major role in price support operations in coarse grains, oilseeds, copra and pulses and in market intervention for potato, onion, ginger and apples. The marketing operations of co-operative marketing societies are mainly in foodgrains; the share of other agricultural produce is very small. The NAFED has been appointed as a Central Nodal Agency for undertaking marketing operations of a number of agricultural commodities covered under the price support operations. During 1990-91, co-operatives marketed agricultural produce of the value of Rs. 5,600 crore approximately as against the achievement of Rs. 6,300 crore during the previous year. The major shortfall was reportedly in Gujarat. Besides, the performance in Bihar, Kerala and Uttar Pradesh was also reported as not up to the desired level during 1990-91. Nearly 90 per cent of the agricultural produce was marketed by co-operatives in Gujarat, Haryana, Karnataka, Madhya Pradesh, Maharashtra, Punjab, Tamil Nadu and Uttar Pradesh.

Policy Thrust during the Eighth Plan

7.6: The Eighth Plan, which will begin from 1 April, 1992, has given priority to the growth and diversification of agriculture to the achievements of self-sufficiency in food and the generation of surpluse for export. Even though crop production and productivity have improved considerably over the years, there are striking regional and crop imbalances. In order to spread the benefits of the green revolution, which has remained confined to the north and north-west, to other parts of the country, suitable schemes would be taken up during the Eighth Plan period. Special emphasis in agricultural development is being envisaged for the eastern region, which has adequate rainfall, fertile soil and a vast scope for stepping up agricultural production. In view of the fact that large parts receive inadequate rains and do not have assured irrigation facilities, dryland farming would continue to be an important element of the agricultural strategy. In order to increase oilseeds production and thereby save valuable foreign exchange on their imports, concerted efforts would be made.

Outlook

7.61 The target for production of foodgrains during 1991-92 has been fixed at 182.50 million tonnes, consisting of 103.15 million tonnes during kharif season and remaining 79.35 million tonnes in the rabi season. Even though the monsoon during 1991 turned out to be a normal one, its weakening for quite some time from middle of June, 1991 and subsequent erratic behaviour until the end of August 1991, adversely affected agricultural operations, particularly in the north and north-western parts of India. Both paddy and groundnut crops were also hit by it. Though the rabi production may turn out to be near normal, the overall foodrains production during 1991-92 may be lower than both the target as well as the last year's level. This would, in turn, require special attention in managing the food economy of the country.

INFRASTRUCTURE

The performance of infrastructure sectors during April-December, 1991 shows mixed trends. While energy, railways, and shipping exceeded their respective targets, the performance in the coal and telecommunications sectors fell short of the respective targets and the petroleum sector performed poorly, the production being lower than the level achieved last year. However, in the background of a general slowdown in industrial production, infrastructure sectors have registered an encouraging trend. The trend of falling growth rates of the previous two years shows signs of being reversed in the current year.

During April-December, 1991, coal production and despatches increased by 10.9 per cent and 10.5 per cent, respectively. However, pithead stocks rose by 21 per cent reemphasising the need for faster loading and movement arrangements. Power generation increased by 9 per cent. Thermal and nuclear power generation increased by 10.8 per cent and hydel generation by 4.2 per cent. The average plant load factor improved from 52.0 per cent to 53.4 per cent. The production of crude oil declined from 24.71 m.t. to 22.97 m.t. Total refinery crude throughput declined by 0.45 m.t. and capacity utilisation of refineries by 1.8 per cent. However, the consumption of petroleum products increased by 1.8 per cent over the same period last year.

The freight traffic carried by the railways during April-December, 1991 increased by 7.6 per cent over the corresponding period last year. The major ports handled 114.1 m.t. of cargo which was 3.3 per cent higher than the cargo handled last year. During 1991-92, the available seat kilometres and passenger kilometres deployed by Air-India are expected to show a modest increase of 4.2 per cent and 1.5 per cent, respectively. Indian Airlines is also expected to register a modest increase in its traffic during the year. The share of road traffic in total passenger and freight traffic is expected to be maintained at 80 per cent and 50 per cent, respectively.

The net telephone switching capacity added and net telephone connections provided were below targets but substantially higher than the achievement in the corresponding period last year.

Besides increasing the domestic production of crude oil, the other important areas in the infrastructure sectors requiring urgent and effective steps would include improved planning and management practices to avoid time and cost overruns, better inter-sectoral coordination, particularly in the working of the railways, coal and power sectors and for effecting an improvement in physical efficiency, productivity, capacity utilisation and quality of output. The potential for overall growth in the industrial sector is crucially dependent on continuing adequacy of investment and performance in the infrastructure industries.

Introduction

The performance of infrastructure sectors during April—December, 1991 shows mixed trends. However, in the background of a general slow down in industrial production, infrastructure sectors have registered an encouraging trend. The following table shows trends in the performance of infrastructure sectors.

ENERGY

Coal

8.2 Coal production during 1990-91 recorded an increase of 5.4 per cent over the production in 1989-90. The production level achieved was, however, below the target both in Coal India Ltd. (CIL) and Singareni Collieries Company Ltd. (SCCL), which together account for most of the coal production in the country. While in CIL, coal production was marginally below the target by 2.2 per cent, SCCL's production fell short of the target by 21.2 per cent. Performance in SCCL was adversely affected by unfavourable industrial relations and law and order problems.

8.3 CIL improved its productivity in terms of output per man-shift (OMS) during 1990-91. It achieved an overall OMS of 1.31 tonnes against 1.21 tonnes in 1989-90. The OMS in SCCL during the year was 0.96 tonnes compared to 0.99 tonnes in 1989-90.

8.4 Coal production during the period April—December, 1991 has been 153.76 million tonnes

(.m.t.) compared to 138.59 m.t. in the corresponding period last year, recording an increase of 10.9 per cent. Total coal despatches during the period stood at 157.71 m.t. which were 10.5 per cent higher compared to the same period last year. Despite higher despatches, total pit-head stocks stood at 34.69 m.t. as on 31-12-1991 registering an increase of 21.0 per cent over the pit-heard stocks as on 31-12-1990. This re-emphasises the need to have adequate arrangements for faster loading and movement.

Lignite

8.5 Production of lignite in Neyveli Lignite Corporation (NLC) at 11.76 m.t. in 1990-91 was 6.9 per cent higher than the target. Trends in production of lignite continued to be good during April—December, 1991. Production from NLC during this period was 9.01 m.t. against the target of 8.87 m.t. NLC has also recorded significant achievements in the field of power generation and is functioning as the nodal agency for exploration of lignite deposits in Rajasthan, Gujarat and J&K.

Projects

8.6 During April—December, 1991, 27 projects costing Rs. 100 crores and above were under implementation. Of these, 21 projects were in the coal sector and 6 in the lignite sector. Second Mine Expansion stage II project in the lignite sector has been completed in the month of December, 1991. The implementation of 9 projects has been delayed in the coal and lignite sector due to problems relating to land acquisition, rehabilitation of land oustees as well as supply of equipment by local manufacturers (Table 8.3).

Electricity

8.7 Total electricity generation (total utilities in terms of hydel, thermal and nuclear) at 264.6 billion kwh recorded a growth of 7.8 per cent during 1990-91 but fell short of the target by 2.6 per cent.

8.8 Thermal power generation during 1990-91 increased by 4.5 per cent, hydel generation by 15.5 per cent and nuclear power generation by 32.6 per cent. Thermal generation fell short of the target by 7.4 per cent mainly due to loss of generation because of short supply of coal. The other reasons which contributed to the shortfall were low system demand due to excess hydro generation resulting in reduction of irrigation load and for keeping some units under shut-down due to shortage of funds. Low PLF in some of the States also contributed to shortfall in thermal generation. Hydro generation was 13.5 per cent more than the target and nuclear power generation 8.8 per cent below the target due to problems in nuclear power reactors.

8.9 Total generation of power in April–December, 1991 was 211.4 billion kwh compared to 194 billion kwh during the same period last year showing a growth of 9 per cent. Hydel power generation at 56.8 billion kwh increased by 4.2 per cent. The thermal (including nuclear) sector at 154.6 billion kwh has registered a growth of 10.8 per cent compared to the same period, last year.

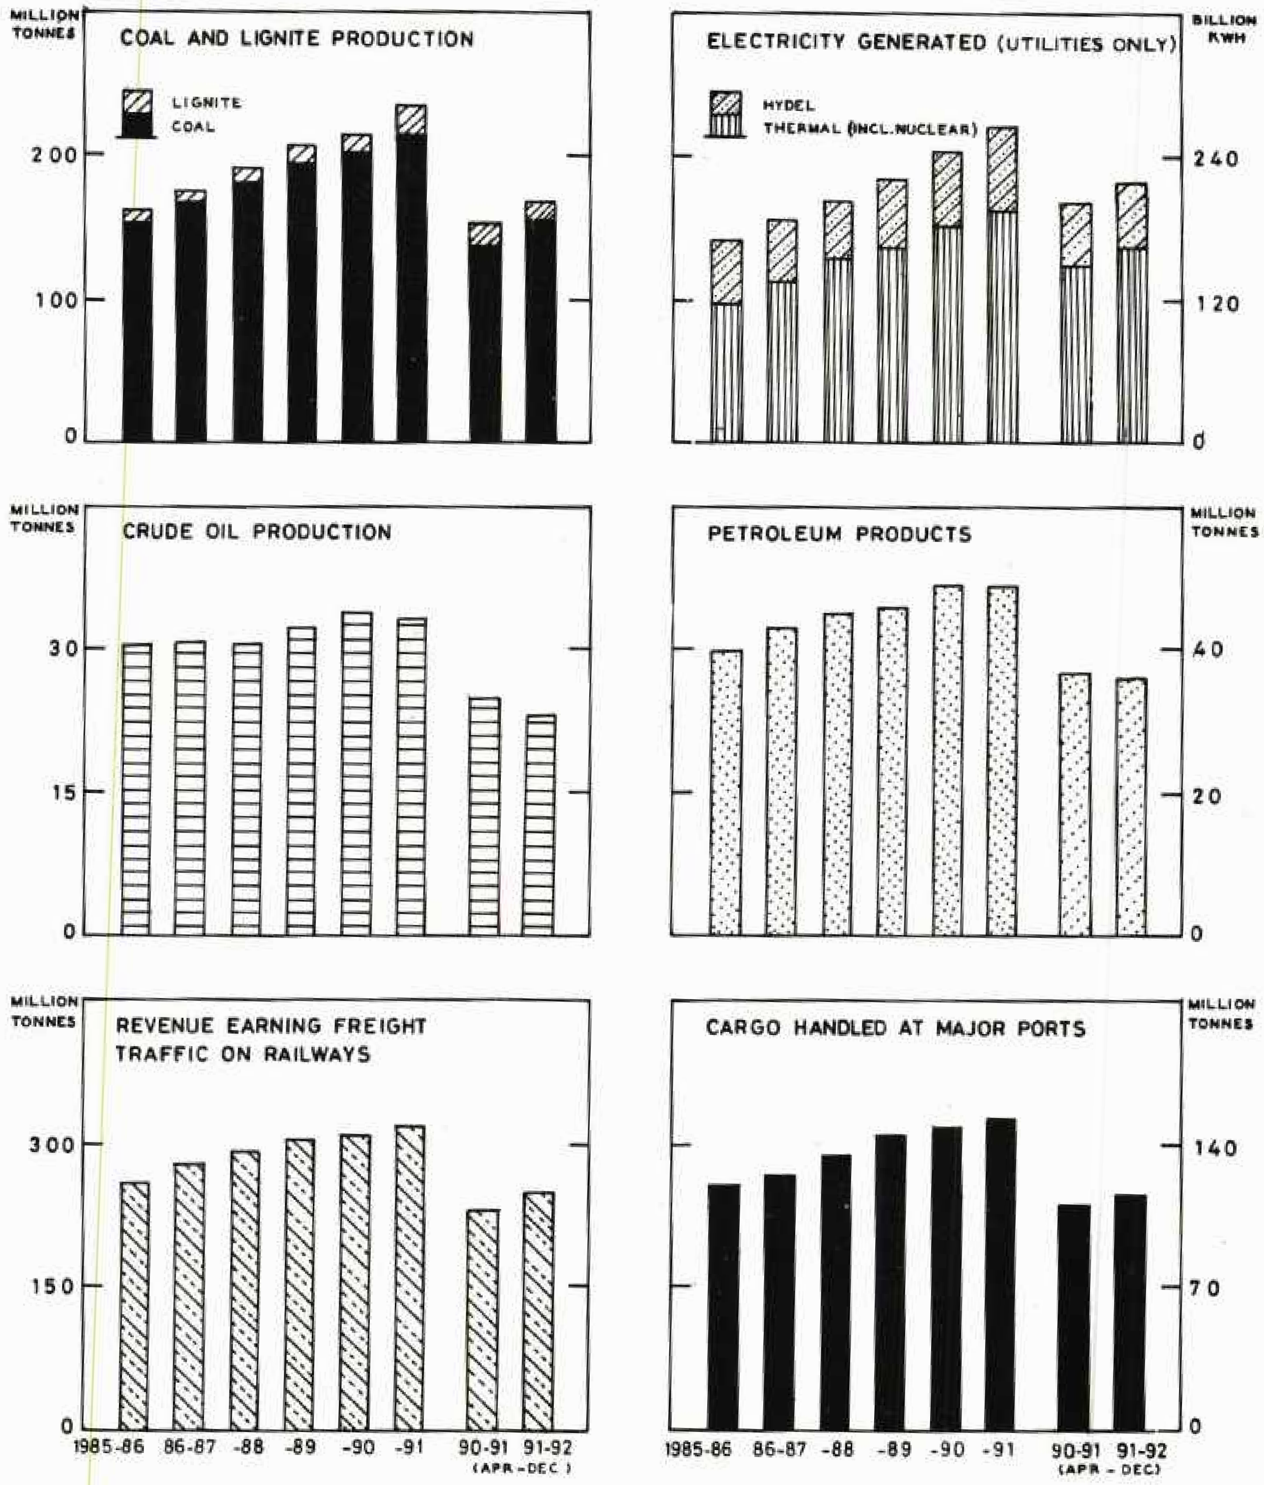
PERFORMANCE OF INFRASTRUCTURE SECTORS



8.11 At present, thermal power contributes about 70.6 per cent of the total power generated. There has been continuous improvement in the performance of thermal power stations over the years. At the beginning of the Sixth Plan, the Plant Load Factor (PLF) of thermal power plants was 44.6 per cent. It increased to 50.1 per cent by 1984-85 and 56.5 per cent in 1987-88. The PLF of the thermal plants in 1990-91 was 53.8 per cent against the target of 56.1 per cent.

8.12 The Central sector PLF in 1990-91 was 58.1 per cent against 62.2 per cent in 1989-90. The PLF of the State sector was 51.3 per cent compared to 53 per cent during the previous year. The Private sector PLF during 1990-91 was 58.4 per cent compared with 69.5 per cent in 1989-90.

8.13 The Average PLF of the thermal plants during April—December, 1991, had improved to 53.4 per cent against 52 per cent in the same period last year. The PLF of Central sector units was 61.6 per cent against the target of 59.5 per cent. The PLF of NTPC improved to 66.2 per cent from the level of 58.8 per cent achieved in the corresponding period last year. Average PLF in the State sector plants at 48.9 per cent was lower than last year's level of 49.3 per cent. The States viz., West Bengal Power Development Corporation, Rajasthan, Maharashtra, Andhra Pradesh, Karanataka, Gujarat, Punjab, Delhi Electric Supply Undertaking and Tamil Nadu continued to maintain PLF at more than 50 per cent during April-December, 1991. Private utilities could maintain the PLF at 58.2 per cent against 61.2 per cent during the same period last year.

8.15 The target for additional capacity in 1990-91 was revised to 4212 MW. Against this, the actual capacity rolled/commissioned was 2776.5 MW, resulting in a shortfall in capacity addition of 1435.5 MW. During 1991-92, target for additional power generation capacity has been fixed at 3810.8 MW comprising 2586.5 MW for thermal, 754.3 MW for hydel and 470 MW for nuclear. During April-December, 1991 a capacity of 1090 MW comprising 763.5 MW for thermal, 91.5 MW for hydel and 235 MW for nuclear had been commissioned/rolled against the target of 2180 MW comprising 1326.5 MW for thermal, 383.5 MW for hydel and 470 MW for nuclear. The main reason for the shortfall in achieving target was failure to commission the additional generation capacity in the Hydro sector (Table 8.5).

8.16 Production of crude oil during 1990-91 at 33.02 million tonnes fell short of the target of 35.90 million tonnes and was 3.1 per cent lower than the production of 34.09 million tonnes in 1989-90. The Oil and Natural Gas Commission (ONGC) produced 30.37 million tonnes of crude oil out of which 9.18 million tonnes was from the on-shore areas and 21.19 million tonnes from off-shore areas. The on-shore production by Oil India Limited (OIL) at 2.65 million tonnes in 1990-91 was 0.25 million tonnes short of the target.

8.17 The production of crude oil during April-December, 1991 was 22.97 million tonnes against 24.71 million tonnes achieved during the corresponding period last year. The shortfall in crude oil production during the current year is mainly due to the disturbed law and order condition in Assam and on account of technical reasons.

8.18 The production of natural gas in 1990-91 was 18 billion cubic metres. This was higher by 6.0 per cent compared to the production of 17 billion cubic metres during the previous year. The utilisation of natural gas during 1990-91 was 12.8 billion cubic metres compared to 11.2 billion cubic metres in 1989-90.

8.19 The production of natural gas during April-November, 1991 was 12.2 billion cubic metres which was 5.2 per cent higher than the production of 11.6 billion cubic metres in the same period last year. The utilisation of natural gas upto November, 1991 was 9.4 billion cubic metres compared to 8.2, billion cubic metres during the corresponding period last year.

8.20 Flaring of Natural Gas continues to cause considerable concern. However, this has been brought down from about 17 million cubic metres per day a year ago to about 11 million cubic metres per day currently. Further, with the implementation of the Gas Flaring Reduction Project, the flaring of natural gas is expected to be eliminated in the Western Off-shore by 1995. Projects to install compressors and pipelines in the Gujarat region are also under implementation to eliminate flaring in the Western Off-shore region.

Refinery Production

8.21 The total refinery crude throughput during 1990-91 at 51.77 million tonnes was marginally lower than 51.94 million tonnes achieved in 1989-90. The average capacity utilisation of all the 12 refineries was 99.8 per cent as compared to 100.2 per cent during the previous year.

8.22 The refinery crude throughput during April-December, 1991 at 37.54 million tonnes was marginally lower than the target of 37.99 million tonnes. The target of refinery crude throughput for 1991-92 is 51.65 million tonnes. The achievement upto end-December, 1991 works out to 72.7 per cent of the target. The capacity utilisation of the refineries during April-December, 1991 was 96.4 per cent compared to 98.2 per cent achieved in the same period last year.

8.23 The Government also attaches high priority for expanding the refining capacity in the country. The total refining capacity of the 12 refineries in the country at present stands at 51.85 MTPA. The creation of new refining capacity is sought to be achieved by expansion or de-bottlenecking of the existing refineries and by setting up new grassroot refineries which will lead to creation of additional refining capacity of about 8.2 million tonnes. It is estimated that the total refining capacity in the country will go upto about 90 million tonnes per annum with the setting up of a number of new refineries during 8th and the 9th Plans period.

Imports

8.24 The Gross import of crude oil and petroleum products during 1990-91 at 29.36 million tonnes was 12.7 per cent higher than 26.05 million tonnes imported in 1989-90. The value of POL imports during 1990-91 is Rs. 10,779 crore against Rs. 6,344 crore during the previous year. The import of POL during April-December, 1991 was 23.35 million tonnes valued at Rs. 9,260 crore against the import of 20.47 million tonnes costing Rs. 7,089 crore during the same period last year. The import of crude oil and petroleum products during the current year is likely to be 32.8 million tonnes.

Consumption

8.25 During 1990-91, consumption of petroleum products at 55.04 million tonnes showed moderate growth of 1.7 per cent over the previous year. The various demand management measures adopted by the Government in the wake of the Gulf War have helped to curtail the demand for POL during 1990-91. During April-December, 1991 consumption of petroleum products increased by 1.8 per cent over the same period last year. The demand for LPG and Bitumen have showed significant increase, while the demand for HSD and Petrol, has increased by 5.1 per cent and 1.7 per cent, respectively. There has been substantial reduction in the demand for ATF and LDO. It may, however, be added that the demand for petroleum products generally declines in the first half and picks up in the second half of the financial year.

Conservation of Energy

8.26 Conservation of energy in different sectors has shown rapid increase in recent years. Commercial sources of energy which account for over 60 per cent of our total energy supply is likely to go up to 80 per cent in the next decade and a half. Of the commercial sources of energy, coal and lignite contribute about 56 per cent, oil and natural gas around 40 per cent, hydro-electric power about 3 per cent and nuclear power 1 per cent. With the widening of the gap between demand and supply, energy management through conservation of fuel in primary and secondary form and measures for demand management have assumed increasing importance. There is considerable scope for improving efficiency in use of different sources of energy. Bulk of electricity is consumed by energy-intensive industries in industrial sector like aluminium, iron and steel, textiles, chemicals, paper and collieries. Energy consumption per unit of product does not compare favourably with other countries. Similarly, transmission and distribution losses at around 23 per cent are much higher than about 6—12 per cent in other countries. There is evident need to reduce these losses and improve the energy efficiency of industrial sector.

8.27 In view of the imperative need to conserve petroleum products in the context of the rapidly increasing oil import bill, the Government has accorded high priority to the conservation of petroleum products. A variety of measures have been taken to promote conservation of petroleum products, covering transport, industry, agriculture and household sectors. These, inter-alia, include the adoption of measures and practices conducive to increased fuel-efficiency and training programmes in the transport sector; replacement of old and inefficient boilers and furnaces with efficient ones and promotion of fuel-efficient measures and equipment in the industrial sector; standardisation of fuel-efficient irrigation pump sets and rectification of existing pump sets to make them more energy efficient in the agricultural sector; and development as well as promotion of the use of fuel-efficient equipment and devices like kerosene and LPG stoves in the domestic sector. These activities are being promoted and co-ordinated through the Petroleum Conservation Research Association (PCRA), a registered society under the Ministry of Petroleum and Natural Gas.

8.28 Endeavours for conservation of petroleum products have been augmented further. New and inadequately covered areas of oil conservation and inter-fuel substitution have been identified and appropriate action in regard to these areas initiated. These efforts are expected to yield positive results. During 1991-92, the monetary equivalent of petroleum products conserved is estimated to be about Rs. 238 crore.

8.29 Another area where conservation is being attempted is the oil refineries themselves which also consume fuel in their operations. The refineries have been able to achieve savings in consumption by adopting measures to conserve fuel and reduce its losses and the saving during 1991-92 on this account is estimated to be about Rs. 130 crore.

8.30 An important dimension of the oil conservation efforts is the multi-media publicity campaigns launched to make the general public aware of the importance and urgency of the conservation of petroleum products. An Oil Conservation Week was observed from 7th to 13th January, 1991 throughout the country to disseminate this message. This gave new thrust to the ongoing efforts for oil conservation.

8.31 An Action Plan to produce and sell high grade lubricants to the extent of 2.50 lakh tonnes to replace lubricants of lower efficiency, in a phased manner, has been drawn up and the oil companies have started implementation of the Plan. This programme has an excellent potential for conservation of liquid fuels.

8.32 A programme has also been launched to replace the use of kerosene in the textile industry, substituting it with synthetic thickners. It is proposed to achieve 40 to 50 per cent conservation of kerosene in this sector.

8.33 An Action Plan for the introduction of Compressed Natural Gas (CNG) as automotive fuel in the transport vehicles at selected locations in Assam, Tripura, Delhi, Bombay and Gujarat in a phased manner has been considered by the Government. The first phase of conversion of 220 petrol powered vehicles on experimental basis has been approved. Efforts have also been initiated to promote conservation of petroleum products in the sectors not covered adequately earlier, such as shipping, defence, civil aviation, unorganised road transport and inland water transport.

Renewable Sources of Energy

8.34 The major programmes launched in the country for the development and utilisation of new and renewable sources of energy areas include programmes relating to bio-energy, solar energy, wind power and micro-hydel. Over 14.03 lakh biogas plants had already been set up in the country till end-March, 1991 under the National Project on Biogas Development with an estimated biogas generation capacity equivalent to about 50 lakh tonnes of fuel wood per year valued at Rs. 200 crore and 5 lakh tonnes of NPK in the form of manure. The target for 1991-92 is fixed at 1.47 lakh plants. During April-December, 1991 88,815 plants have already been installed against the target of 73,500 plants. Under the National Programme for Improved Chullahs, about 19.87 lakh fuel efficient and smokeless chullahs were set up in 1990-91, bringing the total number installed to about 103.77 lakh. These improved chullahs are estimated to have the potential of saving 72.6 lakh tonnes of wood valued at Rs. 290 crore per year, in addition to the benefits of preserving the environment. During April-December, 1991, 8.72 lakh chullahs had been installed against the target of 9.24 lakh. Appropriate feed-back and monitoring systems have been introduced to ensure the functionality of the installations set up under these programmes.

8.35 Physical achievement under the solar thermal extension programme for the period ending March, 1991 include setting up of a total collector area of 1.74 lakh sq. mts. for purposes such as water heating, distilation of water, timber seasoning, etc. Over 2,00,000 solar cookers have been sold so far. Over 7,000 villages and hamlets have been provided with solar photovoltaic lighting systems and over 50 village level solar photovoltaic power plants have been installed. The aggregate capacity of photovoltaic systems installed in the country for various applications is about 4 MW. A programme for the development of amorphous silicon solar cell technology has been taken up as a science and technology project in a mission mode and a pilot plant for the production of amorphous silicon solar cells and modules is undergoing trial runs.

8.36 Under the wind energy development and demonstration programme, 2,756 wind pumps have been installed and wind farm projects of an aggregate capacity of 38.3 MW have been set up in 7 States. Over 106 million units of electricity have been fed to the respective State grids since the commencement of the Wind Farm Programme in 1986 with a capacity of 3.3 MW. A major wind resource assessment programme is under implementation in 22 States. 848 biomass gasifier systems, of about 6.4 MW capacity, which can each achieve a diesel replacement of 60—65 per cent, have also been installed under a demonstration programme.

8.37 Under the demonstration programme of Alternate Fuels for Surface transportation, 25 buses of the Delhi Transport Corporation have been successfully run over 20 lakh kilometre with ethanol induction to the engine achieving approximately 14 per cent diesel replacement. Battery operated Mini buses for group transportation have also been successfully demonstrated at Delhi. These programmes are being extended to other cities.

8.38 The Indian Renewable Energy Development Agency Ltd. (IREDA), set up in March, 1987 had by end-December, 1991 sanctioned a total of 167 projects for about Rs. 63 crore relating to areas such as biomass utilisation for heat, steam and power generation, solar energy thermal energy, generation of biogas/power from industrial effluents, battery powered vehicles as well as for manufacturing equipments needed for various NRSE systems and devices. In 1990-91, IREDA sanctioned a total of 55 projects against 31 projects in 1989-90 involving a total outlay of Rs. 2,629.35 lakh against Rs. 582.87 lakh in 1989-90. The sanctioned projects are expected to result in the additional saving of 3,88,176 million tonnes of coal valued at Rs. 3,598.16 lakh per annum; 8,543.16 kilo litre of furnace oil valued at Rs. 300.09 lakh per annum, 32,202 m.t. of wood valued at Rs. 129.42 lakh and generation of 90.35 million units of electricity valued at Rs. 895.70 lakh per annum.

TRANSPORT

Railways

8.39 The size of the Railway network during 1990-91 increased to 62,366 route kilometres, an increase of 155 route kilometres over 1989-90. The electrified network increased to 10,083 route kilometres with electrification of additional 831 route kilometres in 1990-91. By the end of 1990-91, three trunk routes, viz., (a) New Delhi-Howrah, (b) New Delhi-Kota-Bombay, and (c) New Delhi-Madras, had been fully electrified. During 1991-92, two trunks, viz., (a) New Delhi–Bhusawal–Bombay and (b) Bombay–Howrah, are scheduled to be electrified. Track renewal was completed on 3,611 kilometres against a target of 3,500 kilometres.

8.40 The originating freight traffic in the year 1990-91 was 341.4 million tonnes, comprising 318.4

million tonnes of revenue earning traffic and 23.0 million tonnes of non-revenue earning traffic. The freight transport effort in 1990-91 was 242.7 billion tonne kilometres comprising 235.8 billion tonne kilometres of revenue earning traffic and 6.9 billion tonne kilometres of non-revenue traffic. The freight traffic carried in 1990-91 in terms of tonne kilometres was about 2.4 per cent more than the traffic carried in 1989-90. In terms of tonnage, it was 2.1 per cent more than in 1989-90.

8.41 During April-December, 1991 the freight traffic carried was 244.9 million tonnes against 227.8 million tonnes in the same period last year, implying an increase of 7.5 per cent. The traffic measured by freight transport output was 185.9 billion tonne kilometres against 176.0 billion tonne kilometres last year, implying an increase of 5.6 per cent.

8.42 The passenger traffic in 1990-91 was 3,854 million as against 3,653 million during 1989-90, implying an increase of 5.6 per cent. The volume of passenger traffic in terms of passenger kilometres was 295.7 billion as against 280.8 billion in 1989-90, implying an increase of 5.3 per cent. During April-December, 1991 the passenger traffic was 3,062 million against 2,835 million in the same period last year which was higher by 7.3 per cent.

Ports

8.43 Cargo handled at major ports during 1990-91 at 152.6 million tonnes exceeded the target of 151 million tonnes and was also higher than the throughput of 148.1 million tonnes in the preceding year. The re-assessed cargo handling capacity at major ports at the end of 1990-91 was 163.5 million tonnes. No increase in port capacity is scheduled to materialise during 1991-92.

8.44 During April-December, 1991 the major ports handled 114.1 million tonnes of cargo against the target of 112.8 million tonnes, which was also higher than the throughput of 110.5 million tonnes handled in the corresponding period last year. Major increases over traffic handled were in the traffic of POL (23.8 lakh tonnes) iron ore (10.3 lakh tonnes) and coal (24 lakh tonnes). However, general cargo traffic declined as compared to the same period last year.

8.45 The container traffic during 1990-91 recorded an increase of 8.6 per cent over the level reached in 1989-90. More than 50 per cent of the containerised cargo traffic continued to be handled at Bombay Port. Capacity utilisation during 1990-91 was 102 per cent against 99 per cent in 1989-90.

8.46 Container traffic at 5.2 million tonnes during April-December, 1991 declined by 13.2 per cent over the level reached in the same period last year. However, it registered an increase of 24,000 in terms of TEUS during April-December, 1991 as compared to the same period last year. About 45 per cent of the containerised traffic was handled at Bombay Port.

Shipping

8.47 During 1991-92, acquisition of Indian shipping tonnage has declined. The fleet strength at the end of December, 1991 was 415 vessels of 5.94 million GRT compared with 418 vessels of 6.03 million GRT in the same period last year. The overseas trade during 1990-91 was about 110.35 million tonnes against 106.75 million tonnes in 1989-90. The share of Indian flag in the total traffic has decreased marginally from 35.8 per cent during 1989-90 to 35.6 per cent in 1990-91.

Road and Road Transport

8.48 The road net work has increased steadily during the Seventh Plan. In the terminal year of the Sixth Plan (1984-85) the road network which had a total length of 16.9 lakh km increased to 19.7 lakh km by the end of the Seventh Plan showing an increase of 17 per cent. The total length of national highways increased from 31.7 thousand km to 33.6 thousand km during the same period registering a growth of about 6 per cent. The Seventh Plan also witnessed spectacular growth in the number of registered vehicles. The number of such vehicles increased from 90 lakh in 1984-85 to about 190.7 lakh in 1989-90 and further to about 214.9 lakh in 1990-91.

8.49 The National Highway Network is in need of considerable improvements. Around 5400 km of National Highways (out of total 33,600 km) are still single-lane wide or have low-grade surface. Moreover about 15,000 km are due for widening to 4-lanes considering the traffic levels. A beginning has been made on the construction of the first National Expressway having a length of 95 km. The Expressway network needs to be expanded in high-density corridors. In addition, over 200 weak/major bridges require reconstruction.

8.50 There are also numerous deficiencies in the State road network in terms of missing, weak and narrow bridges, besides inadequate pavement width and thickness. Accessibility of the villages also requires considerable improvement. According to Report of the Steering Committee on Transport Planning (1988), to connect all villages with a population of 500 and above with all weather roads will, need virtual doubling of the rural road network.

8.51 The share of road traffic, both passenger and freight, in total traffic has been maintained. It is estimated that at present the share of road traffic in total passenger traffic is about 80 per cent while that in total freight traffic is about 50 per cent.

8.52 There are 66 Road Transport Corporations in the country. These undertakings operate a fleet of nearly 1.02 lakh buses with a total investment of over Rs. 3,700 crore. They provide direct employment to over 7.63 lakh workers and carry about 600 lakh passengers each day.

8.53 An analysis of the performance of the State Transport Undertakings during the period 1984-85 to 1990-91 reveals the following facts. The fleet utilisation improved from 84 per cent in 1984-85 to 89 per cent in 1989-90. Vehicle productivity increased by 39 km from 218 km per bus/day to 257 km. The staff productivity and fuel consumption have shown improvement. There are, however, wide differences in the performance, efficiency and productivity of the various SRTUs.

8.54 Net losses declined from Rs. 222.20 crore during 1984-85 to Rs. 167.30 crore during 1987-88. Thereafter the net losses increased to Rs. 354.99 crore in 1990-91. One reason for the decline in the losses till 1987-88 is attributed to the fact that in most of the SRTUs during the first two years of the Seventh Plan, passenger fares were revised. Excepting for a few SRTUs, fare revision did not materialise in the last two years of Plan period. During the year 1989-90 it is reported that only six out of the 66 SRTUs earned net profits.

8.55 In the de-centralised sector the total number of registered goods vehicles in the country till end of March 1991 was 14.79 lakh. Even though they have about half the shares in total transport operations, very little is known about their performance.

Civil Aviation

8.56 The Civil Aviation sector consists of two distinct segments—Operational and Infrastructural. Indian Airlines and Air India provide domestic and international services on the operational side. In addition, Pawan Hans provides Helicopter services to ONGC and to inaccessible areas and difficult terrains. Infrastructural facilities are provided by the International Airports Authority of India (IAAI) and the National Airports Authority (NAA).

Air India

8.57 During 1991-92, the recession of the western economies deepened having its impact on Air India's traffic. On the other hand, with the resolution of crisis in Kuwait outlook for Gulf traffic improved. However, opening up of the Indian economy, which is expected to boost international business traffic, has not yet had a significant impact. The Available Seat Kilometres (ASKMs) deployed by Air India is expected to increase by 4.2 per cent. However, the Passenger Kilometres (PKMs) is expected to increase only marginally by 1.5 per cent. In view of the discontinuance of leasing of aircraft, the total capacity offered by Air India in 1991-92 is expected to decline. Cargo operations of Air India have become uneconomical consequent to the devaluation of Indian Rupee as the freighter lease charges are denominated in hard currency but most of the freight revenue is received in Rupees. Air India operates in a competitive international market and therefore, has to match its competitors in pricing and there is no element of subsidy as available to some other public sector undertakings.

Indian Airlines

8.58 The capacity of Indian Airlines in terms of ATKMs has increased from 959.6 million tonnes in 1984-85 to 1100 million tonnes in 1991-92. The traffic in terms of RTKMs increased from 664 million to 800 million during the same period. Compared to the last year the performance in terms of ATKMs and RTKMs is expected to be higher by 19 per cent and 14 per cent, respectively.

8.59 Following the accident of A–320 aircraft and its subsequent grounding, the financial position of the Corporation has been somewhat difficult during the years 1989-90, 1990-91 and 1991-92. With the resumption of A–320 operations, the utilisation of A–320 aircraft is gradually to be stepped up. This is expected to mitigate the hardship of the passengers and improve the financial position of the Corporation.

8.60 Following the signing of agreement with Air-bus Industry in June, 1989, the Corporation is expected to receive two A–320 aircraft by 1992-93 and five aircraft each during the years 1993-94 and 1994-95.

8.61 During 1991-92, the Corporation's expenditure has gone up significantly with the downward adjustment of Indian rupee vis-a-vis major international currencies and hike in ATF rates by 20 per cent effective 25th July, 1991. In order to offset the impact of increase in expenditure, Government approved enhancement of fares by 20 per cent in September, 1991. The revised fares were implemented effective 7th October, 1991.

Pawan Hans

8.62 The Corporation's operations in 1991-92 showed remarkable operating efficiency as compared to 1990-91. Although the number of helicopters deployed on contract with the Corporation showed a decline in number from 18 to 17 in 1991-92 but due to larger capacity of MI-8 helicopters taken on lease from USSR, these helicopters carried more passengers and cargo than in 1990-91. A total of 7 lakh passengers and 15.6 lakh kg of cargo is estimated to be carried by the Pawan Hans in 1991-92 as compared to 2 lakh passnegers and 5 lakh kg. of cargo in 1990-91. It is also estimated that the flying hours of the fleet would touch 18,300 hours as compared to 15,295 hours in 1990-91, i.e. an increase of 20 per cent. Even the performance of Dauphin fleet has improved remarkably and it is expected to register an increase of 12 per cent over the performance achieved in 1990-91.

Vayudoot

8.63 Vayudoot was incorporated in January, 1981 as a jointly owned company of Indian Airlines and Air India with the objective to connect inaccessible areas and to meet the Air transport requirement of the North Eastern region. Consequent upon an exercise undertaken by the Corporation in November, 1990, the operational net work has been rationalised to provide uninterrupted and reliable operations and to reduce the gap between the revenue and the expenditure. As a result of this exercise number of stations on the operational net work was brought down from 105 stations in 1990-91 to 55 stations. Due to capacity constraints, Vayudoot is at present operating to 45 stations.

8.64 The capacity of Vayudoot in terms of ATKMs during 1990-91 at 29.8 million tonnes was 11 per cent lower than in 1989-90. The RTKMs achieved during 1990-91 at 18.7 million tonnes was 9.7 per cent lower than that in 1989-90. This decline was mainly due to reduction in the operational net work.

International Airports Authority of India

8.65 Established in 1972 to manage airports in the four metropolitan cities of Bombay, Calcutta, Delhi and Madras, the International Airports Authority of India has been assigned the development and management of Trivandrum airport from January 1, 1991. The operations at this airport were, however, transferred to the Authority in April, 1991. During 1991, the Authority registered an overall growth and development both in terms of physical and financial targets. The four international airports at Bombay, Delhi, Calcutta and Madras handled 18 million passengers representing a four time increase over traffic in 1972. The IAAI Integrated Cargo facility handled a total of 3.77 lakh tonnes of freight as against 0.81 lakh tonnes in 1972-73. Aircrafts movement went up from 1.13 lakh in 1972-73 to 1.38 lakh in 1990-91. During April-October, 1991 aircraft movement was 0.85 lakh and passengers handled were 108.16 lakh. The cargo handled for the same period was 2.08 lakh tonnes.

National Airports Aurhority

8.66 The National Airports Authority set up in June, 1986 is responsible for providing safe and efficient Air Traffic Transport Service across the Indian Air space including overflights, providing aeronautical commniucation services, rescue and fire fighting services at the domestic aerodromes, plan, develop and construct domestic civil aerodromes, procurement, installation of radio navigational aids and communication systems. There are at present 86 civil aerodromes, 28 civil enclaves including Defence air-fields and 117 aeronautical communication stations, in addition to communication and navigational facilities rendered at 5 international airports.

8.67 The programme of work of the Authority during 1991-92 includes construction of various civil and electrical works, aeronautic, communication and navigational facilities and provision and augmentation of various ground facilities at different aerodromes.

COMMUNICATIONS

The Post

8.68 India ranks foremost among the postal systems of the world in terms of number of post offices. Besides the vastness of the country and large population, this is attributable to the conscientious efforts made by Government since independence to develop postal network as a means of social integration and as an instrument of economic development and rural re-generation. Apart from the basic objective of extending communication, the expansion of postal network has also significantly contributed to other socio-economic goals of the Government such as, rural development, employment, promotion of small savings and setting up industries in backward areas.

8.69 By the end of the seventh Plan, the National Postal Network had touched the 1,47,236 mark of which 16,249 post offices were in the urban sector and 1,30,987 in the rural sector. The all-India averages with regard to population served per post office and the average area served by a post office as on 1-4-1991 are 4607 persons and 22.10 sq. km., respectively. The long-term objective is to strive for location of a post office in a radius of 3 km in a village without a post office at present. Upgradation and consolidation of postal services is also proposed to be accorded due attention.

Technology, Modernisation and Computerisation

8.70 A new orientation is proposed to be given for changing the traditional profile of the postal services through induction of high technology. The thrust areas in this regard are computerisation, networking for electronic mail and money transfer and mechanised sorting, better quality seals and stamps etc. These measures are expected to result in new facilities, better customer care, improved performance, reduction in cost as well as generation of surpluses in certain sectors. The rural areas of the country are also expected to benefit in a significant manner through induction of high technology, specially through improved money-order service.

Mail Transmission

8.71 In the area of mail transmission, the speed post service, introduced in August, 1986 has played a crucial role. The number of speed post centres has grown from initially 6 to 60 and there are about 250 pairs of cities under point to point service. Since its inception, the traffic and revenue have also increased phenomenally. Traffic increased from 1.19 million in 1987-88 to 3.86 million in 1990-91 and revenue from Rs. 3.17 crore to Rs. 13.60 crore, respectively. During April-August, 1991, traffic and revenue figures were 1.96 million and Rs. 8.06 crore, respectively.

Savings Bank

8.72 Computerisation has been introduced in Savings Bank operations in 7 Head Post Offices in Delhi, which will increase productivity and ensure proper utilisation of man-power. In the ensuing year, it is planned to introduce computers in 24 other head post offices in the Savings Bank area.

Postal Life Insurance

8.73 Most of the centralised work in the Central Accounts Office has been decentralised. Procedure for premium collections has also been tightened which has led to an increase in collection by 10 per cent. Further, all premium rates have been rounded off to the nearest rupee, which has led to increase in productivity and simplified accounts.

International Relations

8.74 A satellite project is under consideration which can handle activities such as FAX, GIRO, Electronic Mails, Tracking and Tracing of International Speed Post. This will also lead to cutting down of per unit cost of postal activities and services provided. During 1991-92, tracking and tracing centres are also proposed to be set up in Delhi and Bombay.

Telecommunications

8.75 The performance of telecom sector during 1990-91 in creating additional switching capacity, providing new telephone and telex connections and production of switching equipment has been good. Net additional capacity added during 1990-91 was 5.57 lakh lines which is 16.5 per cent higher than 4.78 lakh lines in 1989-90. About 25.9 per cent of this capacity expansion was in metro telecom districts of Delhi, Bombay, Calcutta and Madras.

8.76 4.86 lakh direct exchange lines (DELs) were provided during 1990-91, which was 16.8 per cent higher than 4.16 lakh lines provided in 1989-90. 27.4 per cent of the total new telephone connections were provided in four metro telecom districts. The demand for providing new telephone connections is increasing very fast. Total number of people on waiting list as on 31-3-1991 was 19.15 lakh which is 14.4 per cent higher than the waiting list as on 31-3-1990.

8.77 The increase in telex switching capacity during 1990-91 was 2051 lines, which was 101.1 per cent higher than 1020 lines added in 1989-90. During 1990-91, the number of new telex connections provided was 2156 which was 30 per cent lower than 3080 telex connection provided in 1989-90. This has been mainly due to decrease in the demand for the new telex connections, because the FAX service has now become very popular.

8.78 M/s. Indian Telephone Industries (ITI) produced 9.44 lakh lines of switching equipment (strowger cross-bar and electronic) during 1990-91, which was 3.1 per cent less than the production in 1989-90. The less production was mainly due to scarcity of diesel and disturbances in the country during the year.

8.79 70.85 lakh conductor kilometres (LCKMs) of cable was laid during 1990-91, which was 9.5 per cent higher than 64.70 LCKMs in 1989-90. The cable laid in four metro telecom districts accounted for 27.5 per cent of the total LCKMs.

8.80 3.26 lakh lines Net Telephone switching capacity has been added during April-December, 1991 which is 90.6 per cent higher than 1.71 lakh lines added in the same period last year. The performance during April—December, 1991 was 64.2 per cent of the target for this period. Out of the total capacity added during this period, four metro districts accounted for 1.25 lakh lines.

8.81 2.78 lakh Direct Exchange Lines (DELs) have been provided during April—December, 1991 which is 3.8 per cent less than the target and 59.0 per cent higher than 1.75 lakh lines provided in 1989-90. The demand for new telephone connections is increasing with a fast speed. As on 31-12-1991, 23.55 lakh persons were in the waiting list.

8.82 ITI produced 5.73 lakh lines of switching equipment during April-December, 1991 which is 0.5 per cent lower than the target and 9.4 per cent higher than 5.24 lakh lines in the same period last year.

8.83 55.9 LCKMs cable has been laid during April-December, 1991 against 39.4 LCKMs during the same period last year. 1122 exchanges were opened in rural areas during April-December, 1991 which is 209.9 per cent higher than 362 exchanges opened in the same period last year. The number of LDPTs opened is 7663 which is 3674.9 per cent higher than 203 opened during the same period last year The performance in respect of LCKMs cables during April-December, 1991 was higher by 41.8 per cent than the target. The opening of rural exchanges and the number of LDPTs opened during April-December, 1991 was lower by 37.7 per cent and 14.8 per cent, respectively, than the target.

OUTLOOK

8.84 The performance of the infrastructure sectors shows mixed trends. Railways, Power and Shipping Sectors are expected to perform better in relation to their respective targets. Other sectors, except petroleum, are also likely to register positive growth rates over the previous year's level. The shortfall in the domestic production of crude oil would put additional pressure on the Balance of Payment situation and would call for more effective management of demand and supply of petroleum products and their substitutes. Energy conservation measures, particularly for petroleum products would also require to be implemented vigorously. Other important aspects of the infrastructure sectors requiring urgent and effective steps would include improved planning and management practices to avoid time and cost over-runs, better inter-sectoral co-ordination, particularly in the working of Railways, Coal, and Power sectors; and for effecting improvements in physical efficiency, productivity, capacity utilisation and quality of output. The potential for overall growth in the industrial sector is crucially dependent on continuing adequacy of investment and performance in the infrastructure industries.

SOCIAL SECTORS

The major programmes in social sectors contributing towards the goals of improving the quality of life, reducing poverty and ensuring social justice are in the field of education, health and family welfare, housing, water supply, sanitation and employment generation.

The expansion of elementary education received continued emphasis over the Plan period. About 94.6 per cent of the rural population has primary schools within a distance of 1 km. In addition, about 2.7 lakh centres are also providing non-formal education. The higher education system has registered a phenomenal growth during the Plans. Life expectancy at birth increased from 32 years in 1950-51 to 59 years in 1990-91. The death rate showed a remarkable decline from 27.4 per thousand population in 190-51 to 9.6 per thousand in 1990-91. On the other hand, the birth rate declined from 39.9 per thousand to 29.9 per thousand during this period. Owing to the faster fall in the death rate than in the birth rate, the growth rate of population has risen from 1.25 in 1951 to 2.11 in 1991.

A number of programmes are also in progress for the development and welfare of women and children, SC/ST families and for the rehabilitation of released bonded labourers.

To deal with the housing problem, dwelling units in the rural and urban areas are being augmented. The National Housing Bank provided refinance facility amounting to Rs. 770.38 crore till December, 1991. The Bank's Voluntary Deposit Scheme for mobilisation of black money and its use, inter alia, for construction of houses for the poor, mobilised a total sum of Rs. 80.74 crore up to 20th January, 1992.

Under the IRDP, 1.22 million families have been assisted during April-November 1991. With a view to utilising the trained manpower, the Training of Rural Youth for Self Employment (TRYSEM) was linked with the IRDP. In addition, financial assistance and other inputs are provided to the urban poor and to the educated youth for self-employment. For wage employment, Jawahar Rozgar Yojana (JRY) is being implemented. These programmes are mainly to tackle the problem of poverty. The incidence of poverty came down from 51.5 per cent in 1972-73 to 29.9 per cent in 1987-88,.

However, despite all these efforts, the universal elementary education still remains an elusive goal; dropout rates are high, the retention rate among female children is low, the primary schools lack buildings, teachers and reading materials. Employment opportunities are inadequate in comparison to the need. Primary health centres are not adequate and improperly manned in rural and tribal areas. The housing problem also continues to be daunting; the backlog of housing stock is expected to swell to 41 million dwelling units by the turn of the century. Much more remains to be done for providing drinking water and sanitation facilities both in rural as well as urban areas. A combined effort of the Government, non-governmental agencies and the people only could improve the situation. The pace of investment also requires to be increased in the social sectors to provide the requisite infrastructure, suitable manpower and other essential facilities.

Introduction

9.1 Human capital is a basic input for planning and its successful implementation. Hence, the development of social sectors has been one of the major objectives of our Plans. Proper utilisation of human resources, on the other hand, provides the key to the economic and social development. In addition to the criterion of per capita income, other indicators of quality of life like life expectancy at birth, literacy rate, unemployment rate of educated class etc. are being projected as indicators of 'overall development'. Thus the concept of development is now being redefined and made broadbased and the Government have taken several measures and schemes for the improvement in social sectors. The major areas, which contribute in this direction are education, health family welfare, poverty alleviation programmes, housing and training etc. The programmes directed towards women and children have also assumed special importance in this context. Similarly, water supply, sanitation, labour and labour welfare and special employment programmes have been included in the thrust areas.

9.2 Alleviation of poverty has been a primary objective of our planning process particularly after the Fourth Five Year Plan and several special programmes have been in operation over the last two decades focussing on the poor as the target group. As a result, the extent of incidence of absolute poverty has significantly declined over the years. The overall improvement in human resources as evident from the estimates of incidence of poverty made by the Planning Commission is given in the table below :

Estimates of incidence of poverty

Urban . .	41.2	38.2	28.1	20.1

9.3 On the other hand, development efforts in the social sectors namely health, education, family welfare and provision of basic amenities such as housing and water supply, supplemented by special programmes for disadvantaged and vulnerable groups like women and children and economically and socially backward classes have made significant improvements in some of the crucial indicators of quality of life. For example life expectancy at birth which was only 32 years in 1951, is estimated to have increased to 59 years now. Death rate declined from 27.4 per thousand of population in 1950-51 to 9.6 in 1990-91. Infant mortality, which was 129 per thousand in 1971, has been estimated to have declined to 80 by 1990. Literacy rate, which was only 18.33 per cent in 1951 has increased to 52.11 per cent in 1991.

Education

9.4 Expansion of elementary education, equal opportunities and improvement of the quality and content at all levels continue to constitute an important ingredient of national endeavour in the field of education. During the International Literacy Year (1990), an upsurge in the demand for literacy was experienced in several parts of the country. Kerala acquired the distinction of being the first state in the country to achieve full literacy by adopting innovative methods of social mobilisation thereby it has come to be a model for literacy campaigns.

Primary Education

9.5 Universalisation of Elementary Education (UEE) is a constitutional mandate. The endeavour in the Plans has been to ensure universal provision of primary schools, enrolment and retention of children from age group of 6 to 14 years. According to the Fifth All India Education Survey, 1986, 94.6 per cent of the rural population has schools within a distance of 1 km; 83.89 per cent of the rural population was served with middle schools within a distance of 3 kms. The gross enrolment of 6 to 11 age group increased from 76.4 per cent in 1970-71 to 99.6 per cent in 1990-91. However, UEE in its totality is still an elusive goal. Dropout rates are still high and enrolment and retention rates among female children are low, particularly in rural areas.

9.6 Non-formal Education (NFE) was introduced during the Sixth Five Year Plan in the educationally backward States. After the National Policy on Education (NPE) 1986, the scheme was revised; the coverage was extended to urban slums, hills, desert, tribal and remote areas for the benefit of working children. The essential features of this revised scheme are; an area approach, organisational flexibility, decentralised management, more relevant curriculum and diversity in learning activities so as to relate them to the learner's needs. The achievements under the programme since 1987-88 are given in table 9.2.

9.7 Another major scheme introduced after NPE, 1986 is Operation Blackboard (OB). This scheme aims at bringing about substantial improvement in facilities in primary schools in the form of buildings, teachers and learning materials. Achievements since 1987-88 are furnished in Table 9.3.

9.8 To move towards UEE, the National Adult Education Programme was introduced in 1978. About 2.7 lakh adult education centres are in operation in which about 80 lakh illiterate adults are enrolled every year. About 40 per cent who go through the cycle of learning can be said to have acquired some literacy and numeracy though not necessarily of the desired level. The National Literacy Mission (NLM) was launched in 1988 to impart functional literacy to about 800 lakh illiterate adults in the age group of 15-35 years by 1995. Another landmark was the introduction of Jana Shikshan Nilayams (JSN) in 1988. Out of 32,000 JSN sanctioned so far, over 22,000 have already become operational. It is estimated that 84 lakh adults would be enrolled each year.

Secondary Education

9.9 Secondary education recorded a high growth during the Plans. At present, there are about 77000 Secondary/Higher Secondary Schools with an enrolment of more than 2 crore and about 13 lakh teachers.

9.10 Kendriya Vidyalaya Sangathan was started in 1963, primarily for catering to the educational needs of the children of transferable central Govt. employees and others. At present there are 744 Kendriya Vidyalayas (KVs) in which about 5.64 lakh students are on roll and about 36,000 teachers. The pass percentage of KVs. has been always higher than that of non-KVs. During 1990 pass percentage for classes X & XII were 89.05 and 85.7 respectively in KVs. as against 74.2 and 74.9 respectively for non-Kendriya Vidyalayas.

9.11 In order to provide good quality modern education to the talented children, predominantly from the rural areas, a scheme of establishment of Navodaya Vidyalayas, on an average one in each district, was launched in 1987-88. So far 275 Navodaya Vidalayas have been established in 22 States/UTs. The total student strength under the scheme is about 64,000. About 77 per cent are from rural areas. The enrolment of SC & ST students is 20.18 per cent and 11.21 per cent respectively.

9.12 Thirty Central Tibetan Schools are functioning for the education of the children of Tibetan refugees. The enrolment in these schools is above 10.000. Financial assistance is also provided to the students of these schools.

9.13 Various schemes are being implemented to bring about improvement and a vocational thrust in education at secondary level. A Scheme of Vocationalisation of Secondary Education was started in February, 1988 with a view to making education relevant to the world of work. Under this scheme, financial assistance is provided to the States for introduction of vocational courses in schools at the plus 2 stage.

9.14 Under the scheme of Improvement of Science Education in schools, financial assistance is provided to States and Union Territories towards provision of science kits to upper primary schools, upgradation and strengthening of science laboratories and libraries in secondary and higher secondary schools, setting up of District Resource Centres for science education, development of instructional material and training of science and mathematics teachers. The scheme also provides assistance to voluntary organisations' active role in the field of science education. The programme covers 5,791 upper primary schools, 3981 secondary/higher secondary schools in 24 States and Union Territories.

9.15 A pilot project on Computer Literacy and Studies in schools was initiated in 1984-85 in 248 selected secondary/higher secondary schools. So far 2598 schools in all over the country have been covered.

Higher Education

9.16 The higher education system has registered phenomenal growth during the last four decades. As compared to 25 universities and about 700 colleges in 1950 there are at present 184 universities and Institutes of National importance and about 4600 colleges. The total student enrolment has gone up from about 2 lakh to 43 lakh of which 13 lakh are girls. The number of teachers was 2.64 lakh at the end of the academic session 1990-91.

9.17 The activities in higher education and research are regulated by the University Grants Commission (UGC). Some of the innovative steps taken by the UGC are; grant of autonomous status to colleges (under which 103 colleges have been declared autonomous,) establishment of centres of advanced study, restructuring of under graduate courses to link education with field/practical experience and productivity, projects for research in women's studies, the programme of Countrywide Class Room, strengthening of infrastructure in science and technical education, research and modernisation of laboratories etc.

9.18 The Union Government has also established 10 Central Universities. In order to give a thrust to distance education, the Government established the Indira Gandhi National Open University in 1985. This university provides access to higher education to a large segment of the population, especially from disadvantaged groups.

9.19 There has been a phenomenal expansion of technical education facilities in the country. Major institutions in the field of technical education are the five Indian Institutes of Technology (IITs) at Kharagpur, Bombay, Delhi, Kanpur and Madras, the four Indian Institutes of Management (IIMs) at Ahmedabad, Calcutta, Bangalore and Lucknow. There are a large number of institutes spread all over the country besides the seventeen Regional Engineering Colleges (RECs). Specific programmes have been taken up in the thrust areas of technical education like creation of infrastructure in areas of emerging technologies.

9.20 A massive project for upgrading polytechnic education i s intake capacity, and quality and efficiency is being implemented in two phases with the World Bank assistance. Phase I covers about 280 polytechnics. This phase is being implemented during 1991—1997. The second phase of the project covers about 270 polytechnics. The second phase also is being implemented during 1991—97.

Cultural Development

9.21 The traditions, values, norms, sanctions, geographical & environmental factors, aesthetic and artistic dimensions and traditional skills play an important role in the development of culture. Contribution of these elements is significant in the development process. Various schemes and programmes for conservation and promotion of ancient monuments, historic sites, libraries and museums are in operation for preservation of our cultural heritage. During 1990-91, Archaeological Survey of India, brought up many discoveries of habitation sites of early historical period in Kolar, rock painting in Jhinghari, etc. In the field of international relations, India has entered into cultural agreements with 80 countries and cultural exchange programmes are on with 61 of them. As a sequel to this, the festival of India was held in Germany in September, 1991. In addition administration and development of large number of national libraries, museums and institutions of Anthropology & Archaeology, Archives, Akademies along with other important activities were in progress.

Development of Youth and Sports

9.22 In order to harness the youth's energy for the nation building activities a National Youth Council has been constituted under the Chairmanship of the Prime Minister to suggest policy measures and programmes for the development of youth and their involvement in economic development of the country. Programmes like National Service Scheme, Nehru Yuva Kendras, Promotion of Adventure, Promotion of youth activities in backward areas, training and participation in sports activities, etc. have been initiated. Special Youth Motivation and National Integration Camps were organised during the year at various places. The NSS volunteers have been involved in the National Literacy Programme. To develop sports, liberal assistance is provided to the National Sports Federations for organising National championships, coaching and team participation in the national and international tournaments.

Health

9.23 India, being a signatory to the Alma Ata declaration of 1978, is committed to the goal of "Health for All" by the year 2000 A.D. It is with this commitment in the background that the National Health Policy was adopted by the Parliament in 1983 which is a blueprint for action by the Government and voluntary agencies. The health & family welfare programmes have been consistently following the twin goals of "Health for All' and Net Reproduction Rate of 'unity' by 2000 A.D.

Primary Health Care

9.24 For providing Primary Health Care and Family Welfare Service to people at their door steps, an integrated Health Care Delivery System with the maximum possible community participation has been developed. Accordingly, a huge network supported by referral institutions has been created throughout the country. During the last four decades considerable progress has been achieved and targets for setting up one sub-centre for 5000 population in ordinary areas and 3000 for hilly & tribal areas and a Primary Health Centre for population of 30,000 in general and 20,000 for hilly & tribal areas have almost been fully achieved. At present there are 3.65 lakh doctors i.e. 4.4 doctors per 10,000 population. The number of beds is 9.4 as against 3.2 per 10,000 of population in 1951.

Control of Communicable diseases

9.25 The National Malaria Eradication Programme (NMEP) is one of the World's biggest programme against a single communicable disease. The programme was modified in 1977 in the context of the resurgence and escalation. Up to the year 1988, there was a gradual downward trend in malaria. However, thereafter the incidence of malaria has been showing an increasing trend. The position is stable since 1990.

9.26 Kala Azar is a disease which is endemic in the districts of Bihar and West Bengal. A Centrally Sponsored Scheme is in operation to control the disease. Under the programme, the Central Government provides DDT and imported drugs and the State Governments provide a matching share to meet expenditure on indigenous drugs and operational costs.

9.27 Tuberculosis is a major public health problem in India. Nearly 1.5 per cent of the population is estimated to be suffering from tuberculosis of the lungs. A National T.B. Programme has been in operation since 1962. The programme is being operated through District T.B. Centres by trained staff working in association with general health and medical institutions. The essential activities under the programme have been considerably expanded during the last few years. More than 16 lakh new cases are detected and treated effectively under the programme annually.

9.28 Leprosy is another major health and social problem in India. One-fifth of the remaining 2 million leprosy patients are infectious while 15—20 per cent cases have deformities. A National Leprosy Eradication Programme was launched in 1982. During the past 7-8 years, more than 5 million leprosy patients have been cured. It is proposed to arrest the disease in all known leprosy cases by 2000. The Multi Drug Treatment (MDT) is giving encouraging results and all the endamic districts have been extended MDT.

9.29 Efforts are being made to educate and create better awareness on AIDS. 62 Surveillance centres and 6 referral centres have been set up. Under the National AIDS Control Programme, the Indian Council of Medical Research have established 29 zonal blood testing centres in four metropolitan cities.

Medical Infrastructure

9.30 There has been a considerable expansion of institutional facilities for treatment of the sick. The number of hospitals and dispensaries increased from 7,400 in 1947 to 39,971 by 1990. During the same period, the number of beds available went up from 80,163 to 6,49,417. By March, 1991, 1,30,978 sub-centres, 22059 Primary Health Centres and 1923 Community Health Centres have been functioning in the country.

9.31 Medical education has made rapid progress. There are 128 medical colleges with an estimated 15,000 annual admissions. There are about 3.65 lakh registered MBBS doctors with the Medical Council of India. Besides, 11011 Dentists were registered in 1990 with the Dental Council of India.

Family Welfare

9.32 One of the most critical problem facing the nation today is the rapid growth of population. The 1991 Census estimated India's population at 844 million. The population is increasing by about 16 million every year. If the growth continues at the present rate, the country will have about 1000 million people by 2000 A.D. and 1700 million by 2024 A.D. It would become difficult to provide even basic necessities of life to such large population. All the additional production and facilities will be utilised by the additional population and there would not be any improvement in the quality of life. Such a relentless population growth would also wreak havoc on our environment, lead to ecological crises and social tension. It is, therefore, imperative that the highest priority is accorded to population control.

9.33 The National Family Planning Programme was started in 1951 with a clinical approach. An extension education approach was adopted in mid sixties and since late seventies the family planning has gradually expanded into a community oriented service network. The programme has made a significant impact on fertility. The birth rate declined from 41.7 per 1000 in 1950s to 34 in 1979 then it was stable around 34 till 1984. In 1985 it came down to alevel of 33 and declined further to 29.9 in 1990-91. The average annual growth rate of population which rose from a level of 1.25 per cent in the 1940s reached a plateau at 2.22 per cent in the 1970s and has now declined to 2.11 per cent during 1981-1991. During the Seventh Plan, the total number of family planning acceptors rose consistently from a level of 18.92 million in 1985-86 to 27.26 million in 1990-91. An overall couple protection rate of 44.1 per cent was achieved by March, 1991 as against the target of 60per cent by 2000 A.D. However, the birth rate has not declined as much as the death rate and the rate of population growth has remained high.

9.34 The long term goal is to reach Net Reproduction Rate of "Unity" (NRR = 1) by 2000 A.D. with a birth rate of 21, death rate of 9, and an infant mortality rate below 60 per thousand.

Development of Women and Children

9.35 All round development of women and children constitutes an important component of country's strategy for human resource development. Moreover, these two segments of our population, particularly those belonging to poorer sections, are most vulnerable and need to be given special attention. With these objectives in view, various development programmes and welfare measures have been undertaken and legislations introduced, to improve the well-being and status of women and children.

9.36 The country adopted the National Policy for Children in 1974. Following this, the most significant and important programme of Integrated Child Development Services (ICDS) was launched. The programme seeks to provide an integrated package of services comprising supplementary nutrition, immunisation, health check up and health referral to children of the age group 0—6 year and expectant and nursing mothers; non-formal pre-school education to children of age group 3—6 years and health and nutrition education to women. By the end of December, 1991, 2,596 centrally sponsored projects including State Sector Projects, covering about 50% of country's area were sanctioned. Several evaluation studies have brought out that ICDS is currently fulfilling a major national need and that there has been a decline in infant mortality rate and birth rate with better immunisation coverage and greater acceptance of family planning in ICDS areas. Attempts are on to dovetail the services for adolescent girls, creches and income generating activities for women with ICDS. The final aim is to converge and deliver through anganwadis all services, thus providing a holistic development approach for women and children.

9.37 A beginning was made during the last quarter of the current year to introduce two schemes for adoloscent girls viz., Girl to Girl Approach (for girls in the age group 11—15 years) and Balika Mandals (for the girls in the age group 11—18 years) as an additional thrust area under ICDS; this would cover 507 ICDS blocks by the end of 1991-92. The services provided include health and nutrition cover, functional literacy, upgradation and improvement of their home-based skills etc. It is also proposed to work out integration of various services and programmes for women and children. The integral components of these would be awareness generation and economic improvment of women and development of children.

9.38 In addition to the special provisions and safeguards provided for women in the constitution, the Government has introduced special legislative measures for the protection of interests of women. These include Equal Remuneration Act, Maternity Benefit Act, Immoral Traffic (Prevention Act), Dowry Prohibition Act, Commission of Sati (Prevention) Act, Criminal Laws, Indian Evidence Act and Family Courts Act. The National Commission for Women has been constituted to examine and monitor the implementation of all legislations made to protect the rights of women, review the existing legislation concerning women and suggest amendments whereever necessary, and look into the complaints and take suo-moto notice of cases involving the deprivation of the rights of women. It is also proposed to establish the Office of the Commissioner for Women's Rights which will provide dynamic focal points for reviewing the progress of cases of atrocities against women at various levels.

Welfare of Weaker Sections

9.39 Uneven economic growth and development tend to lead to imbalances in the socio-economic structure. Accordingly, a conscious effort has been made through special schemes and programmes to provide for equitable distribution and provision of welfare services for weaker sections such as Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes, Backward Classes and the handicapped.

Scheduled Castes

9.40 The Special Component Plan strategy for Scheduled Castes is, at present, in operation in 21 States and 3 UTs. There are 21 Scheduled Caste State Development Corporations which extend assistance for economic development to Scheduled Castes. Special Central Assisiance is paid to States/UTs as an additive to their Special Component Plans. There are several Centrally Sponsored Schemes for the educational and economic development of Scheduled Castes. Under Point 11-A of the 20-Point Programme, economic assistance was provided to 103 lakh Scheduled Caste families during Sixth Plan, 120 lakh families in Seventh Plan and 22.40 lakh families during 1990-91, to enable them to cross the poverty line. The target fixed for 1991-92 is 25.56 lakh families. However, only 3.99 lakh families are reported to have been assisted upto September, 1991.

Scheduled Tribes

9.41 The tribal sub-plan strategy is presently in operation in 18 States and 2 UTs and is being implemented through 193 Integrated Tribal Development Projects (ITDPs). This strategy aims at socio-economic development of Scheduled Tribes,

Special central assistance is provided by Government of India to States/UTs to supplement their efforts for tribal development. There are several Centrally Sponsored Schemes for the economic and educational development of STs. For marketing of tribal produce, especially the minor forest produce, a Tribal Cooperative Marketing Development Federation (TRIFED) set up in August, 1987 is expanding its activities. During the Seventh Plan, 52.89 lakh ST families were given economic assistance. In 1990-91, against the target of 8.24 lakh ST families, 8.93 lakh ST families were economically assisted. The target fixed for 1991-92 is 8.04 lakh families. Against this, 2.48 lakh families were assisted upto September, 1991. The achievement upto September, 1991 is approximately 103 per cent of the target of 2.40 lakh families.

National Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes Finance and Development Corporation (NSFDC)

9.42 To accelerate the pace of economic development of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes, the National Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes Finance and Development Corporation (NSFDC) was set up in February, 1989 with an authorised capital of Rs. 75 crore and paid-up capital of Rs. 50 crore. Since its inception, the Corporation has sanctioned 125 income generating projects/schemes which are likely to benefit about 1.25 lakh SC and ST beneficiaries. The disbursements made till December, 1991 reached Rs. 20.08 crore. Further, the Corporation has so far also spent Rs. 5.59 lakh for providing training to upgrade the knowledge and skills of SCs and STs to make them self-employed.

Backward Classes

9.43 In order to provide an additional channel of finance for economic development of the Socially and Educationally Backward Classes (SEBCs), Government of India has decided to set up a National Backward Classes Finance and Development Corporation (NBFDC) with an authorised capital of Rs. 200 crore.

9.44 The Corporation was registered on 13-1-1992 as a Company under Section 25 of the Companies Act, 1956 and paid-up Capital of Rs. 25 crore was provided in the budget for 1991-92. The objects of the Corporation include, inter-alia, promotion of self-employment and other ventures, extension of loan for pursuing general/professional/technical education or training at graduate and higher levels and upgradation of technical and entrepreneurial skills of people belonging to Backward Classes. The Corporation will work as an apex institution for coordination and monitoring the work of all Corporations/Boards set up by the State Government and UT Administrations for the welfare of Backward Classes.

Handicapped/disabled persons

9.45 Government continues to provide rehabilitation services to the disabled persons. Voluntary organisations were assisted upto 90 per cent of their expenditure in accordance with the approved norms. Free/subsidised aids and appliances for the poor handicapped are being provided. Scholarships are given to disabled students along with other concessions. The National Institutes dealing with specific disabilities set up at Calcutta (Orthopaedically Handicapped), Hyderabad (Mentally Handicapped), Dehra Dun (Visually Handicapped) and Bombay (Hearing Handicapped) continued to provide services as well as training facilities in their respective specialisations. In addition, two other Institutes at Cuttack and Delhi provide similar services for the orthopaedically handicapped.

Drug Abuse

9.46 Drug abuse is on the increase and there is no socio-economic/cultural group which remains unaffected by it. To deal with this problem, the Government of India has adopted a community-based approach under which voluntary organisations are funded to the extent of 90 per cent as per approved norms for providing counselling, de-addiction and after-care facilities to the addict and also for building awareness and educating the people in general about the ill-effects of drug abuse. So far, 110 counselling centres, 44 de-addiction centres and 10 aftercare centres are functioning in the voluntary sector.

Housing

9.47 Despite considerable investment and efforts over successive Plan periods, the housing problem continues to be daunting. The residential housing stock increased from 664 lakh to 774 lakh units in rural areas over 1971-81, and from 185 lakh to 280 lakh in urban areas over the same period. In 1981, there were about 6 lakh absolutely homeless households; and this number may have increased further by now. It is estimated that about 512 lakh persons are living in slums and squatter settlements, and about 50 per cent of the urban households are living in crowded one-room tenements. It is estimated that the backlog of housing stock of 23.3 million dwelling units in 1981 will swell to 41 million units by the turn of the century. The National Building Organisation (NBO) has estimated on the basis of 1981 census data, a housing shortage in the country as on 1-3-91 as 31 million units comprising 20.6 million in rural and 10.4 million units in urban areas. Land, provision of basic services, finance, production and supply of adequate building materials, and trained construction-workers are the critical inputs to housing. Appropriate and enabling legal environment and institutional framework provide the basic setting for increasing the tempo of housing activity. In each of these critical areas, a number of constraints are encountered, and a number of steps initiated for accelerating housing and building construction.

9.48 The Draft National Housing Policy was placed before both the Houses of Parliament in May, 1988. The document was approved by the Rajya Sabha in November, 1988. The document was forwarded to all the States and Union Territories for initiating necessary steps for the implementation of the policy. It was envisaged that the policy would be further revised in the light of discussions in the Parliament and outside and the final version will be brought before the Parliament again. The draft policy has accordingly been modified taking into account the allround developments in the housing scenario in the country as a whole and also in the context of the Eighth Plan proposals and the Manifesto declaration for vigorous implementation of the policy.

9.49 The draft National Housing Policy envisages an increase in the dwelling units in rural and urban areas. It is proposed also to undertake the construction of 1000 night shelters per year for the pavement dwellers in urban areas. The availability of housing finance for different income groups will be expanded through housing finance institutions under the overall supervision of National Housing Bank while Housing and Urban Development Corporation (HUDCO) will be assisted in expanding the provision of finance for the economically weaker sections and target groups. Under the policy, the Housing Programme will form part of the citywide programme of poverty alleviation, employment support and skill upgradation under Nehru Rozgar Yojana and other schemes for basic services to the poor. In order to reduce the cost of construction as well as promotion of appropriate technology and materials including those based on the utilisation of industrial and agricultural waste, a systematic programme of technology transfer and commercial application of appropriate technology has been taken up through Building Materials and Technology Promotion Council (BMTPC) and the network of building centres operated through HUDCO in different parts of the country. The building centres numbering about 170 so far undertake the manufacture of low cost materials and provide training to various artisans and can also be entrusted by the State Governments with construction of buildings and houses using this technology. The Government has extended excise concessions for the materials produced in the building centres as well as those made out of flyash and phospho gypsum.

9.50 The Government has taken a series of initiatives to address the constraints in housing activity. These include amendments to the Urban Land Ceiling Act, formulation of a model Rent Control Law and the establishment of rent tribunals, rationalisation of stamp duty, introduction of system for speedy foreclosure of mortgaged property, measures for promoting NRI investment in housing, liberalisation of building regulation for housing activity by the poor and steps for expediting acquisition of land for housing.

Cooperatives

9.51 There were over 60,000 housing cooperatives by March, 1991 with over 40 lakh members. The Cooperative Housing Movement has to its credit 10 lakh houses already constructed and an equal number under construction. These are supervised and assisted by apex housing finance societies/federations which have been formed in 25 states. The cooperative sector has already invested about Rs. 4,000 crore on housing sector, adding about Rs. 600 crore annually. The rural areas are also being covered under the field of cooperative housing societies. Apart from its support to State Governments and policy holders, the Life Insurance Corporation (LIC) had disbursed by March, 1991, Rs. 1,407 crore to various cooperatives for the construction of houses. The cooperative housing finance societies are entitled to refinance from National Housing Bank (NHB). Rural Housing schemes are operated by cooperatives in a number of states. About 60 per cent of housing finance disbursed by apex cooperatives has gone to Economically Weaker Sections (EWS) and Low Income Groups (LIG). It is also part of the land allotment policy of Central and State Governments to give preference to cooperatives in the allotment of land. It has been estimated that under various programmes of the public and the formal sector, on an average, 10 lakh houses are constructed and upgraded each year.

Housing and Urban Development Corporation (HUDCO)

9.52 An important role is being played by HUDCO for meeting the housing needs of the poorer sections and vulnerable groups in urban and rural areas through various State and local agencies. It has so far financed over 48 lakh dwelling units in the last 21 years including 21.91 lakh units in rural areas, of which 90 per cent have gone to the poorer and vulnerable groups. HUDCO plans to expand its lending for various forms of housing activities and urban infrastructure during the eighth plan period. It is also operating a network of building centres for extension of appropriate housing technology and skill-promotion.

National Housing Bank

9.53. For meeting the requirements of housing finance, a National Housing Bank (NHB) was established in 1988. The bank is providing assistance through a number of schemes. These include: Home Loan Account Scheme, liberalised lending by commercial banks and refinance facilities. Refinance for land development and shelter programmes of public/private agencies and cooperatives in order to increase the supply of serviced land in urban and rural areas have been undertaken. Till December, 1991 the NHB had advanced refinance amounting to Rs. 770.38 crore to various Commercial Banks and other housing finance institutions and cooperatives, out of which it had provided loans amounting to Rs. 45.93 crore to various public and private agencies for undertaking land development and shelter scheme. Over 5.44 lakh accounts (estimated) have been opened with various commercial banks under the Home Loan Account Scheme of NHB whereby household savings to the extent of Rs. 100 crore (estimated) have been mobilised by December, 1991.

9.54 NHB had also announced a Voluntary Deposit Scheme for mobilisation of black money and its partial use for construction of houses for the poor. As on 20th January, 1992, a total sum of Rs. 80.74 crore had been mobilised. The banking sector has been involved substantially in housing finance in recent years. Revised interest rates have been fixed by the Reserve Bank of India and National Housing Bank for the loans advanced by the commercial banks and housing finance institutions. It is recognised that increased supply of serviced land and housing finance for various income groups, with due regard to the needs of lower income groups to the informal sector are desiderata of larger supply of dwelling units.

Urban Basic Services and Slums

9.55 The Urban Basic Services Programme was introduced as a centrally sponsored scheme with the assistance of UNICEF. The scheme envisages support for basic services such as water supply, low cost sanitation, health care, pre-school education and programmes designed to promote cooperative group action. The scheme aims at reducing the morbidity and mortality rates of children, improving the health of women and enhancing their ability to supplement their incomes. It also envisages improving the capacity of voluntary organisations to manage programmes for the urban poor. During the Seventh Plan period, 169 towns in 37 districts were covered in 21 States/UTs.

9.56 The Environmental Improvement of Urban Slums (EIUS) was identified as a need of the slum population since the commencement of the Fifth Five Year Plan. The EIUS scheme was made an integral part of the Minimum Needs Programme (MNP) and was transferred to the State Sector. The scheme aimed at ameliorating the living conditions of urban slum dwellers and envisages provision of drinking water, sewerage, storm-water drains, community baths, community latrines, widening and paving of existing lanes, and street lighting.

Water Supply and Sanitation

9.57 Water supply and sanitation is a State subject. It is the responsibility of the State Governments and urban local bodies to plan, implement, operate and to maintain urban water supply and sanitation schemes. The rural water supply and rural sanitation schemes are implemented under the State Sector Minimum Needs Programme as well as under centrally sponsored schemes. The 1981-90 decade was designated as the "International Drinking Water Supply and Sanitation Decade". India is a signatory to the Resolution thereof and has pledged its full support to the Action Plan under the Programme.

9.58 The drinking water supply problem in the rural areas is a matter of high priority. The Seventh Plan target was to cover all the remaining 1,61,722 identified problem villages. However, 1,53,357 villages could be provided with at least one safe source of drinking water supply, leaving a balance of 8365 hardcore 'No Source' problem villages. Out of this, 3032 villages were covered during 1990-91. A special allocation of Rs. 250 crore was approved during the current year for coverage of these residual 'No Source' problem villages by 31 March 1993. However, upto December 1991, only 591 villages could be covered. Besides, around 1.5 lakh partially covered villages and habitations also require augmentation for full coverage. The percentage of population with drinking water supply and sanitation facilities by the end of the year 1990-91 vis-a-vis the position at the end of the Sixth and Seventh Plans is given in Table 9.4.

9.59 In the Approach to the Eighth Five Year Plan, it has been emphasised that the water supply Boards/Authorities/Nigams should become financially independent and autonomous, through cost recovery from specific users of the service. This acquires relevance in the context of budgetary constraints with reference to the needs of the sector and the necessity for financing water supply and sanitation schemes through institutional finance. The cost recovery would build its own pressure for the improvement in the operational efficiency of the systems. This would call for comprehensively addressing to the training needs of the personnel serving in the sector at all levels covering areas like operation and maintenance, finance, personnel management etc. There would also be a need for preparing easy to read manuals for use by the operational staff in different local languages.

9.60 The problems that remain to be solved in the area of water supply and sanitation both in the rural as well as in the urban areas are quite formidable. Extensive efforts will have to be made to overcome them.

Labour and Labour Welfare

Vocational Training

9.61 Vocational training improves employability and productivity of the labour force. At present, 2240 Industrial Training Institutes (ITIs) with total capacity of about 3.70 lakh seats run courses in 40 engineering and 27 non-engineering trades in accordance with standards set by the National Council of Vocational Training (NCVT). The ITI infrastructure is also utilised for the TRYSEM Programme. Further, ITIs in certain States/UTs, such as, Haryana, Himachal Pradesh and Delhi conduct non-formal, short-term courses for development of skills. Practical training at the shop-floor is provided under the Apprentices Act, 1961 in 128 trades in 218 industries. The training capacity is about 1.85 lakh seats for trade apprentices and 48,706 seats for graduates/technician apprentices. A small net-work of Advanced Training Institutes provides advanced level training in different fields to the workers employed in industry for updating their skills.

9.62 A World Bank-assisted Vocational Training Project to modernise and update the National Vocational Training System has been taken up for ensuring a steady flow of adequately trained manpower to meet the changing needs for skills by the industry. It will also equip the Vocational Training System to cope up with the highly advanced technologies being introduced in India at an accelerating pace.

Labour Welfare and Social Security

9.63 The Bonded Labour System has been abolished throughout the country with the passing of the Bonded Labour System (Abolition) Act, 1976. The Act envisages release of all the bonded labourers from bondage and simultaneous liquidation of their debts. The incidence of bonded labour was reported from 12 States and according to the latest reports received from the State Governments, the total number of bonded labourers indentified and freed as on 31 March 1991 was 2,55,608 out of which 2,22,935 have been rehabilitated. The State Governments also reported that 14,585 bonded labourers were not available for rehabilitation, thus leaving a balance of 18,088 bonded labourers to be rehabilitated. A target for the rehabilitation of 4,109 bonded labourers was fixed for 8 states during the current year. Upto the end of November 1991, 621 bonded labourers were reported rehabilitated by the State governments.

9.64 The real wages of workers in the unorganised sector are protected through the fixation and revision of minimum wages at regular intervals in various employments scheduled under the Minimum Wages Act, 1948. The National Commission on Rural Labour (NCRL) set up by the Government in 1987 for examining all aspects of rural labour submitted its report to the Government on 31-7-1991. The Commission has, inter-alia, recommended that the minimum wages for agricultural workers throughout the country should not be less than Rs. 20 per day. This recommendation of the NCRL is proposed to be discussed in a conference of all the State Labour Ministers. A number of welfare boards set up for specific groups of workers like mine labour, port and dock labour, bidi workers, and so on implement welfare measures for the groups of workers concerned. The Emigration Act, 1983 regulates the emigration of Indian workers for overseas employment on contractual basis and seeks to ensure welfare and safe-guard the interest of workers. Available statistics show that during 1990, 1.44 lakh Indian Workers were given emigration clearance for contractual employment abroad as compared to 1.26 lakh during 1989.

9.65 A number of legislative measures have been taken for the protection of women and child labour. The Equal Remuneration Act, 1976 provides for payment of equal remuneration to men and women workers for the same work or work of a similar nature and for the prevention of discrimination against women not only in the matter of recruitment but also in relation to conditions of service subsequent to employment.

9.66 The Child Labour (Prohibition & Regulation) Act, 1986 prohibits child labour in the employment hazardous to them and regulates their employment in non-hazardous occupations. A National Child Labour Policy has also been formulated in 1987. The Policy envisages, inter-alia, a project based plan of action aimed at rehabilitation of children withdrawn from employment through provision of welfare inputs like non-formal education, vocational training, health care, nutrition etc. to them. Nine child labour projects have so far been set up in areas of concentration of child labour. These are at Sivakasi (Tamil Nadu), Jaipur (Rajasthan), Mandsaur (Madhya Pradesh), Markapur and Jaggampet (Andhra Pradesh) and Mirzapur-Bhadohi, Ferozabad, Aligarh and Moradabad (Uttar Pradesh). Special Schools form a major component of the project, through which welfare inputs are provided to children. 124 schools covering 6900 children have so far been set up.

9.67 Social security to workers is provided through a number of legislative measures. These provide for payments of compensation to workmen in case of industrial accidents and occupational diseases leading to disablement or death, health insurance, provident fund, family pension, deposit linked insurance and payment of gratuity on termination of employment, superannuation, retirement, resignation, death or disablement to workers coming within their purview.

Special Employment Programmes

9.68 A number of Special Employment Programmes have over the years sought to supplement employment generation by the growth process.

9.69 Programmes for the rural poor are the Integrated Rural Development Programme (IRDP) and its two sub-programmes: Training for Rural Youth for Self Employment (TRYSEM) and Development of Women and Children in Rural Areas (DWCRA) and the wage employment programmes—the National Rural Employment Programme (NREP) and the Rural Landless Employment Guarantee Programme (RLEGP), later merged to form the Jawahar Rozgar Yojana (JRY) in 1989-90. IRDP seeks to promote self-employment by providing productive assets and inputs to the rural poor through a mix of subsidy and bank credit. TRYSEM provides training in technical skills to poor rural youth to enable them to take up self employment or wage employment and DWCRA seeks to promote economic activities among groups of poor rural women. JRY is designed to generate additional gainful employment for the rural unemployed and under employed by taking up works for creating productive economic assets. During the Seventh Plan period, 18.2 million families were assisted under IRDP and the wage employment programmes (NREP/RLEGP and JRY) generated 3,497 million mandays of employment. Details of the self employment and wage employment generated are given in Table 9.5.

9.70 The Self Employment Programmes for the Urban Poor (SEPUP), Scheme for Self Employment to the Educated Urban Youth (SEEUY) and Nehru Rojgar Yojana (NRY) are programmes initiated for the urban poor.

9.71 SEPUP was launched in September 1986 and covers all cities and towns with a population of 10,000 and above and areas not covered by IRDP. Under the scheme, loans upto Rs. 5,000/- are provided by banks to the urban poor for taking up useful economic ventures with Central Government providing a capital subsidy of 25% of the total loan. Available provisional figures show that during the years 1986-87 to 1989-90, 14.37 lakh beneficiaries were sanctioned loans amounting to Rs. 516.02 crore. During 1990-91, 1.19 lakh beneficiaries were covered and the amount of loan sanctioned was Rs. 50.44 crore. The scheme is being continued during the financial year 1991-92. However, from the year 1992-93 SEPUP is being merged with the Scheme of Urban Enterprises (SUME) under Nehru Rojgar Yojana (NRY).

9.72 SEEUY was launched during the year 1983-84, with the objective of promoting self-employment among the educated youth aged between 18 to 35 years belonging to families with income not exceeding Rs. 10,000/- per annum. It covers areas other than the cities with a population of more than one million. The Central Government provides a capital subsidy of 25% of the loan provided by the banks. Under the scheme during the years 1983-84 to 1989-90, about 13.28 lakh beneficiaries have been sanctioned loans amounting to Rs. 2620.15 crore. During the year 1990-91, 1.01 lakh beneficiaries have been sanctioned loans amounting to Rs. 204.15 crore.

9.73 NRY, launched in October 1989 and redesigned subsequently, consists of three schemes. The first scheme seeks to provide support to the urban poor for setting up micro enterprises in all urban settlements somewhat along the lines of IRDP; the second is for wage employment through provision of basic amenities to the poor in all urban settlements with a population of less than 10 lakh and the third is for providing employment through shelter upgradation in urban settlements with population between one lakh and 20 lakh.

9.74 Since the launching of NRY, about 1.60 lakh beneficiaries have been sanctioned a subsidy of more than Rs. 32 crore for setting up micro enterprises. Further, under the scheme of Urban Wage Employment, an expenditure of more than Rs. 70 crore has been incurred and more than one crore mandays generated in constructing socially useful assets in the low income neighbourhoods. Moreover, under the scheme of Housing and Shelter Upgradation, subsidy to the tune of Rs. 45 crore has been sanctioned with the objective of upgrading more than 5.50 lakh dwelling units. In this manner, the Nehru Rojgar Yojana is playing a significant role in improving the living conditions of the urban poor.

Outlook

9.75 A number of programmes are in operation for increasing employment opportunities, alleviation of poverty, welfare and development of weaker sections, expansion of educational facilities, health care and population control. Industrial and trade policies too have been liberalised and made more market oriented. All these efforts are likely to create more self and wage employment opportunities. The problem of poverty is expected to be tackled more effectively resulting in the improvement in the quality of life of weaker sections of the society. Various incentive programmes for population control have been in operation for long. However, the nation is still faced with the problem of rising population. This problem will have to be given greater attention to ensure that the fruits of development get reflected in real and broad based improvement in the quality of life of people. The pace of investment also requires to be increased in the social sectors to provide the requisite infrastructure, suitable manpower and other essential facilities. A combined effort of the Government, non-governmental agencies and the people only could improve the situation.

Notes :

1. Mid-year population figures from 1971 to 1980 are based on the latest projections made by the office of the Registrar Genera of India. Estimates from 1981 onwards are provisional and are worked out by taking 1991 Census provisional population figures.
2. Production figures relate to the agricultural year July-June: 1951 figures correspond to the production of 1950-51 and so on for subsequent years.
3. Net production has been taken as 87.5% of the gross production, 12.5% being provided for seeds,feed requirements and wasta
4. Figures in respect of change in stocks with traders and producers are not known. The estimates of net availability above should not, therefore, be taken to be strictly equivalent to consumption.
5. The figures of net imports from 1981 onwards are based on imports and exports on Government of India account only.

* Includes Trust Fund loan.

 Excludes Trust Fund loan. Figures in rupees are obtained from figures in SDRs converted at year-end rupee-SDR rate for debt outstanding and at yearly average rate for repurchages and interest payments. These figures are, therefore, different from those given in Economic Survey, 1990-91 which were based on representative rates. Interest payments include charges under EFF borrowings net of interest subsidy on use of SFF resources and charges under CFF borrowings. For 1990-91, interest payments also include service charges paid on CCFF and First Credit Tranche Stand-by Arrangement.

Note: Total debt disbursed and outstanding is computed on the basis of all medium and long term loans with maturity over one year.

NEW DELHI; MANMOHAN SINGH.

PRESIDENT'S RECOMMENDATION UNDER ARTICLES 117 AND 274 OF THE CONSTITUTION OF INDIA

[Copy of letter No. F.3(1)-B(D)/92, dated the 29th February, 1992 from Shri Manmohan Singh, Minister of Finance, to the Secretary-General, Lok Sabha.]

The President, having been informed of the subject matter of the proposed Bill, recommends under clause (1) of article 117, read with clause (1) of article 274, of the Constitution of India, the introduction of the Finance Bill, 1992 to the Lok Sabha.

2. The Bill will be introduced in the Lok Sabha immediately after the presentation of the Budget on the 29th February, 1992.

Income-tax

Clause 2, read with the First Schedule to the Bill, seeks to prescribe the rates at which income-tax (including surcharge thereon) is to be levied on income chargeable to tax for the assessment year 1992-93. Further, it lays down the rates at which tax is to be deducted at source during the financial year 1992-93 from income subject to such deduction under the Income-tax Act; and the rates at which "advance tax" is to be paid and tax is to be calculated and charged in special cases for the financial year 1992-93.

Rates of income-tax for the assessment year 1992-93

Part I of the First Schedule to the Bill specifies the rates of income-tax on incomes liable to tax for the assessment year 1992-93. These rates are the same as those specified in Part III of the First Schedule to the Finance (No. 2) Act, 1991, for the purposes of deduction of tax at source from "Salaries" and for computation of "advance tax" payable during the financial year 1991-92.

As provided by the Finance (No. 2) Act, 1991, the amount of income-tax computed in accordance with the provisions of this Part shall in the case of every person having income exceeding seventy-five thousand rupees be increased,—

(i) in the case of every person, being a resident, not being an Indian company, by a surcharge calculated at the rate of 12 per cent., for purposes of the Union,

(ii) in the case of an Indian company, by a surcharge, calculated at the rate of 15 per cent. of such income-tax.

Rates for deduction of tax at source during the financial year 1992-93 from income other than "Salaries"

Part II of the First Schedule to the Bill specifies the rates at which income-tax is to be deducted at source during the financial year 1992-93 from incomes other than "Salaries". These rates are the same as those specified in Part II of the First Schedule to the Finance (No. 2) Act, 1991 for the purposes of deduction of tax at source during the financial year 1991-92. The amount of tax so deducted at source shall be increased,—

(i) in the case where the payment is made to a person, other than a company, resident in India, by a surcharge calculated at the rate of 12 per cent., for purposes of the Union,

(ii) in the case of a domestic company, by a surcharge calculated at the rate of 15 per cent. of such income-tax.

Rates for deduction of tax at source from "Salaries", computation of "advance tax" and charging of income-tax in special cases during the financial year 1992-93

Part III of the First Schedule to the Bill specifies the rates at which income-tax is to be deducted at source from "Salaries" and also the rates at which "advance tax" is to be paid and income-tax is to be calculated or charged in special cases for the financial year 1992-93.

Sub-Paragraph I of Paragraph A of this Part specifies the rates of income-tax in the case of every individual or Hindu undivided family or every association of persons or body of individuals, whether incorporated or not, or every artificial juridical person referred to in sub-clause (vii) of clause (31) of section 2 of the Income-tax Act, not being a case to which Sub-Paragraph II of Paragraph A or any other Paragraph of Part III applies. In such cases, the income-tax exemption limit has been increased to Rs. 28,000 from Rs. 22,000. Further, the rates of income-tax on income above Rs. 28,000 will be as under :—

Rs. 28, 001 to Rs. 50,000	20 per cent.;
Rs. 50,001 to Rs. 1,00,000	30 per cent.;
Above Rs. 1,00,000	40 per cent.

Sub-Paragraph II of Paragraph A of this Part specifies the rates of income-tax in the case of every Hindu undivided family which any time during the previous year has at least one member whose total income of the previous year relevant to the assessment year commencing on the 1st day of April, 1993, exceeds Rs. 28,000. In such cases, the income-tax exemption limit has been increased to Rs. 18,000 from Rs. 12,000. Further, the rates of income-tax on income above Rs. 18,000 will be as under :—

Rs. 18,001 to Rs. 1,00,000	30 per cent.;
Above Rs. 1,00,000	40 per cent.

Paragraph B of this Part specifies the rates of income-tax in the case of every co-operative society. In such cases, both the exemption limit and the rates of tax will continue to be the same as those prescribed for assessment year 1992-93.

Paragraph C of this Part specifies the rate of income-tax in the case of every firm. In such cases, income-tax will be levied at the rate of 40 per cent. on the whole of the total income. The distinction between firms whose total income includes income derived from a profession carried on by it and the income so included is not less than fifty-one per cent. of such total income and other firms is being removed.

Paragraph D of this Part specifies the rate of income-tax in the case of every local authority. In such cases, income-tax will be levied at the rate of 30 per cent., instead of at the rate of 50 per cent. as at present, on the whole of the total income.

Paragraph E of this Part specifies the rates of income-tax in the case of a company. In such cases, the rates of income-tax will continue to be the same as those prescribed for assessment year 1992-93.

In the case of every person being an individual, Hindu undivided family, association of persons or body of individuals, being resident in India, firm, co-operative society and local authority, whose total income exceeds one hundred thousand rupees and where income-tax is to be deducted at source or "advance tax" is payable in accordance with the provisions of this Part, such amount of income-tax shall be increased by a surcharge for purposes of Union calculated at the rate of twelve per cent. of such income-tax. In the case of domestic companies having a total income exceeding seventy-five thousand rupees, the amount of income-tax computed in accordance with the provisions of this Part shall be increased by a surcharge calculated at the rate of fifteen per cent. of such income-tax. However, in the case of individuals, Hindu undivided families and certain association of persons or bodies of individuals, entitled to tax rebate under sections 88 and 88B, the surcharge will be calculated on the amount of income-tax as reduced by the amount of such rebate.

Clause 3 seeks to amend section 2 of the Income-tax Act relating to definitions.

Sub-clause (a) seeks to insert a new sub-clause (ad) in clause (18) of that section.

Under the proposed sub-clause, a company wherein certain shares carrying not less than fifty per cent. of the voting power have been allotted unconditionally to, or acquired unconditionally by, and were throughout the relevant previous year beneficially held by, one or more co-operative societies shall be treated as a "company in which the public are substantially interested" for the purposes of the Act.

Sub-clause (b) seeks to insert sub-clause (ve) in clause (24) of the said section so as to include interest, salary, bonus, commission or remuneration received by a partner from the firm within the definition of income.

These amendments will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent years.

Sub-clause (c) seeks to amend clause (37A) relating to definition of the expression "rate or rates in force".

Under substituted sub-clause (iii) of clause (37A) of section 2, deduction of tax at source from payments made to non-residents will be at the rate or rates of income-tax specified in an agreement entered into by the Central Government under section 90 or the rate or rates of income-tax specified in the annual Finance Act, whichever is applicable.

This amendment will take effect from 1st June, 1992.

Sub-clauses (d) and (e) seek to omit the definitions of "registered firm" and "unregistered firm", consequent upon the new provisions regarding taxation of firms whereby firms are no longer to be assessed as registered or unregistered firms.

These amendments will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1992-93 and earlier years.

Clause 4 seeks to amend section10 of the Act relating to incomes not included in total income.

Sub-clause (a) seeks to insert a new clause (2A) to clarify that a partner of a firm will be exempt from tax on his share in the firm's income. Explanation to this clause clarifies that for purposes of this clause share of a partner in a firm shall be computed by dividing the taxable profits of the firm in the same proportion as the profit sharing ratio mentioned in the partnership deed.

This amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent years.

Sub-clause (b) seeks to amend clause (3) of section 10 relating to non-inclusion of casual and non-recurring receipts up to five thousand rupees in the total income. The proposed amendment seeks to provide that the said benefit will be restricted in respect of winnings from races including horse races to the extent of such receipts as do not exceed two thousand five hundred rupees in the aggregate.

This amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1992.

Clause 35 seeks to amend section 64 of the Income-tax Act relating to inclusion of income of spouse, minor child, etc., in the income of the individual.

In the existing provisions of clause (i) of sub-section (1), the share income of the spouse from the firm is to be clubbed with the income of the other spouse. The provisions of this clause have become unnecessary in view of the new proposals for taxation of firms (see sections 182 -189) whereby the shares of partners in the income of the firm are not to be included in the partner's total income.

Sub-clause (a) (i), therefore, seeks to omit the said clause (i).

Under the existing provisions of clause (ii) of the said sub-section, the income derived by the spouse by way of salary, commission, fees or any other form of remuneration from a concern in which the other spouse has substantial interest is clubbed with the income of the spouse. A proviso to this clause, however, provides that the clause will not apply where the spouse possesses technical or professional qualifications and the income is attributable to the application of his or her technical or professional knowledge or experience.

Sub-clause (a) (ii) substitutes a new proviso for the existing proviso to clause (ii) to provide that the provisions of the said clause will not apply only if the income arises to the spouse from a firm carrying on a profession as is referred to in sub-section (1) of section 44AA and the spouse possesses any technical or professional qualifications in the nature of a degree or diploma of a university within the meaning of clause (c) of the Explanation below sub-section (2B) of section 32A.

Under the existing provisions of clause (iii) of sub-section (1), the income of a minor is clubbed in the income of the parent when such income arises to the minor from his being admitted as a member in a partnership firm or when property is transferred directly or indirectly by the parent either to the minor or to any other person so as to provide income to the minor.

Sub-clause (a) (iii) seeks to omit the said clause (iii) and clause (v) of sub-section (1) in view of the insertion of new sub-section (1A) vide sub-clause (b).

Sub-clauses (a) (iv) to (vii) seek to make consequential amendments, in view of the omission of clause (i) of sub-section (1) and insertion of new sub-section (1A), in clauses (iv), (vi), (vii) and (viii) of sub-section (1).

Sub-clause (a) (viii) seeks to substitute a new Explanation for the existing Explanations 1 and 1A in sub-section (1). The amendments in the new Explanation 1 are only of consequential nature in view of the omission of clauses (i) and (iii) of sub-section (1).

Sub-clause (a) (ix) seeks to omit Explanation 2A in view of the omission of clause (iii) of sub-section (1).

Sub-clause (a) (x) seeks to substitute a new Explanation for Explanation 3 and excludes the clubbing of the income received from the firm, where the transferred assets are invested by way of contribution of capital as a partner in a firm or for being admitted to the partnership of any firm. However, the interest received from the firm on such capital contribution is to be clubbed with the income of the transferor.

Sub-clause (b) seeks to insert a new sub-section (1A) in section 64. The proposed amendment seeks to provide that all income which arises or accrues to the minor is to be included in the income of his parent. However, the income derived by the minor from manual work or from any activity involving his specialised knowledge or experience will not be included in the income of his parent. In the proposed sub-section (1A), it is also being provided that the income of minor will be included in the income of that parent whose total income (excluding the income includible under that sub-section) is greater and where the marriage of the parents does not subsist, the income of minor will be includible in the income of that parent who maintains the minor child in the relevant previous year. Consequential amendments in sub-section (2) of section 64 are also proposed to be made.

These amendments will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent years.

Clause 36 seeks to omit existing section 67 of the Income-tax Act dealing with the method of computing a partner's share in the income of the firm.

Since according to the new proposals for taxation of firms, a partner's share in the income of the firm is not to be included in his total income, the provisions of the existing section are no longer necessary and the existing section is being deleted.

This amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1993-94.

Clause 37 seeks to amend section 71 of the Income-tax Act relating to set off of loss from one head against income from another.

The proposed new sub-section (4) provides that where the net result of computation, in relation to let-out property, under the head "Income from house property" is a loss and the assessee has income assessable under any other head of income, he shall not be entitled to have such loss set off against income under the other head.

This amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will accordingly, apply in relation to assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent years.

Clause 38 seeks to insert a new section 71A in the Income-tax Act.

The proposed new section seeks to provide that where there is loss under the head "Income from house property" on account of interest on borrowed capital referred to in clause (vi) of sub-section (1) of section 24, such loss can be carried forward by the assessee to the following assessment year or years against the income under that head.

This amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will accordingly, apply in relation to assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent years.

Clause 39 seeks to omit sections 75, 76 and 77 of the Income-tax Act dealing with carry forward of losses of registered firms, unregistered firms treated as registered firms or unregistered firms or their partners, consequent upon the new provisions of taxation of firms being introduced whereby firms are no longer to be assessed as registered or unregistered and shares of the partners in the firms are also not to be assessed in their hands.

This amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent years.

Clause 40 seeks to substitute a new sub-section for the existing sub-section (1) of section 78 of the Income-tax Act relating to carry forward of losses in the case of a change in the constitution of a firm.

Under the existing provisions of the sub-section, where a change has occurred in the constitution of the firm, the share of loss of the retiring or deceased partner is not allowed to be carried forward to be set off against the income of the firm after the change. This sub-section also prohibits any partner from taking the benefit of any portion of the said loss which is not apportionable to him under section 67 (now proposed to be repealed).

The new sub-section provides that where a change has occurred in the constitution of the firm, the share of loss of the out-going partners shall not be carried forward to be set off against the income of the new firm. It does not contain the latter part of the original sub-section relating to partners, as the same becomes redundant in view of the new proposals for taxation of firms whereby the share of a partner in firm's income is not to be taxed in his hands.

This amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent years.

Clause 41 seeks to amend section 80A of the Income-tax Act relating to deductions, mentioned in various sections of Chapter VIA, to be made from the gross total income in computing the total income of an assessee.

Sub-section (3) of the section lays down that where deductions under certain sections are allowed in the cases of the firm, association of persons or body of individuals, the same deductions will not be allowed in the assessments of the partners or members in respect of shares from such firms, association of persons or body of individuals. These provisions will no longer be necessary in the case of a firm and its partners in view of the new proposals for taxation of firms, whereby the shares of partners in the firm's income are not to be taxed in their hands. Therefore, under the proposed amendment of the sub-section, references to a firm and its partners are to be omitted so that the sub-section applies only to the association of persons and body of individuals and their members.

This amendment will take effect with effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent years.

Clause 42 seeks to amend section 80CCA of the Income-tax Act relating to deductions in respect of deposits made under savings schemes or payment to a deferred annuity plan.

Sub-clause (a) seeks to provide that no deductions under sub-section (1) shall be allowed, on or after the 1st April, 1992, in relation to any amount deposited or paid under clauses (i) and (ii) of that sub-section.

Sub-clause (b) seeks to provide that no tax will be levied on any amount received by the assessee on account of the surrender of the policy in accordance with the terms of the annuity plan of the Life Insurance Corporation, where the assessee elects to surrender the said annuity plan before the 1st day of October, 1992 in respect of which he had paid any amount under clause (ii) of sub-section (1) before the 1st day of April, 1992.

These amendments will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent years.

Clause 43 seeks to amend section 80CCB of the Income-tax Act relating to deduction in respect of investment made under Equity Linked Savings Schemes.

Clause 45 seeks to amend section 80DD of the Income-tax Act so as to enhance the deduction in respect of medical treatment of handicapped dependants from the present amount of six thousand rupees to twelve thousand rupees and also to remove the existing restriction on the allowability of the deduction only to a person whose total income does not exceed one lakh rupees.

Clause 46 seeks to amend section 80HHC of the Income-tax Act relating to deductions in respect of profits retained for export business.

It is proposed to modify the formula for computation of export profits to the effect that where the assessee, being an Export House or a Trading House issues a disclaimer certificate in favour of a supporting manufacturer, the amount of deduction in the case of such assessee shall be reduced by such amount which bears to the total profits derived by the assessee from the export of trading goods the same proportion as the amount of export turnover specified in the said certificate bears to the total export turnover of the assessee in respect of such trading goods.

It is also proposed that trading goods will mean goods which are neither manufactured by the assessee nor processed by him.

These amendments will take effect from 1st April, 1992.

This amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent years.

Clause 49 seeks to substitute a new section for the existing section 86 of the Income-tax Act.

The existing section 86 consists of two clauses (iii) and (v) only. Clause (iii) provides for rebate on the share income of the partner of an unregistered firm in his own assessment, while clause (v) provides for a similar rebate in the case of a member of an association or body. Consequent to the new proposals regarding taxation of firms, the firms are no longer to be assessed as registered or unregistered firms and partners' shares in the income of the firm are not to be included in their total income. Accordingly the existing clause (iii) is being omitted.

The new section, therefore, deals only with the shares of members of an association of persons or body of individuals in the income of the association or body, and provides that income-tax shall not be payable in respect of such share, although it shall form part of total income of the member.

Proviso to the section lays down that where the association or body is taxed at the maximum marginal rate or any higher rate, the share of the member shall not be included in his total income at all. It is further provided that where no income-tax is chargeable on the total income of the association or body, the share of a member therein shall be chargeable to tax as part of his total income.

Clause 63 seeks to amend sub-section (1) of section 155 of the Income-tax Act, dealing with rectification of a partner's share in the firm's income to withdraw its provisions after the assessment year 1992-93, as the provisions of the sub-section would become redundant consequent upon the new provisions of taxation of firms.

Sub-sections (1) to (3) provide that the partnership should be evidenced by an instrument of partnership wherein the individual shares of the partners are specified and a copy of the same, certified in writing by all the partners, should be filed along with the first return of the firm which should also be signed by all the partners. Wealth-tax Clause 91 seeks to amend section 2 of the Wealth-tax Act relating to the definitions.

Sub-clause (a) seeks to provide that the definition of "assets" given in clause (e), applicable in relation to the assessment year commencing from the 1st day of April, 1970, shall have effect only up to the assessment years commencing before the 1st day of April, 1993.

Sub-clause (b) of the clause inserts a new sub-clause (ea) which defines the term "asset" in relation to the assessment years 1993-94 onwards. The term "asset" includes guest houses and residential houses including a farm house situated within twenty-Five kilometres from the local limits of any municipality (whether known as a municipality, municipal corporation, notified area committee, town area committee, town committee or by any other name) or a cantonment board. It has been clarified that this will not include a house which has been allotted by a company to an employee, or an officer, or a director who is in whole-time employment, having a gross annual salary of less than two lakh rupees. It would not also include a house for residential purposes which forms part of stock-in-trade. Further, it would include motor cars, other than those used in the business of running them on hire, jewellery and bullion (other than those used as stock-in-trade), yachts and boats and aircrafts (other than those used by the assessee for commercial purposes), cash in hand in excess of Rs.50,000 of individuals or Hindu undivided families and in case of other persons any amount not recorded in the books of account. Lastly, "urban land" has also been included in the term "asset" and has been defined in clause (b) of the Explanation.

Sub-clause (c) defines "net wealth" as the aggregate value of all the assets as computed under the Wealth-tax Act in excess of the aggregate value of all the debts owed by the assessee on the valuation date. Clause (m), as now amended, provides that such deductions would be allowed only in respect of debts which are secured on, or which have been incurred in relation, to the said assets.

Clause 92 seeks to amend section 3 of the Wealth-tax Act and provides that the wealth-tax will be charged in respect of the net wealth on the corresponding valuation date of every individual, Hindu undivided family and company at the rate of one per cent. of the amount by which the net wealth exceeds fifteen lakh rupees.

Clause 93 seeks to amend section 4 of the Wealth-tax Act relating to aggregation of assets.

Sub-clause (a) seeks to ensure by omitting the words 'to whom such assets have been transferred by the individual, directly or indirectly, otherwise than for adequate consideration,' from sub-clause (ii) of sub-section (1) of section 4 that all wealth of a minor will be clubbed with that of his parent. The clause provides that in such cases the net wealth will be clubbed with the wealth of that parent whose net wealth (excluding the assets of the minor) is greater. In case the marriage does not subsist, it will be added to the wealth of that parent who maintains the minor. It is further provided that once these assets are included in the wealth of either of the parents, they will not be included in the wealth of the other parent unless the Assessing Officer is satisfied after giving the parent an opportunity of being heard that it is necessary so to do.

In sub-clause (iii), the words 'or minor child (not being a married daughter) or both' are omitted. This will imply that if a minor has been married, the assets held by her shall be clubbed with the wealth of either of her parents in the manner given above. In case of partnership also, this proviso applies for determining the interest of such minor in the firm and thereafter, it would be clubbed in the wealth of the parent in the manner prescribed above.

Clause 94 seeks to insert sub-section (5) in section 5 of the Wealth-tax Act which states that nothing contained in the section relating to exemption of assets mentioned therein shall apply to and in relation to any assessment for the assessment year commencing on the 1st day of April, 1993 or any subsequent year.

Clause 95 seeks to omit the proviso to sub-section (2) of section 7 of the Wealth-tax Act. This is because in respect of a residential house, no basic exemption is sought to be allowed.

Clause 96 seeks to amend section 21 of the Wealth-tax Act by inserting a new sub-section (6) which provides that nothing contained in this section relating to assessment when assets are held by court of wards, administrator-general, etc., shall apply to and in relation to any assessment for the assessment year commencing on the 1st day of April, 1993 or any subsequent year.

Clause 97 seeks to amend section 21A of the Wealth-tax Act. This amendment becomes necessary because of the omission of section 5 of the Wealth-tax Act, references to which had been made in this section. Further, because a flat rate of one per cent. is sought to be prescribed, references to "maximum marginal rate" have been omitted.

Clause 98 seeks to amend section 21AA of the Wealth-tax Act dealing with assessment when assets are held by certain associations of persons.

Sub-clause (a) seeks to omit the reference to maximum marginal rate in sub-section (1) in view of the proposed flat rate of one per cent. to be levied on the net wealth exceeding fifteen lakh rupees.

Sub-clause (b) seeks to omit the existing Explanation as it has become redundant.

Clause 99 seeks to amend section 35 of the Wealth-tax Act.

The amendment seeks to provide that since cases prior to assessment year 1993-94 would also be coming up for rectification, the Assessing Officer is empowered to carry out rectification in respect of such matters, taking into consideration the provisions of section 2(m) (iii) as they stood prior to assessment year 1993-94.

Clause 100 seeks to insert a new section 35HA in the Wealth-tax Act relating to offences by companies. As companies have also been brought within the purview of the Act, this section lays down that where an offence has been committed by a company, every person who was incharge of, and was responsible to, the company for the conduct of the business of the company would be liable to be prosecuted under the said section. This section also defines the expressions "company" and "director" for the purposes of the section.

Clause 101 seeks to amend section 37A of the Wealth-tax Act relating to search and seizure on the lines of similar amendment made in section 132 of the Income-tax Act vide clause 59. Certain amendments of a consequential nature are also proposed in section 37A.

These amendments will take effect from 1st June, 1992.

Clause 102 seeks to amend section 45 of the Wealth-tax Act so as to restrict the exemption from wealth-tax only to co-operative societies, political parties, social clubs and Mutual Funds. The said amendment becomes necessary since companies are now included as assessees for the purposes of levy of wealth-tax.

Clause 103 seeks to amend Schedule I of the Wealth-tax Act. The amendment becomes necessary as a flat rate of tax is now being levied which is provided for in section 3(2) of the Act. Part I of the Schedule shall apply in cases which are governed under the law as it existed prior to the 1st day of April, 1993. Part II of Schedule I relating to the rate of tax in case of companies has been omitted because now the companies are also to be taxed at a flat rate mentioned in new sub-section (2) of section 3 of the Act. Rules 1, 3, 4 and 5 occurring after Schedule I have also been omitted.

Clause 104 seeks to omit Scheudle II of the Wealth-tax Act. the said Schedule relates to the description of articles or things which are mentioned in section 5. The effect of the said section is proposed to be limited vide clause 94.

Clause 105 seeks to omit Part C of Schedule III of the Wealth-tax Act relating to the rules for determining the value of shares and debentures in companies as they do not fall within the new definition of "assets".

The amendments proposed vide clauses 91 to 105 (except clause 101) will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent years.

Interest-tax

Clause 106 seeks to amend section 2 of the Interest-tax Act, 1974 relating to definitions.

The proposed amendment seeks to exempt all cooperative societies engaged in carrying on the business of banking from the interest-tax leviable under the Act by excluding such societies from the definition of "credit institution" given in clause (5A) of section 2. The said amendment also seeks to include residuary non-banking companies [other than financial companies as already defined in clause (5B)] which receive deposits under any scheme or arrangement, by whatever name called, in one lump-sum or in instalments by way of contributions or subscriptions or by sale of units or certificates or other instruments or in any other manner within the definition of "financial company".

PROVISIONS RELATING TO DIRECT TAXES

The provisions in the Finance Bill, 1992, in the sphere of direct taxes relate to the following matters:

(i) Prescribing the rates of income-tax on incomes liable to tax for the assessment year 1992-93; the rates at which tax will be deductible at source during the financial year 1992-93 from interest (including interest on securities), dividends, salaries paid to employees, winnings from lotteries or crossword puzzles, winnings from horse-race, insurance commission and other categories of income liable to deduction of tax at source under the Income-tax Act; rates for computation of "advance tax" and charging of income-tax on current incomes in certain cases for the financial year 1992-93.

(ii) The Finance (No.2) Act, 1991, provided that in the case of any income chargeable to tax under the head "Salaries" or in respect of which advance tax is to be paid, where the total income in such cases exceeds seventy-five thousand rupees, the amount of income-tax deducted or the advance tax paid, was to be increased by a surcharge calculated at the rate of 12 per cent. of such income-tax in the case of non-corporate taxpayers and 15 per cent. in the case of companies. Further, in respect of any payment by way of interest, dividends, winnings from lotteries or crossword puzzles, winnings from horse-races or payments to contractors and sub-contractors, the amount of tax deducted at source had to be increased by a surcharge calculated at the rate of 15 per cent of the tax deducted in the case of companies and at the rate of 12 per cent., in other cases. However, surcharge was not to be paid or deducted at source in respect of any income or any payment made to a non-resident or a foreign company.

The provision for levy of surcharge has, therefore, been incorporated in Part I of the First Schedule to the Bill.

(iii) It is proposed to continue the levy of surcharge -

(a) in the case of a company, at the rate of 15 per cent. of the tax;

(b) in the case of other taxpayers, at the rate of 12 per cent. of the tax, for the purpose of deduction of tax at source, computation of advance tax and charging of tax on current income in certain cases during 1992-93. However, in the case of non-corporate persons, surcharge is proposed to be levied only where the total income exceeds one lakh rupees. No surcharge will be levied on incomes in respect of which payment is made to a non-resident or a foreign company, or incomes on which advance tax is payable by the non-resident or the foreign company.

(iv) Amendment of the Income-tax Act, 1961, with a view to restructuring the tax system, promoting welfare, widening the tax base, rationalisation of certain provisions and on account of certain other matters.

(v) Amendment of the Wealth-tax Act, 1957, with a view to restricting the applicability of the provisions only to certain defined non-productive "assets" and to include all companies within its ambit.

(vi) Amendment of the Expenditure-tax Act, 1987, with a view to excluding air-conditioned restaurants from its scope, raising the limit of its applicability to hotels having room rent of Rs.1200 or more and withdrawing the exemption to expenditure incurred in foreign exchange.

(vii) Amendment of the Interest-tax Act, 1974, with a view to modifying the scope of the term "credit institution" in order to include residuary non-banking companies and to exclude co-operative societies engaged in the business of banking.

2. Subject to certain exceptions, which have been indicated while dealing with the relevant provisions, the Bill follows the principle that changes in the rates of tax, as also in the provisions of the tax laws, should ordinarily be made operative prospectively in relation to current incomes and not in relation to income of past years. The provisions relating to deduction of tax at source have been generally made applicable with effect from 1st June, 1992. The substance of the main provisions in the Bill relating to direct taxes is explained in the following paragraphs.

INCOME-TAX

I. Rates of income-tax in respect of incomes liable to tax for the assessment year 1992-93

In respect of incomes of all categories of taxpayers (corporate as well as non-corporate) liable to tax for the assessment year 1992-93, the rates of income-tax (including surcharge thereon) have been specified in Part I of the First Schedule to the Bill and are the same as those laid down in Part III of the First Schedule to the Finance (No.2) Act, 1991, for the purposes of computation of "advance tax", deduction of tax at source from salaries and charging of tax payable in certain cases during the financial year 1991-92.

II. Rates for deduction of tax at source during the financial year from income other than "Salaries"

The rates for deduction of income-tax at source during the financial year 1992-93 from incomes other than "Salaries" have been specified in Part II of the First Schedule to the Bill. These rates apply to income by way of interest on securities, interest other than 'interest on securities', dividends, insurance commission, winnings from lotteries, crossword puzzles and horse-races and income of non-residents (including non-resident Indians) other than salary income. These rates are basically the same as those specified in Part II of the First Schedule to the Finance (No.2) Act, 1991, for purposes of deduction of tax at source during the financial year 1991-92.

III. Rates for deduction of tax at source from "Salaries", computation of "advance tax" and charging of income-tax in special cases during the financial year 1992-93

The rates for deduction of tax at source from "Salaries" during the financial year 1992-93 and also for the computation of "advance tax" payable during that year in the case of all categories of taxpayers have been specified in Part III of the First Schedule to the Bill. These rates are also applicable for charging income-tax during the financial year 1992-93 on current incomes in cases where accelerated assessments have to be made, e.g., provisional assessment of shipping profits arising in India to non-residents, assessment of persons leaving India for good during the financial year 1992-93, assessment of persons who are likely to transfer property to avoid tax or where an order has to be passed in a case of search and seizure for calculating the amount of tax on the estimated undisclosed income, etc. The salient features of the rates prescribed in the said Part III are indicated in the following paragraphs.

IV. Individuals, Hindu undivided families, etc.

Raising of exemption limit:-The exemption limit in the case of individuals, Hindu undivided families (other than those with one or more members having independent income exceeding the exemption limit), association of persons, etc., is proposed to be raised from Rs.22,000 to Rs.28,000.

Modification in the rates of income-tax:-It is proposed to re-structure (a) the rate schedule applicable in the case of individuals, Hindu undivided families(other than those having at least one member with independent total income exceeding the exemption limit), associations of persons, bodies of individuals and artificial juridical persons; and (b) the rate schedule applicable in the case of Hindu undivided families with one or more members having independent income exceeding the exemption limit. Table 1 and Table 2 below give the rates of income-tax applicable to the aforesaid categories of taxpayers (a) as specified in Part I of the First Schedule to the Bill, i.e., the existing rates; and (b) as specified in Part III of the First Schedule to the Bill, i.e., the proposed rates.

V. Co-operative Societies

In the case of co-operative societies, the rates of income-tax have been specified in Paragraph B of Part III of the First Schedule to the Bill. These rates are the same as those specified in the corresponding Paragraph of Part I of the First Schedule to the Bill.

VI. Firms

In the case of firms, rate of income-tax has been specified in Paragraph C of Part III of the First Schedule to the Bill. Income-tax will be levied in the case of every firm at the rate of forty per cent. on the whole of the total income. The distinction for income-tax rate purposes between firms deriving income mainly from profession and other firms is proposed to be deleted.

VII. Local Authorities

In the case of local authorities, the rate of income-tax has been specified in Paragraph D of Part III of the First Schedule to the Bill. In such cases, income-tax will be levied at the rate of thirty per cent., instead of at the rate of fifty per cent. as at present, on the whole of the total income.

VIII. Companies

In the case of companies, the rates of income-tax have been specified in Paragraph E of Part III of the First Schedule to the Bill. These rates are the same as those specified in the corresponding Paragraph of Part I of the First Schedule to the Bill.

IX. Surcharge

Surcharge on income-tax for purposes of the Union is currently levied at the rate of twelve per cent. in the case of all the categories of resident non-corporate taxpayers having total income exceeding seventy-five thousand rupees. Surcharge at the aforesaid rate, for purposes of the Union, is now proposed to be levied on income exceeding one hundred thousand rupees in these cases. In the case of domestic companies, surcharge will, however, continue to be levied at the rate of fifteen per cent. of the amount of income-tax where the income exceeds seventy-five thousand rupees.

X. Partially integrated taxation of non-agricultural income with income derived from agriculture

As in the past, the Finance Bill provides that in the case of individuals, Hindu undivided families, associations of persons, etc., the net agricultural income will be taken into account for the computation of "advance tax" and charging of income-tax. The net agricultural income will be computed in accordance with the rules contained in Part IV of the First Schedule. These provisions are broadly on the same lines as those in earlier years.

[Clause 2]

WELFARE MEASURES

Relief in respect of medical treatment of handicapped dependants

Under the provisions of section 80 DD of the Income-tax Act, a deduction of rupees six thousand is allowed in respect of expenditure incurred by a resident assessee being an individual or a Hindu undivided family, on the medical treatment, training and rehabilitation etc., of handicapped dependants. The deduction is not allowed to a person whose total income exceeds one lakh rupees.

With a view to compensating for the increased cost of the aforesaid treatment and rehabilitation, as also to help the guardians provide better facilities to their handicapped dependants, it is proposed to amend section 80 DD in order to provide for a higher deduction of twelve thousand rupees as against six thousand rupees allowed at present. Further, since treatment and rehabilitation of such persons is a heavy burden on all parents, no matter what the level of income be, it is proposed to remove the income ceiling of one lakh rupees for being eligible for this deduction.

The proposed amendments will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent assessment years. [Clause 45]

Tax incentive to working women

In computing the income under the head "Salaries", a standard deduction of a sum equal to 33-1/3 per cent. of the salary or twelve thousand rupees, whichever is less, is allowed under section 16 of the Income-tax Act.

With a view to giving an incentive to women and to improve their socio-economic conditions, the Bill seeks to provide for an enhanced standard deduction of fifteen thousand rupees in respect of working women whose total income before making the standard deduction does not exceed seventy-five thousand rupees.

The proposed amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent assessment years. [Clause 7]

Special relief for senior citizens

With a view to helping senior citizens meet the increased expenses in their old age, the Bill seeks to insert a new section 88B in the Income-tax Act to provide for a special tax relief in the form of an additional rebate of ten per cent. from the tax payable by persons who have attained the age of 65 years and have a gross total income not exceeding fifty thousand rupees.

The proposed amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent assessment years. [Clauses 50 and 52]

Modification of the provisions relating to exemption in respect of payments under voluntary retirement schemes

Section l0(l0C) of the Income-tax Act exempts from income-tax any payment received by an employee of a public sector company at the time of his voluntary retirement in accordance with any scheme which the Central Government may, having regard to the economic viability of such company and other relevant circumstances, approve in this behalf. This exemption is available to any employee, whether a workman or an executive.

With a view to improving their productivity and efficiency and to make themselves economically viable, a number of companies in the private sector have formulated schemes for payment of lumpsum compensation and some other terminal benefits to the workmen and the executives on voluntary retirement. It has been represented that the monetary benefit of the compensation received gets diluted as the compensation is subjected to income-tax.

The Bill, therefore, seeks to amend section l0(l0C) of the Income-tax Act to provide income-tax exemption to any amount received by an employee of a public sector company or of any other company at the time of his voluntary retirement in accordance with any scheme or schemes of voluntary retirement. The schemes of the said companies are to be in accordance with the guidelines to be prescribed which may include the criteria of economic viability. In the case of companies other than public sector companies, the schemes are to be approved by the Chief Commissioner or Director-General.

This amendment will take effect from 1st April,l993 and, accordingly, will apply in relation to assessment year l993-94 and subsequent assessment years. [Clause 4]

Under the provisions of section 88 of the Income-tax Act, a rebate, at the rate of 20 per cent. of the amount paid by way of life insurance premia, contribution to provident fund or subscription to certain notified schemes, etc., is allowed to an individual from the tax payable. This is subject to a limit of fourteen thousand rupees in the case of authors, playwrights, artists, musicians, actors and sportsmen and of ten thousand rupees in all other cases.

The earning life of an author, playwright, artist, musician, actor or sportsman from his respective profession is substantially shorter than in most other cases. His earnings depend substantially on popularity, current trends and form. He, therefore, requires an incentive for higher than normal savings during the short but active and remunerative period of his career. With this end in view, the Bill seeks to provide for a higher tax rebate for authors, playwrights, artists, musicians, actors and sportsmen, at the rate of 25 per cent. of the contribution to life insurance premia, provident fund or subscription to certain notified schemes, etc., as against 20 per cent. allowed normally. It is also proposed to raise the ceiling of the maximum rebate in their case from fourteen thousand rupees to seventeen thousand five hundred rupees. With a view to allowing this concession only to a person who has a significant portion of his income from the aforesaid profession, it is proposed that the enhanced rebate will be allowed only to such persons in whose case the income from his profession as author, playwright, artist, musician, actor or sportsman is at least 25 per cent. of his total income.

The proposed amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent assessment years. [Clause 51]

Exemption of perquisite in the form of medical benefits provided by employer in private hospitals

For the purpose of computing income under the head "Salaries", the taxable salary includes the value of any benefit or amenity granted free of charge or at concessional rate by the employer. The Finance (No.2) Act, 1991 amended section 17 of the Income-tax Act with a view to providing, in the law itself, exemption from tax in respect of perquisite in the form of medical facilities provided by the employer. Exemption from tax is available, inter alia, in respect of reimbursement, by the employer, of expenditure incurred by the employee in hospitals, dispensaries etc. maintained by the Government, local authority, or in a hospital approved by the Government for the purposes of medical treatment of its employees.

The restriction that, for claiming exemption, medical treatment should be in a hospital approved by the Government, leaves out all cases where the treatment has been undergone in a hospital not so approved. With a view to mitigating this hardship, the Bill seeks to liberalise the provisions relating to medical benefit provided by the employer in case of hospitalisation. It is, accordingly, proposed that exemption will be extended to expenses incurred by the employer on medical treatment of the employee or his family in hospitals other than those approved by the Government for the medical treatment of its employees. However, to prevent misuse of the provision, it is proposed to provide that this concession will be allowed only where the payment in respect of the expenditure is made directly by the employer to the hospital and in respect of specified diseases or ailments to be prescribed in the Income-tax Rules. The tax concession will be extended to expenditure incurred in such hospitals and nursing homes as are approved by the Chief Commissioner of Income-tax in accordance with guidelines to be prescribed.

Under the existing provisions of section 17 of the Income-tax Act, there is a restriction that the expenditure on travel abroad for medical treatment would be exempt only in the case of employees whose gross total income is below Rs.100,000. With a view to extending the scope of the exemption to a larger number of employees, the Bill proposes to amend section 17 to secure that the restriction does not apply to employees whose gross total income is below Rs.2,00,000.

The proposed amendments will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent assessment years. [Clause 8]

Increase in the tax relief in respect of medical insurance premia

Under the provisions of section 80D of the Income-tax Act, a deduction of Rs.3,000 is allowed in respect of any sum paid by an assessee to effect an insurance on his health and that of members of his family (including dependant parents).

Since self-employed persons do not have the support of any employer for their medical treatment, it is necessary to provide adequate incentives to them for effecting medical insurance for themselves and for members of their families in order to cover unforeseen expenses on account of medical treatment. It is also desirable to encourage salaried persons who are not provided adequate medical facilities by their employers to take up medical insurance. In view of this, the Bill seeks to amend section 80D with a view to raising the monetary limit of deduction from Rs.3,000 at present to Rs.6,000.

The proposed amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent assessment years. [Clause 44]

Exemption of compensation received by victims of Bhopal gas leak disaster

Pursuant to the decision of the Supreme Court, victims of Bhopal gas leak disaster, are to be paid compensation in accordance with the provisions of the Bhopal Gas Leak Disaster(Processing of Claims)Act, 1985. With a view to providing relief to these persons, it is proposed to insert a new clause (10BB) in section 10 of the Income-tax Act providing for exemption from income-tax on such compensation. However, compensation received by an assessee in respect of an expenditure which has been incurred and allowed as a deduction from taxable income, will not be exempt from income-tax.

The proposed amendment will come into effect from 1st April, 1992 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to assessment year 1992-93 and subsequent assessment years. [Clause 4]

Income-tax exemption to co-operative societies promoting the interests of the members of the Scheduled Castes or the Scheduled Tribes

Section 10(26B) of the Income-tax Act provides for income-tax exemption in respect of income derived by any body, institution or association wholly financed by the Central or any State Government where such body, institution or association has been set up for promoting the interests of the members of the Scheduled Castes or Scheduled Tribes. Certain co-operative societies which are so set up, however, do not get this concession as these are not wholly financed by the Government. In order to provide income-tax exemption to the income of such co-operative societies, the Bill seeks to insert a new clause (27) in section l0 of the Income-tax Act to provide that any income of a co-operative society whose membership consists only of other co-operative socieities, and such society is financed by the members thereof and the Government, will be exempt from income-tax.

This amendment will take effect retrospectively from lst April, l989, and will, accordingly, apply in relation to assessment year 1989-90 and subsequent assessment years. [Clause 4]

MEASURES AGAINST TAX AVOIDANCE

Clubbing of minors' income

Section 64 of the Income-tax Act provides that in computing the total income of any individual, there shall be included all such income as arises directly or indirectly to a minor child of such individual from,-

(i) the admission of the minor to the benefits of partnership in a firm,

(ii) assets transferred directly or indirectly to the minor child by such individual otherwise than for adequate consideration, and

(iii) assets transferred directly or indirectly by such individual to any person or association of persons otherwise than for adequate consideration, to the extent to which income from such assets is for the immediate or deferred benefit of such individual's minor child.

In reality as well as in law, the minor children cannot administer their property nor can they take decisions on the disposal of income arising therefrom. These responsibilities fall on the parents, who, for all practical purposes treat and use this income as part of their own income. Exclusion of minor children's income from the income of their parents also leads to tax avoidance. The existing provisions of section 64 with regard to clubbing of minors' income have also led to litigation between Income-tax Department and the assessees.

The Bill, therefore, seeks to amend section 64 of the Income-tax Act to provide that all income of a minor is to be included in the income of his parent. However, the income derived by the minor from manual work or from any activity involving his specialised knowledge or experience will not be included in the income of his parent. It is also being provided that the income of the minor will be included in the income of that parent whose total income is greater. Where the marriage of the parents does not subsist,the income of the minor will be includible in the income of that parent who maintains the minor child in the relevant previous year.

The Bill also seeks to insert a new clause (32) in section 10 of the Income-tax Act so as to provide that in case the income of an individual includes the income of his minor child in terms of section 64 of the Act, such individual shall be entitled to exemption of one thousand five hundred rupees in respect of each minor child if the income of such minor, as includible under section 64, exceeds that amount. However, where the income of any minor so includible is less than one thousand five hundred rupees, the aforesaid exemption shall be restricted to the income so included in the total income of the individual. This provision is proposed to provide relief to the individual in whose total income the income of the minor child is to be included.

These amendments will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent assessment years. [Clauses 4 and 35]

Provision for taxation of benefit by way of remission or cessation of trading liability in the hands of recipient

Under the existing provisions of sub-section (1) of section 41 of the Income-tax Act, where an assessee who has been allowed deduction in respect of any loss, expenditure or trading liability in any year obtains any amount in respect of such loss or expenditure or any benefit in respect of trading liability by way of remission or cessation thereof, the amount obtained by him or the value of benefit accruing to him is deemed to be profits and gains of business or profession. However, it has been held by Courts that such an amount or benefit can be charged to tax only if the assessee who receives the amount or benefit is the same person who was allowed the deduction earlier.

With a view to ensuring that there is no loss of revenue and undue enrichment, it is proposed to amend this provision so as to tax the amount or benefit, as the case may be, even if the recipient is a person other than the person who was allowed the deduction earlier under certain circumstances.

The proposed amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent assessment years. [Clause 18]

MODIFICATION OF TAX CONCESSIONS RELATING TO SAVINGS

Under the provisions of section 80CCA of the Income-tax Act, full deduction is allowed from the gross total income of a taxpayer in respect of deposits made under National Savings Scheme or payment to a specfied annuity plan of the Life Insurance Corporation, subject to a limit of Rs.40,000. When any amount standing to the credit of the taxpayer under the aforesaid schemes in respect of which a deduction has been allowed, together with interest accrued thereon, is withdrawn, it is deemed to be the income in the year of withdrawal. Similarly, any amount received on surrender of a policy or as annuity or bonus in accordance with the specified annuity plan of the Life Insurance Corporation is also deemed to be the income of the taxpayer in the year of receipt.

Likewise, the provisions of section 80CCB stipulate full deduction in relation to investment made in the units of any plan, framed in accordance with the Equity Linked Savings Scheme of specified Mutual Funds or of the Unit Trust of India, subject to a limit of Rs.10,000. When an amount, in respect of which deduction has been allowed, is returned to the taxpayer, the same is deemed to be the income of the taxpayer in the year of its receipt.

Under the existing provisions of section 80L of the Income-tax Act, deduction in respect of income from interest on certain securities, deposits, debentures as well as income from dividends and from units of the Unit Trust of India is allowed upto Rs.13,000.

As part of a package which includes raising of the exemption limit and reduction in the rates of personal taxation, the Bill seeks to withdraw the deduction under sections 80CCA and 80CCB in respect of payments made under the aforesaid schemes after 31st March, 1992. It is also proposed to withdraw the exemption available under section 80L in respect of unearned incomes like dividend, bank interest, etc.

These withdrawals are coupled with an enlargement of the scope of tax rebate under section 88. It is proposed to include for the purposes of tax rebate under section 88, schemes which are, at present, included for concession under sections 80CCA and 80CCB as well as contributions to pension funds set up by National Housing Bank and approved Mutual Funds. Thus, a person who has effected a contract for annuity plan will, if he continues with the annuity plan, henceforth be eligible for the tax rebate under section 88. However, in order to mitigate the hardship of any person who desires to opt out of the annuity plan of the Life Insurance Corporation before 1st October, 1992, as a result of the withdrawal of the tax concession under section 80CCA, the amount received on surrender of such annuity plan will not be deemed to be his income in the year of receipt.

The proposed amendments will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent assessment years. [Clauses 42, 43 and 48]

MEASURES TO WIDEN THE TAX BASE

Special provisions for persons engaged in retail trade

For a country with a population above 800 millions, the total number of taxpayers is very small —less than one per cent. of the population. With a view to building an atmosphere of trust and confidence and also to widen the tax base by encouraging small retail traders to pay their taxes, the Bill seeks to introduce a new, simplified procedure for taxation. The salient features of the simplified procedure are as follows:-

(a) the scheme is optional;

(b) it is open to individuals and HUFs, not assessed to tax earlier, who have income from the business of retail trade having an annual turnover upto five lakh rupees;

(c) persons opting for the simplified procedure should not have any income chargeable to tax from any source other than retail trade;

(d) such persons will not be required to file any income tax return. Chapter XIV relating to "Procedure for assessment" will not apply in their case. Instead, a simple prescribed statement containing the name, address, nature of business, and a declaration that the person's turnover does not exceed five lakh rupees has to be furnished along with a verification;

(e) the person opting for the simplified procedure will be deemed to have a turnover of five lakh rupees and his total income will be deemed to be 7 per cent. of this turnover. No deduction under Chapter VI-A or rebate under Chapter VIII will be made. Thus, in effect, his total income will be presumed to be Rs.35,000, on which the tax works out to Rs.1,400;

(f) the tax of Rs.1,400 is required to be paid along with the prescribed statement by the 15th March of the financial year in which the income is earned;

(g) there will be no enquiry nor assessment;

(h) no proceeding under any other provision of the Income-tax Act will be initiated against a person opting for the scheme, in respect of his income from retail trade for the assessment year for which the statement under the scheme has been filed, unless the Department has evidence in its possession that the statement furnished by the person is untrue;

(i) the scheme will be in force initially for two assessment years, viz. assessment years 1993-94 and 1994-95.

Thus, in effect, a retail trader opting for the scheme has only to file the simplified statement, pay the tax of Rs.1,400 and be done with it. The proposed amendment will apply in relation to assessment years 1993-94 and 1994-95. [Clause 58]

Modifications relating to house property income

Under the provisions of the second proviso to sub-section (1) of section 23 of the Income-tax Act, a deduction of Rs.3600 is allowed from the annual value of a house property, in respect of new residential units. The deduction is allowed for a period of five years from the date of completion of such unit.

With the reduction in the rate of personal taxation, there is need for withdrawing many of the tax concessions and rationalising the provisions relating to house property income. The Bill, accordingly, seeks to amend section 23 in order to provide that no deduction will be allowed for new residential units completed after 31st March, 1992.

Under the provisions of section 24 of the Income-tax Act, deduction is allowed at the rate of 1/6th of the "annual value" towards repair of the house property. This is allowed irrespective of whether or not any expenditure is incurred on repairs. Another item under section 24 relates to deduction in respect of collection charges. This deduction is based on actuals subject to a maximum of 6% of the "annual value" of the property. In practice, however, many taxpayers claim deduction of the entire 6% of the "annual value" as collection charges, irrespective of the actual expenditure incurred.This leads to avoidable disputes and administrative work, without any significant revenue implication.

With a view to rationalising and simplifying the aforesaid deductions, the Bill seeks to provide that an amount equal to 1/5th of the "annual value" of the property will be allowed as a composite standard deduction both for repair of the house property and for collection of rent.

Section 24 of the Income-tax Act also provides for a deduction in respect of the current interest liability on money borrowed for the acquisition, construction, repair or renewal of the property. It has been noticed that in many cases, taxpayers show negative income from house property, largely because of the deduction allowed in respect of interest on money borrowed. This negative income is then set off against income from other sources such as salaries, business or professional income, etc. There is no justification in allowing negative income from house property to be set off against income from other heads.

The Bill, therefore, seeks to amend the provisions of the Income-tax Act relating to carry forward and set off, with a view to providing that the loss from house property will not be allowed to set off against income under any other head of income. Further, the carry forward of loss of any year from house property will be allowed to be set off only against income from house property of subsequent years.

The proposed amendments will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent assessment years. [Clause 9,10,37 and 38]

MEASURES FOR SIMPLIFICATION AND RATIONALISATION

Enlarging the scope of definition of the expression "company in which the public are substantially interested"

The definition of the expression "company in which the public are substantially interested" is provided in clause (18) of section 2 of the Income-tax Act. The company fulfilling the requirements of any one of sub-clauses of clause (18) of section 2 is treated as a company in which the public are substantially interested and is taxed at a rate lower than the rate applicable to other companies. Under the existing provision, a company formed by cooperative societies cannot be treated as a company in which the public are substantially interested.

The proposed amendment seeks to insert a new sub-clause(ad) in clause 18 of section 2 of the Income-tax Act to provide that a company where shares carrying not less than fifty per cent of the voting power have been allotted unconditionally to, or acquired unconditionally by, and are throughout the relevant previous year held by one or more co-operative societies, shall be treated as a "company in which the public are substantially interested".

The proposed amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent assessment years. [Clause 3]

Modification of the provisions regarding "rates in force"

Under the existing scheme of deduction of tax at source, even in cases where a lower rate of tax is provided with regard to an item of income in a tax treaty entered into by the Central Government with the Government of a country outside India, tax has to be deducted at the rate prescribed in the Income-tax Act or the relevant Finance Act. As a result, in many cases, the amount of tax deducted from sums remitted to the residents of tax treaty -partner countries is larger than the final tax liability, thus requiring filing of claims for refund.

With a view to correcting this position, the Bill seeks to amend section 2(37A) of the Income-tax Act to secure that deduction of tax at source from payments made to non-residents will be at the rate or rates of tax specified in an agreement entered into by the Central Government under section 90 of the Income-tax Act or the rate or rates of tax specified in the annual Finance Act, whichever is applicable.

This amendment will take effect from 1st June, 1992. [Clause 3]

Modification of the provisions of section 10(6)(viia), 10(6A) and 115A of the Income-tax Act

Section 10(6)(viia) of the Income-tax Act provides for exemption from income-tax to the tax paid by the employer on behalf of the foreign technicians for a maximum period of 48 months from the date of his arrival in India, subject to certain conditions. One of the conditions is that the contract of service of the technician in India is approved by the Central Government.

Section 10(6A) of the Income-tax Act provides that where in the case of a foreign company deriving income by way of royalty or fees for technical services received from the Government or an Indian concern in pursuance of an agreement made after the 31st day of March, 1976 and approved by the Central Government, the tax on such income is payable, under the terms of such agreement, by Government or the Indian concern, the tax so paid is not to be included in the total income of the foreign company.

Section 115A of the Income-tax Act provides that where the total income of a foreign company includes any income by way of royalty or fees of technical services received from the Government or an Indian concern in pursuance of an agreement made after the 31st day of March, 1976 and where such agreement is with an Indian concern, the agreement is approved by the Central Government, the income-tax payable on income by way of royalty or fees for technical services is to be thirty per cent thereof.

The Government tabled a Statement on Industrial Policy in both the Houses of Parliament on July 24, 1991. The statement has substantially liberalised the provisions and simplified the procedures regarding foreign technology agreements. No approval of the Government is henceforth necessary for hiring of foreign technicians. The powers of the Government have been delegated to the Reserve Bank of India for foreign testing of indigenous raw materials and products and indigenously developed technology.

The Bill, therefore, seeks to amend,-

(i) section 10(6)(viia) of the Income-tax Act, so as to omit the condition of approval by the Central Government of the contract of service of a foreign technician or extension of his employment after a period of 24 months commencing from the date of his arrival in India,

(ii) section 10(6A) of the Income-tax Act to provide that the agreement, under which royalty or fees for technical services received by a foreign company, should either be approved by the Central Government or where the agreement relates to a matter included in the Industrial Policy, for the time being in force, of the Government of India, such agreement is in accordance with that policy, and

(iii) section 115A of the Income-tax Act to provide that the agreement, under which royalty or fees for technical services are received by a foreign company from an Indian concern, should be either approved by the Central Government or where the agreement relates to a matter included in the Industrial Policy, for the time being in force, of the Government of India, such agreement is in accordance with that policy.

Extension of benefit of section 33AC to Government shipping companies

Under the existing provisions of section 33AC of the Income-tax Act, a deduction of an amount credited to a reserve account for the purpose of utilisation in a specified manner is allowed, subject to certain conditions, in case of a public company formed and registered in India with the main object of carrying on the business of operation of ships.

The proposed amendment seeks to extend the benefit of deduction available under the provisions of section 33AC to a Government company as defined in section 617 of the Companies Act, 1956.

The proposed amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent assessment years. [Clause 12]

Deferment of unabsorbed carried forward depreciation and investment allowance

Under the existing provisions of the Income-tax Act, unabsorbed depreciation allowance and unabsorbed investment allowance are allowed as deductions in the computation of income from business or profession.

The Bill proposes to introduce a new section 34A in the Income-tax Act to provide that in the case of domestic companies, only sixty-six and two-third per cent. of unabsorbed depreciation allowance or unabsorbed investment allowance or the aggregate of such allowances carried forward from earlier years shall be allowed to be deducted from the business income of the previous year relevant to the assessment year commencing on the 1st day of April, 1992 and the balance shall be carried forward and allowed in the subsequent years until the same is absorbed. However, to ensure that marginal cases are not affected, it is proposed to restrict the operation of this amendment only to cases where such brought forward allowance is Rs. 1,00,000 or more.

This amendment will take effect from 1st April,1992 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1992-93 only. [Clause13]

Enlarging the meaning of "financial corporation" to include "Government company"

Under the existing provisions of clause (viii) of sub-section(1) of section 36 of the Income-tax Act, a deduction in respect of a special reserve of an amount not exceeding 40 per cent. of the total income, as stipulated therein, carried to such reserve account is allowed, within specified limits, inter alia, to a financial corporation engaged in providing long-term finance for industrial or agricultural development.

The term "financial corporation" has been defined in the Explanation to the aforesaid clause to include a public company. It has been provided in clause(b) of the Explanation that public company shall have the meaning assigned to it in section 3 of the Companies Act, 1956. As the expression "public company" does not include "Government company", it is proposed to amend the definition of "financial corporation" so as to include "Government company" as defined in section 617 of the Companies Act, 1956 to become eligible for deduction under clause(viii) of sub-section(1) of section 36.

The proposed amendment will take effect retrospectively from 1st April, 1987 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to assessment year 1987-88 and subsequent assessment years. [Clause14]

Increasing the limit of allowable business expenses

Under section 37 of the Income-tax Act, there are restrictions on the quantum of expenses allowable as entertainment expenditure. Similarly, there are restrictions under sub-section (12) of section 40A of the Income-tax Act on the admissible expenditure for services in connection with any proceeding under the Income-tax Act.

The Bill proposes to liberalise the allowable deductions as under:-

(a) In respect of entertainment expenditure, actual expenditure upto Rs 10,000 and 50 per cent. of the balance;

(b) In respect of expenditure for services in connection with any proceeding under the Income-tax Act, the actual expenses.

The proposed amendments will take effect from 1st April,1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent years. [Clauses 15 and 17)

Exclusion of persons assessed on presumptive basis from requirement of compulsory audit

Under section 44AB of the Income-tax Act, every person carrying on business or profession is required to get his accounts audited, if his total sales in business or gross receipts of profession exceed Rs.40 lakhs or Rs.10 lakhs respectively.

The purpose of compulsory audit under the provisions of section 44AB is to ensure that the true income is reflected in the return of income through the books of account duly audited. However, under sections 44AC, 44B, 44BB, 44BBA and 44BBB, income chargeable to tax is determined on presumptive basis and the provisions of sections 28 to 43C do not apply. Accordingly, it is proposed to exclude these assessees from the purview of compulsory audit.

The proposed amendment will take effect retrospectively from 1st April, 1985 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to assessment year 1985-86 and subsequent assessment years. [Clause 20]

Withdrawal of presumptive tax in respect of certain trades

Under section 44AC of the Income-tax Act, for computing profits and gains of persons engaged in trading in country liquor, timber obtained under forest lease, timber obtained by any other mode other than under a forest lease and any other forest produce not being timber, a prescribed percentage of the purchase price is deemed to be the profit in respect of trading in such specified goods.

Having regard to the controversy on the interpretation of the provisions of section 44AC and the administrative difficulties in the implementation of this provision, it is proposed to delete the section.

The proposed amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent years.

However, section 206C providing for collection of tax at source in respect of these cases shall continue to remain in force with certain amendments consequential to the deletion of section 44AC of the Income-tax Act. The amended section takes effect from 1st April, 1992. [Clauses 21 and 81]

Rationalisation of provisions relating to tax concession for export profits

Under the provisions of section 80HHC of the Income-tax Act, exporters are allowed, in the computation of their total income, a deduction of the entire profits derived from export. The Finance (No.2) Act, 1991 amended section 80HHC in order to provide for a dual system of computation of export profits. In case where the export is of goods manufactured by the taxpayer, the export profit is computed in the ratio of export turnover to total turnover. Where the export is of goods purchased from third party, i.e. "trading goods", the export profit is calculated by deducting from the export turnover, the direct and indirect costs attributable to such export. "Trading goods" have been defined to mean goods not manufactured by the assessee. Thus, even where goods are processed they are treated as trading goods. To remove this anomaly, it is proposed to define trading goods as "goods not manufactured or processed by the assessee".

Another point relates to the disclaimer of the tax concession under section 80HHC by a recognised Export or Trading House in favour of supporting manufacturers. When an Export or Trading House disclaims the concession, the deduction in the case of the Export or Trading House is reduced by the amount which bears to the total export profits of the assessee the same proportion as the disclaimed export turnover bears to the total export turnover. With the adoption of the dual system for computing export profit, the computation of the disclaimed export turnover also requires modification. The Bill, accordingly, seeks to amend section 80HHC in order to provide that, where the Export or Trading House disclaims the concession in favour of the supporting manufacturer, the deduction to the Export or Trading House will be reduced by the amount which bears to the total export profits of trading goods the same proportion as the disclaimed export turnover bears to the total export turnover of trading goods.

The proposed amendments will take effect from 1st April, 1992, the date from which the dual system of computation of export profits comes into effect. [Clause 46]

Rationalisation of the definition of "small scale industrial undertaking" in the provisions relating to concessions for new industrial undertakings

Section 80-IA of the Income-tax Act provides for a deduction of 25 to 30 per cent. of the profits earned by a new industrial undertaking or a hotel or a ship, for a period of ten years. In the case of a hotel set up in a remote area, this deduction is allowed at the rate of 50 per cent. of the profits earned. The deduction is for an increased period of twelve years in the case of co-operative societies deriving income from a new industrial undertaking. However, no deduction is allowed if the industrial undertaking manufactures or produces any article listed in the Eleventh Schedule to the Income-tax Act. This condition, however, does not apply in the case of a small scale industrial undertaking.

The Bill seeks to amend section 80-IA with a view to bringing the definition of "small scale industrial undertaking" in the Income-tax Act in line with the industrial policy of the Government.

The proposed amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent assessment years. [Clause 47]

Modification of the provisions relating to search and seizure

Section 132 of the Income-tax Act, provides, inter alia, powers relating to search and seizure to the authorised officer. However,this provision does not provide for the continued presence of the person whose premises are being searched or of some person on his behalf, till the search is completed. The continued presence of the person whose premises are being searched is necessary for conducting the search and seizure operation smoothly and also to ensure that incriminating evidence of his concealed income or wealth is not tampered with.

The Bill, therefore, seeks to amend section 132 of the Income-tax Act, in order to provide that any person who is found in the building, place, vessel, vehicle or aircraft which is being searched, shall personally attend during such search. However, the authorised officer may, if he is of the opinion that it is necessary or expedient so to do, permit any such person to leave, subject to such conditions as he may deem fit. In case, the authorised officer does not allow the person concerned to leave, such officer shall record reasons therefor and communicate the same to such person.

Provision for income-tax exemption limit on winnings from horse races

The income-tax exemption available to income by way of winnings from races including horse races, to the extent such income does not exceed five thousand rupees, was withdrawn with effect from 1st October,1991. It has been represented that it is difficult for the recipients of the aforesaid income to keep a record of small amounts received. Therefore, the Bill seeks to amend clause (3) of section 10 of the Income-tax Act, to provide that winnings from races including horse races will not be included in the total income of a person, to the extent such receipts do not exceed two thousand five hundred rupees in the aggregate in a previous year.

This amendment will take effect from Ist April,1992. [Clause 4]

Raising of monetary ceiling of inome and turnover for the purpose of maintenance of accounts

Under the existing provisions of section 44AA of the Income-tax Act, every person carrying on business or profession other than the profession specified in sub-section (1) thereof (legal, medical, engineering profession etc.) is to keep and maintain such books of account and other documents as may enable the Assessing Officer to compute his total income in accordance with the provisions of the Income-tax Act, if,-

(i) his income from business or profession exceeds rupees twenty five thousand or his total sales, turnover or gross receipts exceed rupees two hundred and fifty thousand in any one of the three years immediately preceding the previous year, or

(ii) his income from business or profession, where the business or profession is newly set up in any previous year, is likely to exceed twenty five thousand rupees or his total sales, turnover or gross receipts are likely to exceed two hundred and fifty thousand rupees, during such previous year.

The aforsesaid monetary limits were prescribed in 1976. As a measure of rationalisation, the Bill seeks to amend section 44AA of the Income-tax Act to provide that the monetary limits of income and total sales, etc., specified in sub-section (2) of section 44AA of the Income-tax Act, shall be revised from twenty five thousand rupees to forty thousand rupees and from two hundred and fifty thousand rupees to five hundred thousand rupees respectively.

This amendment will take effect from Ist April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent assessment years. [Clause 19]

Omission of waiver of requirement of furnishing the return of income in certain cases

Section 139(1A) of the Income-tax Act provides that if the total income of a person consists only of income chargeable under the head "Salaries" or income chargeable under that head and also income in the nature of dividends, interest or income from units referred to in clauses (i) to (ix) of sub-section (1) of section 80L, it is not necessary for such a person to furnish a voluntary return of income, subject to certain conditions.

As mentioned elsewhere, the Bill seeks to omit the provisions of section 80L of the Income-tax Act. The exemption limit for income-tax is also being increased to Rs 28,000.It is also in order that the persons who pay income-tax are on the registers of the Income-tax Department. The Bill, therefore, seeks to omit sub-section (1A) of section 139 of the Income-tax Act.

The aforesaid amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent assessment years [Clause 60]

Modifications in the procedure for assessment

Under section 143(1A) of the Income-tax Act, an assessee is required to pay additional income-tax at the rate of 20 per cent. of the tax payable on the excess amount of the income determined over that returned by the assessee. In cases where, in the course of regular assessment proceedings under sub-section (3) of section 143, the additions made while processing a return of income under clause (a) of sub-section (1) of section 143 are not sustained, the additional income-tax levied under section 143(1A) is to be deleted or modified as the case may be. With a view to making this deletion or modification beyond doubt, an amendment is proposed to be made to sub-section (1A) of section 143 of the Income-tax Act.

The above amendment will take effect retrospectively from 1st April, 1989 and will, accordingly, apply to the assessment year 1989-90 and subsequent assessment years.

Under the existing provisions of the Income-tax Act, an assessee can file an application for rectifying any mistake in the intimation referred to in clause (a) of sub-section (1) of section 143. The assessee can go in appeal only against the order passed under section 154 in respect of the application for rectification, no right of appeal being available against such intimation. In order to expedite the disposal of such applications and to provide a right of appeal within a fixed time frame, sub-section (2) of section 154 of the Income-tax Act is proposed to be amended. Under the proposed amendment, the Assessing Officer is required to take action on the application for rectification within a period of 3 months from the end of the month in which the application is filed. Where no order is made within the said period, the assessee will have a right to appeal to the Deputy Commissioner (Appeals) or, as the case may be, the Commissioner (Appeals).

This amendment will take effect from the date on which the Bill receives the assent of the President. [Clauses 61 and 62]

Reduction in the period for claiming refund

Under the existing provisions of section 239 of the Income-tax Act, a taxpayer claiming refund has to file a claim in the prescribed form within a period of two years from the last day of the assessment year to which the claim for refund relates. Every claim for refund has to be accompanied by a return of income unless the claimant has already filed such return. However, under the provisions of sub-section (4) of section 139, a return of income can be filed only within a period of one year from the last date of the relevant assessment year or before the completion of the assessment, whichever is earlier.

With a view to bringing the provisions of section 239 in conformity with those of section 139, the Bill seeks to reduce the period during which a taxpayer can claim refund from the present two years from the end of the assessment year concerned to one year from the end of that assessment year.

This amendment will take effect from the 1st day of April, 1993. (Clause 84)

PROVISIONS RELATING TO CHARITABLE TRUSTS AND OTHER INSTITUTIONS

Under the existing provisions of section 13(1)(d) of the Income-tax Act, exemption from income-tax provided to a charitable or religious trust or institution will be forfeited if any funds of the trust or institution are invested or deposited after 28th February, 1983, otherwise than in any one or more of the forms or modes specified in section 11(5) of the Act. The specified forms or modes of investment, generally, are Government securities, units of the Unit Trust of India, bonds issued by certain financial corporations, deposits in Post Office Savings Bank or in any scheduled bank or in other than plant or machinery. However, the proviso to section 13(1)(d) provides that the aforesaid provisions will not apply to,-

(i) any assets held by the trust or institution where such assets form part of the corpus of the trust or institution as on the 1st day of June, 1973 and such assets were not purchased by the trust or institution or acquired by it by conversion of, or in exchange for, any other asset, and

(ii) any debentures of a company or a corporation acquired before 1st March, 1983.

So far as the assets not conforming to the provisions of section 11(5) are concerned, the proviso to section 13(1)(d) also provides that holding such assets will not make the trust or institution lose the tax exemption if such assets are disposed of or converted into the permissible investments within one year from the end of the financial year in which such assets are received or 31st March, 1992, whichever is later.

Certain anomalies and hardships arising out of the requirements of the aforesaid investment pattern have been brought to the notice of the Government. With a view to removing these, the Bill seeks to,-

(i) amend clause(i) in the proviso to section 13(1)(d), to provide that the provisions of section 13(1)(d) shall not apply in relation to assets held by the trust or institution where such assets form part of the corpus of the trust or institution as on the 1st day of June, 1973, irrespective of the fact whether such assets are held originally by the trust or institution or they are acquired by conversion or exchange of the original assets or purchased out of the sale proceeds on transfer of the original assets, as the case may be,

(ii) to insert a new clause (ia) in the proviso to section 13(1)(d), to provide that the provisions of section 13(1)(d) shall not apply in relation to any accretion to the assets, being shares of a company forming part of the corpus of the trust or institution as on 1st June, 1973, where such accretion arises by way of allotment of bonus shares, and

(iii) to amend clause (iia) in the proviso to section 13(1)(d), to provide that where an asset, other than an investment or deposit mentioned in section 11(5), is held by the trust or institution, and can be disinvested by 31st day of March, 1992, it can now be disinvested by 31st day of March, 1993.

The amendments at (i) and (ii) above will take effect retrospectively from 1st April, 1983 and the amendment at (iii) will take effect from 1st April, 1992.

Under the existing provisions of section 10(21), section 10(23), clauses (iv) and (v) of section 10(23C) of the Income-tax Act, the notified scientific research associations, the notified sports associations or institutions, the notified charitable funds or institutions and the notified wholly public religious and charitable trusts or institutions are required to invest or deposit their funds in any one or more of the forms and modes specified in section 11(5) of the Income-tax Act. If the aforesaid requirement is not complied with, the exemption from income-tax is denied to such associations, institutions, trusts, etc. It is also provided that where the funds are not so invested, such investments are to be converted into permissible investments by 30th March, 1992.

It has been represented that whereas the trusts or institutions which claim exemption under section 11 are allowed to retain the assets forming part of their corpus as on 1st June, 1973 or debentures of a company or corporation acquired before 1st March, 1983, this facility is not available to the associations, institutions, trusts, etc. referred to in sections 10(21), 10(23) and clauses (iv) and (v) of section 10(23C).

The Bill, therefore, seeks to amend the aforesaid provisions to provide that in case of the associations, institutions, funds or trusts referred to in sections 10(21), 10(23) and clauses (iv) and (v) of section 10(23C), the requirement of investment of funds in any one or more of the forms or modes specified in section 11(5) will not be insisted upon in certain cases. It provides that (i) funds held by these associations, institutions, etc,, and forming part of their corpus as on 1st June, 1973 and any accretion thereto by way of bonus shares, and (ii) debentures acquired by them before 1st March, 1983, are not to be disinvested.

These amendments will take effect retrospectively from 1st April, 1990.

Further, the period of disinvestment of funds held otherwise than in the forms or modes specified in section 11(5) is proposed to be extended from 30th March, 1992 to 30th March, 1993.

These amendments will take effect from 1st April, 1992. [Clauses 4 and 5]

STREAMLINING THE PROVISIONS RELATING TO DEDUCTION OF TAX AT SOURCE AND RECOVERY OF TAXES

Modification of the provisions regarding deduction of tax at source

Under the existing provisions of section 194A of the Income-tax Act, deduction of income-tax at source is to be made from interest in respect of time deposits with banks, etc., at the rates in force. Similarly, under the provisions of section 194H of the Income-tax Act, deduction of income-tax at source is to be made from income by way of commission (other than insurance commission) or brokerage, at the rate of ten per cent.thereof. These changes came into force from 1st October, 1991.

A large number of representations had been received from members of public, representative bodies and banks pointing out various difficulties which had arisen on account of the operation of these provisions. Keeping in view these difficulties, the Bill seeks to amend,-

(a) section 194A of the Income-tax Act, to restore the position as obtaining before 1st October, 1991, in relation to deduction of income-tax at source in the case of income credited or paid in respect of deposits with a banking company to which the Banking Regulation Act, 1949 applies (including any bank or banking institution referred to in section 51 of that Act) or with a co-operative society engaged in carrying on the business of banking (including a co-operative land mortgage bank or a co-operative land development bank), and

(b) section 194H of the Income-tax Act, to provide that the deduction of income-tax at source from income by way of commission or brokerage will not be required to be made on or after 1st June, 1992.

Under the existing provisions of section 194C of the Income-tax Act, income-tax is deductible at source from income comprised in payments made by the persons stipulated therein to resident contractors engaged for carrying out any work (including supply of labour for carrying out any work) at the rate of two per cent., of such payments. Statutory authorities set up for the purpose of development or improvement of cities, etc., registered societies, trusts and universities, which award contracts for carrying out works involving substantial consideration are not referred to in section 194C.

The Bill, therefore, proposes to amend section 194C of the Income-tax Act, with a view to including therein the following categories of persons who will be required to deduct income-tax at source from payments made by them to contractors:

(i) any authority constituted in India by or under any law, engaged either for the purpose of dealing with and satisfying the need for housing accommodation or for the purpose of planning, development or improvement of cities, towns and villages, or for both; or

(ii) any society registered under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 or under any law corresponding to that Act in force in any part of India; or

(iii) any trust; or

(iv) any University established or incorporated by or under a Central, State or Provincial Act and an institution declared to be a University under section 3 of the University Grants Comission Act, 1956.

Section 194G of the Income-tax Act provides for deduction of income-tax at source from income by way of commission, etc., on sale of lottery tickets, where such income exceeds one thousand rupees, at the rate of ten per cent. thereof.

In order to obviate the hardship in the cases of persons who have no tax liability or who have tax liability at a rate which is below the rate of deduction of tax at source prescribed in section 194G, the Bill seeks to amend section 194G of the Income-tax Act to provide that where the Assessing Officer is satisfied that the total income of a person who is or has been stocking, distributing, purchasing or selling lottery tickets justifies the deduction of income-tax at any lower rate or no deduction of tax, as the case may be, the Assessing Officer, shall, on an application made by such person in this behalf, give to him such certificate as may be appropriate. It also seeks to provide that where any such certificate is given, the person responsible for paying the income by way of commission, remuneration or prize (by whatever name called) on lottery tickets shall, until such certificate is cancelled by the Assessing Officer, deduct income-tax at the rate specified in such certificate or deduct no tax, as the case may be.

Section 197 of the Income-tax Act provides that the Asessing Officer can issue a certificate to a non-corporate person for deduction of income-tax at rates lower than the rates in force or for no deduction of tax at source, if he is satisfied that the income of the recipient so warrants.

Representations have been received to the effect that there is no justification for excluding from the ambit of section 197 the cases of companies which suffer losses or are not likely to have any income or the tax on their income is likely to be inadequate to absorb the full amount of tax deducted. As a measure of rationalisation, the Bill, therefore, seeks to amend section 197 of the Income-tax Act with a view to making the provisions thereof applicable to any person, including a company.

As all the persons are proposed to be covered within the ambit of section 197 of the Income-tax Act, the Bill also seeks to amend section 193 of the Income-tax Act relating to interest on securities, with a view to omitting the first proviso to section 193, which enabled the Central Government to specify a lower rate at which deduction of income-tax is to be made in respect of a scheduled bank.

Under the existing provisions of the proviso to sub-section (1) of section 194A, relating to deduction of tax at source from income by way of interest other than interest on securities, a person (other than a company or a registered firm) can furnish an affidavit or a statement in writing for non-deduction of income-tax at source in its case. The statement in writing has to be signed in the presence of a gazetted officer, etc. On the other hand, sub-section (1) of section 197A of the Income-tax Act also provides for furnishing of a declaration by a resident individual deriving income from interest other than interest on securities, for the purpose of non-deduction of tax at source. Therefore, as a measure of rationalisation, the Bill seeks to apply the provisions of sub-section(1) of section 197A to the persons (not being companies or firms) entitled to receive income by way of interest other than interest on securities refered to in section 194A.

Modification of the provisions relating to advance payment of tax

Section 211 of the Income-tax Act provides that advance tax on the current income, calculated in the manner laid down in section 209 of the Act, shall be payable by all the assessees who are liable to pay the same in three instalments during each financial year. The due date of, and the amount payable in, each such instalment, are as follows:

Due date of instalment	Amount payable
On or before the 15th September	Not less than 20% of such advance tax.
On or before the 15th December	Not less than 50% of such advance tax, as reduced by the amount, if any, paid in the earlier instalment.
On or before the 15th March	The whole amount of such advance tax as reduced by the amount or amounts, if any, paid in the earlier instalment or instalments.

Thus, in the first instalment of advance tax,an assessee is required to pay minimum of 20 per cent. of advance tax only, even though about six months have passed in the financial year. Similarly, in the second instalment, an assessee is required to pay minimum of 50 per cent. of advance tax only, even though about nine months have passed in the financial year.

Therefore, as a measure of rationalisation, the Bill seeks to amend section 211 of the Income-tax Act to provide that the advance tax payable in a financial year,-

(a) on or before the 15th day of September, shall not be less than thirty per cent., and

(b) on or before the 15th day of December, shall not be less than sixty per cent.

This amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1992.

The Bill also seeks to amend sub-section (1) of section 234C of the Income-tax Act relating to interest for deferment of advance tax. It seeks to provide that the shortfall for the purpose of charging interest for deferment of advance tax shall be the difference between,-

(i) thirty per cent. of the tax due on the returned income and advance tax paid by the assessee on or before the 15th day of September, and

(ii) sixty per cent. of the tax due on the returned income and advance tax paid by the assessee on or before the 15th day of December.

The aforesaid amendment will take effect from 1st June, 1992.

The Bill also seeks to make an amendment of a clarificatory nature in the Explanation to sub-section (1) of section 234C to make it clear that interest under that section will be chargeable even in cases where no advance tax is paid.

This amendment will take effect retrospectively from 1st April, 1989 [Clauses 82 and 83]

Provision of limitation for the sale of immovable property attached towards recovery of tax

Section 222 of the Income-tax Act prescribes the modes of recovery of tax from an assessee who is in default in making payment of tax, in accordance with the rules laid down in the Second Schedule to the Income-tax Act. One of the prescribed modes is attachment and sale of the assessee's immovable property.Part III of the Second Schedule to,the Income-tax Act contains the rules for attachment and sale of immovable property. At present, no limitation of time is provided for sale of the immovable property attached towards recovery of tax.

The recovery provisions without the prescribed time limit for disposal of attached immovable properties have not proved as coercive and deterrent as they should have been.

The Bill, therefore, seeks to insert a new rule, i.e., rule 68B in the Second Schedule to the Income-tax Act to provide a time limit of three years from the end of the financial year in which the order, giving rise to a demand of any tax, interest, fine, penalty or any other sum for the recovery of which the immovable property has been attached, has become conclusive under the provisions of section 245-I or has become final, as the case may be, in terms of the provisions of Chapter XX of the Income-tax Act. The period of three years shall stand extended by one year in certain cases where the sale falls through. Further, certain periods during which the order is stayed by any court, are also to be excluded from the aforesaid period of limitation.

RESTRUCTURING THE TAXATION OF FIRMS

Under the existing provisions of the Income-tax Act, the tax liability of the firm and partners depends upon whether the firm is granted registration under the Income-tax Act or not. In the case of a registered firm, the firm is assessed to income-tax at special rates and the partners are assessed on their share income from the firm at the normal rates. However, the tax payable by the firm is allowed as a deduction before the apportionment of profits. The unregistered firm is taxed at the rates applicable to individuals, with the share income included in the hands of the partners for rate purposes only. This procedure results in complexities in the assessment of firm and partners, apart from double taxation of the same income.

With a view to avoiding the above criticism, a new scheme of income-tax assessment of firms is proposed. The salient features of the proposed scheme are as under:-

(a) The firm will be taxed as a seperate entity. There will be no distinction between registered and unregistered firms;

(b) The share of the partner in the income of the firm will not be included in computing his total income;

(c) Any salary, bonus, commission or remuneration, by whatever name called, which is due to or received by a partner will be allowed as a deduction subject to certain restrictions;

(d) Where a firm pays interest to any partner, the firm can claim deduction of such interest from its total income. However, the maximum rate at which interest can be allowed to a partner will be 18 per cent. per annum; and

(e) The income of the firm will be taxed at a flat rate of 40 per cent. A surcharge at the rate of 12 per cent. will be levied in case the firm' income exceeds Rs.1,00,000.

The above changes are being brought about by amending the provisions of Chapter XVI of the Income-tax Act. Other consequential amendments have also been proposed.

The proposed amendments will come into effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, be applicable for assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent assessment years. [Clauses 3, 4, 6, 11, 16, 35, 36, 39, 40, 41, 49, 63 to 70, 74, 85, 86, 88 and 90]

RESTRUCTURING CAPITAL GAINS TAXATION

Under the existing provisions of the Income-tax Act, capital gains arising from the transfer of a capital asset are computed by deducting from the full value of consideration arising from the transfer,

(a) the cost of acquisition and improvement of the asset; and

(b) the amount of expenditure incurred in connection with such transfer.

In the case of a non-resident Indian, protection against fluctuation of the rupee value against the foreign currency is provided in the case of transfer of shares or debentures of an Indian company acquired utilising foreign currency. In respect of capital gains arising from transfer of a long-term capital asset, an assessee is allowed an initial deduction of Rs. 15,000 and a further deduction which is a prescribed percentage of the balance amount depending on the nature of the asset and status of the assessee.

With a view to restructuring the provisions relating to the taxation of long-term capital gains, the Bill seeks to amend section 48 of the Income-tax Act and to provide the following procedure for computing such capital gains:-

(a) The cost of acquisition and cost of improvement of the asset will be linked to a Cost Inflation Index which will be notified by the Central Government. Long-term capital gains will be computed by deducting from the full value of the consideration, the expenditure incurred in connection with the transfer, the indexed cost of acquisition and the indexed cost of improvement.

(b) The cut-off date for valuing assets acquired in earlier years is proposed to be changed from 1st April, 1974, as at present, to 1st April, 1981.

(c) Starting with 1981-82 as the base year, the Central Government will notify the Cost Inflation Index for every year having regard to 75 per cent. in consumer price index for urban and non-manual employees. The cost of acquisition will be adjusted with reference to the rate applicable for the relevant year. There will be similar indexation of cost of improvement.

(d) The provisions for protection from fluctuation of rupee value against foreign currency in respect of capital assets being shares, or debentures of Indian companies, so far available to non-resident Indians, will now be extended to all non-residents. However, in such cases, no indexation for cost will be available.

Section 53 of the Income-tax Act provides for total exemption from tax on total capital gains arising out of transfer of a residential house property where the full value of consideration is upto Rs. 2 lakhs and proportionate exemption where the full value of the consideration exceeds Rs. 2 lakhs. As a part of rationalisation, the Bill seeks to withdraw the exemption by omitting section 53.

Under the provisions of section 54E of the Income-tax Act, exemption from tax on capital gains is allowed if the entire consideration is invested in specified assets within six months from the date of transfer. Proportionate exemption is also provided for in cases of partial investment. The Bill seeks to amend section 54E to provide that exemption from capital gains by investing in specified assets will not be available where the capital asset is transferred after 31st March, 1992.

Under the existing provisions of the Income-tax Act, income arising under the head "Capital gains" is included in the gross total income of the assessee and after allowing deductions under Chapter VI-A, the total income is subject to tax and surcharge at the rates in force. Rebate under section 88 is available from the tax computed on the total income in respect of deposits/payments made in approved schemes and instruments.

The Bill seeks to insert a new section 112 of the Income-tax Act to provide that long-term capital gains will be subject to a flat rate of income-tax. The rate of tax will be 20 per cent. in the case of individuals and Hindu undivided families, 40 per cent. in the case of a company, firm, association of persons and body of individuals and 30 per cent. in the case of other assessees.

Where the liability to tax arises in the case of an individual and a Hindu undivided family only because of the inclusion of long-term capital gains in the total income, tax will be levied at a flat rate of 20 per cent. on the excess over the minimum exemption limit. Surcharge at the appropriate rates in force will however apply, wherever applicable. Deductions under Chapter VI-A and rebate under section 88 will not be available in respect of long-term capital gains. Income other than long-term capital gains will be subject to tax at the rates in force.

The above amendments will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply to the assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent assessment years. The amendment relating to section 54E takes effect from 1st April, 1992. However, in respect of transfers effected before 31st March, 1992, the relief under section 54E of the Act will be available till 30th September, 1992.

Under section 47(vi) of the Income-tax Act, transfer of a capital asset, in a scheme of amalgamation, is not regarded as a transfer when the amalgamated company is an Indian company for the purpose of capital gains tax. There have been representations for similar treatment on transfer of shares of Indian companies from one foreign company to another foreign company. Section 47 is proposed to be amended to insert a new clause (via). It provides that transfer of a capital asset, being shares in Indian companies, from one foreign company to another, in a scheme of amalgamation, would not be regarded as a transfer provided that at least 25 per cent. of the share holders of the amalgamating company continue to be the shareholders of the amalgamated company and such transfer is not subject to capital gains tax in the country where the amalgamating company is incorporated.

The amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will , accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent assessment years. [Clauses 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 53, 55 and 57]

MEASURES TO PROMOTE CAPITAL MARKET

Enlarging the scope of the provision relating to exemption of income of specified Mutual Funds

Section l0(23D) of the Income-tax Act provides for exemption from income-tax to any such Mutual Fund set up by a public sector bank or a financial institution as the Central Government may,by notification in the Official Gazette, specify in this behalf. The Government has agreed in principle to allow Mutual Funds to be set up in the joint sector and in the private sector. With a view to providing exemption from income-tax to the income of such Mutual Funds, the Bill seeks to enlarge the scope of clause (23D) of section 10 by including therein the Mutual Funds authorised by the Securities and Exchange Board of India.

This amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent assessment years. [Clause 4]

Tax incentive for investment in bonds or shares of Indian companies issued abroad

Under section 115AB of the Income-tax Act, in the case of off-shore funds, income in respect of units purchased in foreign currency and income by way of long-term capital gains arising from the transfer of such units are charged to tax at the rate of ten per cent.

The Government has approved, in principle, the scheme of permitting issue abroad of foreign currency convertible bonds/equity by established Indian companies. These bonds are to be denominated in foreign currencies with a view to bringing in foreign exchange. It is, therefore, necessary that the tax regime for the non-resident investors of these bonds/equities is competitive vis-a-vis the tax regimes of other such instruments of investment available in the international market. Accordingly, it is proposed to insert a new section 115AC in the Income-tax Act to provide for special rates of tax applicable to income from such bonds or shares purchased in foreign currency or long-term capital gains arising from their transfer.

The income by way of interest or dividends in respect of bonds issued by or shares in an Indian company purchased in foreign currency in accordance with the notified scheme of the Central Government in this behalf and income by way of long-term capital gains arising from the transfer of such bonds or shares is proposed to be charged to tax at the rate of ten per cent. However, this rate of tax will apply on the gross income of the nature specified above without allowing for any deduction under sections 28 to 44C, 48 and 57 and Chapter VI-A. The provisions for protection from fluctuation of rupee value against foreign currency for computing capital gains in the case of non-residents will not apply to the aforesaid shares. Further, when the said bonds or shares are transferred outside India, by a non-resident to another non-resident, it will not be regarded as a transfer for the purpose of capital gains tax.

These amendments will be made effective from Ist April, I993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to assessment year I993-94 and subsequent assessment years.

In order to facilitate easy collection of tax from the non-resident investors of these bonds/equity, it is proposed to insert a new section I96C in the Income-tax Act to provide that any person responsible for paying any income payable by way of interest or dividends in respect of these bonds or shares, shall deduct income-tax at the rate of ten per cent. of such income. The tax is required to be deducted either at the time of payment or credit to the account of the payee, whichever is earlier.

[Clauses 23, 56 and 77]

This amendment will be made effective from Ist June, I992.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

Provision for exemption from income-tax on interest payable by SIDBI on monies borrowed by it from sources outside India

Section 10(15)(iv)(d) of the Income-tax Act provides that interest payable by certain financial institutions on monies borrowed by them from sources outside India, to the extent to which such interest does not exceed the amount of interest calculated at the rate approved by the Central Government in this behalf, having regard to the terms of the loan and its repayment, shall not be included in the total income of the payee. The effect of the aforesaid provision is that the cost of borrowing in the case of the financial institutions specified in the said section is reduced.

The Bill seeks to amend section 10(15)(iv)(d) of the Income-tax Act, with a view to including the Small Industries Development Bank of India among the financial institutions mentioned in the said item.

This amendment will take effect retrospectively from 1st April, 1992 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to the assessment year 1992-93 and subsequent assessment years.

[Clause 4]

Increase in fees for filing appeals before I.T.A.T.

Under the existing provision of sub-section (6) of Section 253 of the Income-tax Act, an assessee has to pay a fee of Rs.200 for filing an appeal before the Income-tax Appellate Tribunal. The fee of Rs.200 was prescribed in 1981. The filing fees are proposed to be enhanced to Rs.1500 in respect of all appeals where the income computed by the Assessing Officer exceeds Rs. 1 lakh, and Rs.250 in respect of cases where such income does not exceed Rs. 1 lakh.

[Clause 87]

WEALTH TAX

With a view to stimulating investment in productive assets, it is proposed to abolish wealth-tax on all assets except certain specified assets. The term "asset" will include guest houses and residential houses including farm houses within twenty-five kilometres from the local limits of any municipality (whether known as a municipality, municipal corporation, notified area committee, town area committee, town committee or by any other name) or a cantonment board but does not include a house which has been allotted by a company to an employee, or an officer, or a director who is in the whole-time employment, having a gross annual salary of less than two lakh rupees. It will also not include a house for residential purposes which forms part of stock-in-trade. Further, it will include motor cars other than those used in the business of running them on hire; jewellery, bullion (other than those used as stock-in-trade); yachts and boats and aircrafts (other than those used for commercial purposes), cash in hand in excess of Rs.50,000 held by individuals or HUFs and in case of any other person any amount not recorded in the books of account and urban land.

Only those debts which have been secured on, or which have been incurred in, relation to the aforementioned assets will be allowed as a deduction in the computation of net wealth. Further, in order to prevent tax avoidance, it is proposed that wealth of a minor will be clubbed with the wealth of that parent whose net wealth (excluding the assets of the minor) is greater. It is proposed to introduce a new section 35HA in the Wealth-tax Act to provide for the person who would be held responsible in case of any offence by a company.

It is proposed that wealth-tax will be charged in respect of net wealth on the valuation date of every individual, Hindu undivided family and company at the rate of one per cent. of the amount by which the net wealth exceeds fifteen lakh rupees.

It is proposed to amend sections 2, 3, 4, 5, 7, 21, 21A, 21AA, 35, 45, Schedule I and Schedule III, omit Schedule II and insert section 35HA in the Wealth-tax Act and omit section 13 of the Finance Act,1960 and section 40 of the Finance Act,1983 respectively.

The proposed amendments will come into effect from Ist April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent years.

[Clauses 91 to 100, 102 to 105, 120 and 121]

INTEREST TAX

Under the provisions of the Interest-tax Act, 1974, which was revived by the Finance (No. 2) Act, 1991, tax is levied at the rate of 3 per cent. on the gross interest income accruing or arising to a credit institution. "Credit institution" has been defined in clause (5A) of section 2 o the Act, to include, inter alia, a banking company or a co-operative society engaged in the business of banking not being a co-operative society providing credit facilities to farmers or artisans.

With a view to encouraging the growth of the co-operative movement in the country, the Bill seeks to exempt from the levy of interest tax, co-operative societies engaged in the business of banking.

The proposed amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly , apply in relation to assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent assessment years.

When the Interest-tax Act was revived last year, the intention was to cover non-banking financial companies. It has, however, been found that there are a number of finance and investment companies which earn substantial income from interest on loans and advances and are yet not covered by the definition given in section 2(5B). These companies receive deposits under schemes or other arrangements, in one lump-sum or in instalments by way of contributions or subscriptions or by sale of units or certificates or other instruments. The Reserve Bank of India has, under Notification No.DFC.55/DG(O)-87, issued on 15th May, 1987, treated such financial companies as residuary non-banking companies.

In view of the fact that the Government's intention is to impose tax on the gross amount of interest earned by all banks, financial institutions and non-banking financial companies, in respect of loans and advances made in India, the Bill seeks to include in the definition of "financial company", all residuary non-banking companies.

The proposed amendment will take effect from 1st April, 1993 and will, accordingly, apply in relation to assessment year 1993-94 and subsequent assessment years.

[Clauses 106 and 107]

EXPENDITURE TAX

Under the provisions of the Expenditure-tax Act, 1987, a tax at the rate of 20 per cent. is levied on expenditure incurred in hotels where the room charge for any unit of accommodation is Rs.400 or more per day per individual. This tax is charged on expenditure on food or drink, accommodation and other services incurred in a hotel. However, expenditure for which payment is made in foreign exchange or any expenditure incurred by persons within the purview of the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations, 1961 or the Vienna Convention on Consular Relations, 1963, are exempt from the levy of expenditure tax.

With the room tariff going up substantially in the last few years, hotels with ordinary facilities are now charging tariff of Rs.400 and more. Inflation adjustment has, thus, become imperative in fixing the category of hotels, expenditure in which will be chargeable to tax. In view of this, the Bill seeks to raise the chargeability criterion to expenditure incurred in hotels where the room charge for any unit of accommodation is Rs.1200 or more per day per individual.

While it is necessary, on grounds of reciprocity and international commitments, to maintain the exemption for persons enjoying diplomatic immunities, there is no justification in allowing exemption in respect of payment made in foreign exchange especially after the exchange rate adjustments made last year. In view of this, the Bill seeks to withdraw the exemption granted in respect of payment made in foreign exchange.

By the Finance (No.2) Act, 1991, the scope of expenditure tax has been extended to expenditure incurred in air-conditioned restaurants. The tax is levied at the rate of 15 per cent. on the expenditure incurred in, or any payment made to such restaurants for the provision of food and drink.

The expenditure tax on air-conditioned restaurants has attracted adverse reaction from a large cross-section of the public. It has also been represented that it has affected the restaurant business. In view of this, the Bill seeks to withdraw the levy of expenditure tax on air-conditioned restaurants.

जहां तक व्यय संबंधी व्यवस्थाओं का संबंध है यह पुस्तक केन्द्रीय सरकार के बजट का एक व्याख्यात्मक ज्ञापन है । इसे चार भागों अर्थात्, भाग-I सामान्य, भाग-II आयोजना-भिन्न व्यय, भाग-III आयोजना परिव्यय और भाग IV-अन्य में बांटा गया है । विवरण और अनुबन्ध,जो इस पुस्तक का एक हिस्सा है, स्वतः स्पष्ट है और उनका उल्लेख यथास्थान विनिर्दिष्टतः किया गया है। वाणिज्यिक विभागों/विभागीय वाणिज्यिक उपक्रमों के मामले में विभिन्न विवरणों में शामिल की गई व्यय व्यवस्थाएं वसूलियों और प्राप्तियों को घटाकर दिखाई गई है ताकि व्ययों/प्राप्तियों, दोनों के आंकड़ों का बहुत अधिक विस्तार न हो जाए । ऐसे विभागों/उपक्रमों के व्ययों/प्राप्तियों की विस्तृत जानकारी विवरण 7 में दी गई है । उसी प्रकार, राज्यों को दिए जाने वाले ऐसे अल्पावधिक ऋणों और अग्रिमों को, जिनको उसी वर्ष के दौरान वसूल कर लिया जाता है, घटाकर प्रदर्शित किया गया है । कतिपय लेनदेनों को, जिनके आधार पर किसी नकद रकम की निकासी नहीं होती और जिनको उतनी ही प्राप्तियों से बराबर रखा जाता है जैसे अन्तर्राष्ट्रीय मुद्रा कोष को दिए जाने वाले अंशदानों के संबंध में किया जाता है, वसूलियां घटाकर वास्तविक निवल राशियों के रूप में प्रस्तुत किया गया है ताकि व्यय की वास्तविक मदों पर पूर्णतः स्पष्ट रूप से ध्यान दिया जा सके ।

2. इस पुस्तक में प्रस्तुत बजट-व्यय के अनुमानों में, सामान्य बजट में से किए गए आयोजनागत निवेशों की मात्रा को छोड़ते हुए, रेलवे और दूर-संचार विभागों के लेन-देनों को सम्मिलित नहीं किया गया है। किन्तु संविधान के अनुच्छेद 112 के अन्तर्गत अलग से प्रस्तुत वार्षिक वित्तीय विवरण में केन्द्रीय सरकार के समस्त मंत्रालयों / विभागों का व्यय प्रदर्शित किया गया है ।

3. संविधान के अनुच्छेद 113 के अन्तर्गत अलग से प्रस्तुत अनुदानों की मांगों के द्वारा संसद की स्वीकृति व्यय की "सकल" राशियों के लिए मांगी गई है, जिनमे उन "वसूलियों" को हिसाब में नहीं लिया गया है जिन्हें खातों में व्यय में से घटाकर प्रदर्शित किया जाता है । इन वसूलियों की राशियों को अनुदानों की सम्बद्ध मांगों में दिखा दिया गया है । खाते में प्रत्येक मुख्य शीर्ष के अन्तर्गत व्यय को, इन वसूलियों को हिसाब में लेने केबाद, वार्षिक वित्तीय विवरण में प्रदर्शित किया गया है। जैसे ऊपर बताया गया है, व्यय की विभिन्न मदों को समुचित रूप में स्पष्ट करने के लिए, इस पुस्तक में, कुछ और प्राप्तियों को भी और ज्यादा निवल रूप में निरूपित किया गया है । इस पुस्तक के अनुबंध-1 में खाते के प्रत्येक मुख्य शीर्ष के अन्तर्गत "निवल" व्यय को ही दिखाया गया है । अनुबंध 2 के द्वारा, अनुबन्ध 1 में दिए गए जोड़ों और वार्षिक वित्तीय विवरण के साथ-साथ अनुदानों की मांगों में दिए गए व्यय के जोड़ों के बीच मिलान करके एकरूपता स्थापित की गई है ।

INTRODUCTORY NOTES

This volume serves as the Explanatory Memorandum to the Budget of the Central Government in so far as the expenditure provisions are concerned. It is divided into four parts, viz, Part 1-General, Part II - Non-Plan Expenditure, Part III - Plan Outlay and Part IV-Others. The Statements and Annexures which form part of this volume are self-explanatory and have been referred to in the write-up at the appropriate places. The Expenditure provisions included in the various Statements are net of recoveries, and receipts in the case of Commercial Departments / Departmental Commercial Undertakings, so as not to inflate the figures of expenditure / receipts. The details of expenditure / receipts of such Departments / Undertakings are given in Statement No. 7. Similarly, short-term loans and advances given to the States and recovered during the same year have also been netted. Certain transactions which do not involve cash outgo and are matched by receipts, e. g., subscriptions to the International Monetary Fund have also been netted, so as to focus attention on real items of expenditure.

2. The estimates of budgetary expenditure in this document exclude the transactions of Railways and Telecommunications except to the extent of Plan investments made from the General Budget. The Annual Financial Statement presented separately under Article 112 of the Constitution, however, incorporates the expenditure of all the Central Government Ministries / Departments.

3. The Demands for Grants presented separately under Article 113 of the Constitution seek the approval of Parliament for "gross" amounts of expenditure without taking into account "recoveries" taken in reduction of expenditure in the accounts. Amounts of these recoveries are also shown in the respective Demands for Grants. The expenditure under each major head of account is shown in the Annual Financial Statement after taking into account these recoveries. A further netting of some receipts is done in this document, as explained above, to facilitate proper appreciation of various items of expenditure. Annexure 1 to this document shows the "net" expenditure under each major head of account. Annexure 2 reconciles the totals of Annexure 1 and the expenditure totals in the Annual Financial Statement, as well as in the Demands for Grants.

1. यह बचत मुख्यतः बाजार उधारों और राजकोषीय बिलों के लिए कम आवश्यकताओं के कारण है।
2. वसूली कीमतों के संशोधन और निर्गम कीमतों के बीच अंतर; और अधिक उठाने के कारण है।
3. बजट अनुमान में ली गई औसत 40 प्रतिशत की वृद्धि के मुकाबले इसे 30 प्रतिशत तक सीमित किए जाने से उर्वरकों की कीमतों में वास्तविक वृद्धि के कारण अधिक व्यवस्था की गई है।
4. नकद प्रतिपूरक योजना के शेष दावों की अदायगी के लिए।
5. बचतें अल्प बचत संग्रह में कमी के कारण हैं।
6. वृद्धि मुख्यतः रक्षा पेंशनों से संबंधित है।
7. पुलिस बलों को सुदृढ़ बनाने के कारण बढ़ी हुई आवश्यकताएं।
8. यह व्यवस्था छोटे और सीमान्तिक किसानों को संशोधन पूर्व कीमतों पर उर्वरकों की पूर्ति के लिए वर्ष के दौरान शुरू की गई योजना की आवश्यकताओं को प्रदर्शित करती है।
9. बजट अनुमान 1991-92 और संशोधित अनुमान 1991-1992 में रक्षा के लिए 16350 करोड़ रुपए शामिल हैं। अन्य मदों में कटौती हुई है।

Non Plan

1. The savings are mainly due to less requirements for market loans and Treasury Bills.
2. Increase is due to time lag between revision of procurement prices and issue prices; and higher offtake.
3. The higher provision is due to the actual increase in fertilizer prices being restricted to 30% as against an average increase of 40% assumed in the BE.
4. The increase is towards payment of residual claims of CCS.
5. The savings are due to shortfall in small savings collections.
6. The increase relates mainly to Defence pensions.
7. The increase is for strengthening of police forces.
8. The provision is to meet the requirements of the scheme introduced during the year to supply fertilizers at pre-revised prices to small and marginal farmers.
9. BE 1991-92 and RE 1991-92 include Rs. 16350 crores for Defence. The reduction is in other items.

योजना

1. यह कमी मुख्यतः प्रगति और प्राप्त होने वाली निधियों को हिसाब में लेते हुए जारी की गई निधियों के विनियमन के कारण है।
2. यह वृद्धि विदेशी सहायता प्राप्त परियोजनाओं की बढ़ी हुई आवश्यकताओं के कारण है। यह उच्च विदेशी सहायता प्राप्तियों द्वारा पूरी की जाएगी।

Plan

1. The reduction is mainly due to regulation of releases of funds taking into account the progress and funds in the pipeline.
2. The increase is due to larger requirements of externally aided projects. These are matched by higher external aid receipts.

ये वृद्धियां/कमियां निम्नलिखित कारणों से हुई है :—

1. ब्याज अदायगियों में वृद्धि कर्ज के भंडार में वृद्धि के कारण हुई है।
2. रक्षा में वृद्धि सामान्य वृद्धि और प्रतिबद्धताओं तथा अनिवार्य अदायगियों को पूरा करने के कारण है।
3. पेंशनों में वृद्धि मुख्यतः रक्षा पेंशनों से संबंधित है।
4. अल्प बचत योजना के अंतर्गत प्रत्याशित अधिक संग्रहों के फलस्वरूप अल्प बचत संग्रहों के एवज में राज्यों को ऋण तथा अग्रिम अधिक है।
5. उर्वरक संबंधी आर्थिक सहायता में वृद्धि अगले वर्ष प्रत्याशित अधिक आयातों के कारण है।
6. पुलिस व्यय के अनुमानों में पुलिस बलों को सुदृढ़ बनाने और सामान्य वृद्धि के लिए व्यवस्था की गई है।
7. निर्यात संवर्धन और बाजार विकास सहायता के लिए व्यवस्था मुख्य रूप से नकद प्रतिपूरक सहायता और निर्यात ऋणों से संबंधित बचे हुए दावों के निपटान के लिए है।
8. तकनीकी ऋणों के लिए कम व्यवस्था द्विपक्षीय रुपया व्यापार करारों में परिवर्तन के कारण है।
9. अगले वर्ष के खाद्य संबंधी आर्थिक सहायता के अनुमानों में 1991-92 में निर्गम मूल्यों में संशोधन के पूरे वर्ष के प्रभाव को हिसाब में लिया गया है।
10. सरकारी क्षेत्र के उद्यमों को आयोजना-भिन्न ऋणों में कटौती, राजकोषीय असंतुलन को ठीक करने के लिए आवश्यक उपायों का भाग है।

The increases/decreases are due to the following reasons:—

1. The increase in interest payments follows the increase in the stock of debt.
2. The increase in defence is due to normal growth and to meet committed and obligatory payments.
3. The increase in pensions mainly relates to Defence pensions.
4. Loans and Advances to States against small savings collections are higher consequent on larger collections anticipated under the small savings scheme.
5. The increase in fertilizer subsidy is on account of larger imports anticipated in the next year.
6. The estimates of police expenditure provide for strengthening of police forces and normal growth.
7. The provision for Export Promotion and Market Development is mainly for settling spill-over claims relating to cash compensatory support and export credits.
8. Less provision for Technical Credits is due to changes in bilateral Rupee trade agreements.
9. The estimates for food subsidy for next year take into account the full years impact of revision of issue prices effected in 1991-92.
10. The reduction in non plan loans to Public sector enterprises is part of the measures needed to correct the fiscal imbalance.

भाग-II

आयोजना-भिन्न व्यय, 1992-93

आयोजना-भिन्न व्यय शब्द का प्रयोग सरकार के ऐसे सारे व्यय के बारे में किया जाता है, जो आयोजना में शामिल नहीं होता । इसमें विकासात्मक और गैर-विकासात्मक दोनों प्रकार का व्यय शामिल होता है । व्यय का कुछ भाग अनिवार्य देनदारियों से सम्बन्धित होता है, जैसे ब्याज सम्बन्धी अदायगिया, पेंशन प्रभार और राज्यों को सांविधिक अन्तरण । व्यय का अन्य भाग राज्य के दायित्वों के सम्बन्ध में होता है अर्थात् रक्षा और आन्तरिक सुरक्षा । इसके अलावा, केन्द्र की कुछ विशेष जिम्मेदारिया है, जैसे विदेश कार्य, और करेंसी तथा टकसाल, और अन्य विकासशील देशों के साथ सहयोग । पिछली आयोजनाओं की अवधि में निर्मित परिसम्पत्तियों के अनुरक्षण पर किया जाने वाला व्यय भी आयोजना-भिन्न माना जाता है । इसी प्रकार किसी एक आयोजना की अवधि में प्राप्त स्तरों पर जारी सेवाओं और गतिविधियों पर होने वाला व्यय अगली आयोजना में आयोजना-भिन्न के रूप में शामिल किया जाता है, जैसे शिक्षा और स्वास्थ्य सम्बन्धी सुविधाएं, पहले से चालू अनुसंधान परियोजनाएं और बिजली घरों का प्रचालन व्यय । इस प्रकार, आयोजना के वित्तपोषण के वास्ते लिए गए उधारों पर ब्याज के अलावा, जैसे-जैसे अधिक आयोजनाएं पूरी होती जाती हैं, वैसे ही निर्मित सुविधाओं तथा सेवाओं के अनुरक्षण और प्रचालन पर होने वाले खर्च की बहुत बड़ी राशि, आयोजना-भिन्न व्यय में बढ़ती जाती है ।

1992-93 के बजट में शामिल की गई आयोजना-भिन्न व्यय की महत्वपूर्ण मदों की जानकारी निम्नलिखित पैराग्राफों में दी गई है ।

1. ब्याज सम्बन्धी अदायगिया (32000.00 करोड़ रुपए)

इनका सम्बन्ध आन्तरिक ऋण पर ब्याज (13264.35 करोड़ रुपए) से है, जिसमें मुख्यतः बाजार ऋण और राजकोष हुंडियों पर बट्टा (9500.00 करोड़ रुपए), विदेशी ऋण (2915.54 करोड़ रुपए), अल्प बचत जमा और बचत पत्र (5688.58 करोड़ रुपए), गैर-सरकारी कर्मचारियों की भविष्य निधियों की जमा सहित भविष्य निधिया (6950.12 करोड़ रुपए), सरकार के वाणिज्यिक विभागों की आरक्षित निधियां (174.67 करोड़ रुपए), शामिल हैं, जिनमें सरकारी क्षेत्र की एजेंसियों की सरकार के पास जमा राशियों सहित, अन्य दायित्व (559.42 करोड़ रुपए) शामिल हैं ।

2. रक्षा (17,500.00 करोड़ रुपए)

3.1 प्रमुख आर्थिक सहायताएं (7980.00 करोड़ रुपए)

PART-II

NON-PLAN EXPENDITURE 1992-93

Non-Plan expenditure is a generic term used to cover all expenditure of Government not included in the Plan. It includes both developmental and non-developmental expenditure. Part of the expenditure is obligatory in nature e.g. interest payments, pensionary charges and statutory transfers to States. Part of the expenditure is an essential obligation of a State e.g. Defence and internal security. Then, there are special responsibilities of the Centre like external affairs, currency and mint and co-operation with other developing countries. Expenditure on maintaining the assets created in previous Plans is also treated as Non-plan expenditure. Similarly, expenditure on continuing services and activities at levels already reached in a Plan period is shifted to Non-plan in the next Plan e.g. educational and health facilities, continuing research projects and operating expenses of power stations. Thus, as more Plans are completed, a large amount of expenditure on operation and maintenance of facilities and services created gets added to Non-plan expenditure, besides the interest on borrowings to finance the Plan.

Details of Non-Plan Expenditure by broad categories are given in Statement No.4.

1. INTEREST PAYMENTS (Rs. 32000.00 crores)

These relate to interest on internal debt (Rs.13264.35 crores) which mainly comprise market loans and discount on Treasury bills (Rs.9500.00 crores); external debt (Rs.2915.54 crores), small savings deposits and certificates (Rs.5688.58 crores), Provident funds including deposits of provident funds of non-Government employees (Rs.6950.12 crores), Reserve funds of commercial departments of Government (Rs.174.67 crores) and other obligations (Rs. 559.42 crores) which include deposits of public sector agencies lodged with Government.

2. DEFENCE (Rs.17500.00 crores)

This includes revenue and capital expenditure on Defence Services net of revenue receipts. The components are Army (Rs.8638.97 crores), Navy (Rs.990.21 crores), Air Force (Rs.2463.27 crores), Ordnance factories (Rs.60.86 crores) and capital outlay on all the above services (Rs.5346.69 crores).

3.1 MAJOR SUBSIDIES (Rs. 7980.00 crores)

3.11 Food (Rs. 2500.00 crores) :– The Food Corporation of India purchases foodgrains for the central pool at procurement prices fixed by government from time to time. These grains are issued to (a) public through public distribution system (b) roller flour mills and (c) for rural employment programme and other relief schemes at issue prices fixed by Government. The difference between the economic cost and the issue price is reimbursed to the Corporation as consumer subsidy. The Corporation also carries buffer stock on behalf of Government and is reimbursed the carrying cost including handling, storage, interest

प्रतिधारण मूल्य योजना के अन्तर्गत निवल धनराशि पर 12 प्रतिशत के प्रतिलाभ की अनुमति है । वितरण मार्जिन को घटाकर, इस प्रकार निर्धारित प्रतिधारण मूल्य और सांविधिक रूप से नियंत्रित उपभोक्ता मूल्य के बीच के अन्तर के सम्बन्ध में आर्थिक सहायता दी जाती है । आर्थिक सहायता की मात्रा प्रतिधारण मूल्य, उपभोक्ता मूल्य और उत्पादन के स्तर पर निर्भर होती है । इसके अलावा, विनिर्माताओं को कारखाने से वितरण के स्थान तक उर्वरकों को ले जाने के भाड़े के सम्बन्ध में भी आर्थिक सहायता दी जाती है ।

3.12 Indigenous fertilisers (Rs. 3500.00 crores) :– A retention price scheme for indigenous fertilizers is in operation since 1977. This scheme is intended to make fertilizers available to farmers at reasonable prices and at the same time give producers of fertilizers a reasonable return on their investment. The fertilizers are sold at issue prices fixed from time to time.

The retention price scheme allows a 12% return on net worth. The difference between the retention price so fixed less distribution margin and the statutorily controlled consumer's price is allowed as subsidy. The quantum of subsidy depends on the retention price, the consumers' price and the level of production. In addition, the manufacturers are also allowed freight subsidy for movement of fertilisers from factory to delivery points.

3.13 आयातित उर्वरक (1500.00 करोड़ रुपए) :- चूंकि देशी उत्पादन उर्वरकों की मांग को पूरा करने के लिए पर्याप्त नहीं है, इसलिए कमी को पूरा करने के लिए आयात किया जाता है । मुख्यतः उर्वरकों की तीन किस्में अर्थात् यूरिया, डाइ–अमोनियम फास्फेट और म्यूरिएट आफ पोटाश आयात की जाती है । ये अनुमान सम्भावित आयात पर आधारित हैं।

3.13 Imported fertilizers (Rs. 1500.00 crores) :– As indigenous production is not adequate to meet the demand for fertilisers, imports are arranged to make up the shortfall. Mainly, three varieties of fertilizers viz. Urea, Di - ammonium phosphate and Muriate of Potash, are imported. The estimates are based on the likely imports .

3.14 निर्यात संवर्धन और बाजार विकास (480.00 करोड़ रुपए):- यह व्यवस्था मुख्यतः नकद प्रतिपूरक सहायता (300.00 करोड़ रुपए) और वाणिज्यिक बैंकों को ऋण सहायता (153.00 करोड़ रुपए) के भुगतान के लिए, पहले चल रही योजना, जो क्रमशः 3/7/91 और 6/8/91 को समाप्त हो गई, के अधीन बचे हुए दावों को निपटाने के लिए है । इसके अतिरिक्त, निर्यात संवर्धन परिषद और अन्य संस्थाओं को अनुदान का भुगतान करने के लिए भी व्यवस्था की गई है ।

3.14 Export promotion and Market Development (Rs.480.00 crores) :– The provision is mainly for clearance of residual claims under the erstwhile schemes for payment of cash compensatory support (Rs. 300.00 crores) and credit subsidy to commercial banks (Rs. 153.00 crores) which terminated w.e.f. 3.7.1991 & 6.8.1991 respectively. In addition, provision has also been made for payment of grants to Export Promotion Councils and other institutions.

3.2 किसानों को ऋण राहत (1500.00 करोड़ रुपए):- यह आर्थिक सहायता "कृषि और ग्रामीण ऋण राहत योजना, 1990 के अन्तर्गत उधारकर्ताओं को ऋण राहत देने के लिए है ।

3.2 Debt Relief to Farmers (Rs.1500.00 Crores):- The subsidy is towards providing debt relief to borrowers under the "Agricultural and Rural Debt Relief Scheme, 1990".
